DICK'S DARLING.
"Four darling," she murmured with a sigh. She turned away to look for the evening, but it was four hours before she had regained her serenity of countenance. Maude had found her brother's diary during the two hours that elapsed before Maude's "daisy" called with her and begged to take her for drive.

"What a gloomy expression!" Fred Parker said, with a smile. "May I ask the meaning of that?"
"It was occasioned by your absence from the morning," she said, and partly giving him her hand, "did not expect you so soon."

"Why, how nice!" with a pleased look, "I always told you that you were a good girl. I expect to return you to me. I got through my work in a hour. I am promoted and my salary is doubled. I am going to the country. I have a beautiful place before you. You see I am a true gentleman."

"You are a very nice man," she said, and she looked at him with a smile. "I am glad to hear of your success. I am sure you will be a great success in the future." "Thank you," he said, and he looked at her with a smile. "I am glad to hear of your success. I am sure you will be a great success in the future."

"What do you mean, 'Carmen'?" he asked gravely. "Do you think I am a man?"
"Carmen shall not quarrel with him," she said. "That is all I have to say. I am sure you will be a great success in the future."

"I am sure you will be a great success in the future," she said, and she looked at him with a smile. "I am glad to hear of your success. I am sure you will be a great success in the future."

"I am sure you will be a great
she looked at him with a smile. "I

in the future."

BOYFRIENDS.
"I was the most exciting adventure
I ever had. I am sure you will be a great success in the future."
