As ever the best goods cannot advertise themselves until they are dead, they should themselves first be advertised in order to insure their sale.

"A European prince doesn't amount to much," says an eastern contemporary, "until after he has been reported engaged to an American girl." His debts do, however, hence the engagement.

Advertisers who frequently change their mediums and methods should remember that a constant dropping will not wear away the stone, to any appreciable extent, when the drops fall on different parts of it.

A story is told of goods unsold representing so much money lying idle. The cost of selling the goods and of advertising them would, in some cases, be less than the interest which would otherwise accrue on the unsold stock.

The marriage of Justin McCarthy's son to Cissy Loftus of the London music halls appears to have created a good deal of a sensation in England. Hitherto it has been the almost exclusive privilege of sprigs of the English nobility to marry these dashing artists. Now the commoners are having a chance.

The universe will move along now with less friction, and fewer stars will be seen to fall, since the American association for the advancement of science is in session at Brooklyn, to reach a conclusion as to the behavior of aliphatic, aliphatic and anhydilenapropriotic acids when boiled with caustic soda solution.

There is very little hope for the progress and eventual civilization of Russia. Thirty Cossacks belonging to a regiment stationed at Tiflis have just been beaten and cut to death with the knout for mutiny. What can be expected of a government which is exemplified in the bench of the nihilists and the knout of the czar.

A Washington correspondent writes that the White House is becoming dilapidated, because it is getting its first coat of paint in two years. The paint which is put on the White house must be more expensive than the so-called paint commonly used for house-painting now-a-days if it will only look fresh for a single year.

The whole world has heard of the horror of the destruction of Pompeii by volcanic eruption, for more than eighteen hundred years, and yet the loss of life in that calamity was inconsiderable. In our forest fires whole villages are swept out of existence and hundreds of lives are sacrificed in a few minutes. And think of the horror of such a calamity!

The island of St. Helena, where Napoleon passed so many years of his life in banishment, is to become a health resort. Since the opening of the Suez canal the inhabitants have suffered severely from a money point of view, as fewer ships touch there than in former years. The people want some other source of income and have adopted this plan.

According to a recent pamphlet by an Italian doctor a sure way of restoring life in cases of syncope is to hold the patient's tongue firmly. After two other doctors had worked for an hour without result over a young man who was apparently drowned, he thrust a spoon into the patient's mouth, seized the tongue, and worked it violently until the patient gave signs of life.

Will it come to pass that the several heavily timbered states will have to maintain sylvan fire department in order not only to prevent a wholesale destruction of property, but a wholesale destruction of life as well? If not fire departments with dammed up streams to draw from, then fire patrols and some kind of ingenious way to arrest the progress of flames and so avert awful human hecatombs.

Philadelphia is likely to lose a notable monument to the noble old elm tree that has so long overshadowed Walnut street just below Broad. Mrs. Dudas Lippincott, who has long defended the old tree from threatened destruction, has just died, and it is likely soon to be removed. The great tree shadows the whole width of the street, and its largest limbs overhang the opposite sidewalk.

This is what "Vanity Fair," of London, said the other day about Rudyard Kipling: "Fifty years ago Rudyard Kipling left India to see China, Japan and America, after which he came to London and got married. He has now made his home in Vermont of the United America, and when he has passed seven years in the study of the people among whom he dwells we may expect to have a great work on that country which has in it the making of several empires."

Mr. Edward Atkinson predicts that this country will become within a very short time the greatest agricultural, manufacturing, shipbuilding and commercial country in the world." But not only Yankees, even British statisticians foretell it.

The discovery of new gold fields in Alaska does not surprise old prospectors. There is probably a great deal of undiscovered and almost undiscoverable country in the old placer grounds of California and the new ones on the Yukon river.

The way a man looks at things depends mainly on the environment. While a philosopher who lives in the far West is busy laying down rules for longevity, Colonel Ingersoll, who lives in New York, is an enthusiastic advocate of suicide.

William Waldorf Astor regrets that he was born in America, but America does not regret that William Waldorf has become a naturalized Englishman. It is a pretty small game, but the country is one ahead so far.

Just as the Vanderbilts have apparently decided to abandon their family skeletons to the closets of their marble palaces, the Astors bring theirs out again. William Coleman Drayton has begun a suit for divorce from his wife, the daughter of Mrs. William Astor.

If wheels can be manufactured that can run at twice the speed with which a bicycle are now driven in our streets, pedestrianism in our cities may soon become an art. The name of the new machine is the unipede.

The Knights of the Maccabees Swarm in Great Numbers to the Great Camp at Lansing—The Ladies There Too, Severe Storm Does $100,000 Damage.

Great Camp of the K. O. T. M.

Probably the largest crowd that Lansing was ever called upon to entertain took possession of that city on the occasion of the fourteenth great camp of the Knights of the Maccabees. The annual parade was nearly three miles in length, and was pronounced a very good exhibition. The officers awarded prizes as follows: For the best uniformed tent in line a K. O. T. M. banner, valued at $50, went to Dimondale tent; for the tent having the greatest number of members in line a silver and gilt elegant flag valued at $40, won by Charlotte tent; for the tent making the best appearance in marching and drill, and drawing the considered, a Palace Regal coal heater, valued at $45, won by Olive tent, of Ionia; for the tent having the second largest number of men in line, a sword, belt and cap, won by Central City tent of Alma; for the finest and largest band, the Third regiment band, of Bay City, was given first prize; Farrand & Votey's band of Detroit, second, and the Williamston cornet band third.

There were 827 delegates reported when first sent from headquarters, but the great camp to order. It was shown by the report of N. S. Boynton, great record keeper, that the membership in Michigan including the ladies auxiliary branch, is over three times as large as it was at the last biennial beneficiary society. It also shows that the increase of tents is 46 and the net increase in membership is 3,136, that a grand total of the Knights of the Maccabees or 56,499. The Ladies of the Maccabees number in all 30,000, added to the Knights of the Maccabees, gives a total membership in the state of Michigan, of 86,499, the death benefits on its hands $78,263 since the death benefits. Mr. Boynton recommends division of the state into county districts with biennial sessions of the great camp.

The district plan was defeated but it was voted to hold biennial sessions of the great camp. The list of officers is as follows: Commander, Nathan S. Boynton, Port Huron; lieutenant commander, Thos. Watson, Rockcommon; record keeper, Joseph Hutchinson, Kalamazoo; physician, finance keeper, Robert J. Whaley, Flint; great medical examiner, Dr. Edward Eadie, Alma; chaplain, Henry W. Carey, Manistee; sergeant, Noble Ashley, Detroit; master-at-arms, W. K. Gault, Ionia; first master of the guard, W. S. The L. O. T. M.

The Ladies of the Maccabees held their session in the senate chamber with about 500 delegates present. Great Lady Commander Lillian Leslie, of Detroit, presided. The reports showed that the L. O. T. M. has 465 members, with total deaths to date 1,405, and paying out to order amounting to $13,108,000. During the year $16,450 were paid on death claims and $3,000 on total disability, and for the year were $62,449.78; disbursements, $58,203.92.

At the closing session of the great hive of the Ladies of the Maccabees the following officers were elected: Commander, Lillian Leslie, Detroit; lieutenant commander, Mrs. Frances Burns, St. Louis; record keeper, Mrs. Emma E. Bower, Ann Arbor; finance keeper, Mrs. Susie R. Graves, Port Huron; medical examiner, Dr. Emma C. Cook, Detroit; chaplain, Mrs. Mary O. Knight, Lansing; sergeant, Mrs. Agnes Forsthar, Thumb; first mistress-at-arms, Mrs. Marie Krause, Saginaw; sentinel, Mrs. Annie Emmett, Howell; lecturer, Mrs. Rachel Hastings; picket, Miss. Nettie Gates, Orion.

Men of Finance.

The annual convention of the Michigan State Bankers' association was held at Bay City, Hon. S. O. Fisher presiding. O. S. Comptroller of the Currency J. H. Eckels was present. His address which was much appreciated.

The following officers of Michigan Bankers' association resulted: President, S. M. Cutcheon, Detroit; first vice-president, F. H. Withey, Grand Rapids; second vice-president, A. C. Withington, Jackson; secretary, Fred. erick Moore, Detroit; treasurer, W. T. Detlaff, Detroit.

Her Children's Ingratitude.

Mrs. Myra West, of Leonidas, attempted suicide with a razor. Two attempts were made, the first razor blade broke when cut. The second razor she tried cut the right side of her neck from back of her ear to the windpipe. Mrs. West tore everything in the room to pieces. She was found out when discovered, but it is thought she cannot recover. Trouble with children, who are alleged to have secured her property and refused to care for her, is said to be the cause.

Sad Suicide at Jackson.

John E. Norris, son of John Norris, a well known resident of Jackson, was found dead in the cellar of the family residence with a bloody razor by his side. Gashes in both wrists and throat showed the cause of death. Norris was 33 years of age and was a young man of valuable qualities. For some time he had been subject to spells of melancholy. He was soon to have been married to a most estimable young lady.

He Caught on to Jeff's Disguise.

Michigan has lost one of its most famous veterans of the late war in the death of Andrew Bee, of Martin. He was a member of the Second Fourth Michigan cavalry. Bee was the means of capturing Jeff Davis, being the first man to recognize him as he emerged from the tent in his attempt to escape in disguise, and said to Gen. Pritchard, "We have got Jeff."

Burglars entered the store of the Marlette Mercantile company, forced the safe and made away with $1,230 in cash and notes.

W. W. Emery & Sons will cut about 10,000,000 feet of logs on White Fish, Ont., this cutting season. They will be towed to Saginaw.

While dozing in a chair in a hotel at Manistique John Wenzel, of Milwaukee, had his pocket picked of $130 in gold cash. Five hours afterward Sheriff Smith overhauled and arrested Wenzel McKinsey at Grand Haven, and upon searching him found $238.05 of the stolen money. Wood Worth was arrested as an accomplice.

Fifty lumber shovers on the docks of the Traverse City Lumber company struck for an advance of 10 cents an hour, but the demand was refused. The strikers endeavored to prevent other men going to work, and the sheriff was called to prevent trouble. Plenty of men are to be had.

Breckinridge Knocked Out.

Col. Breckinridge, of the Seventh district, of Kentucky, is dead politically. In the hottest primary fight ever had in this country he has lost to W. C. Owens by 1,000 votes, something in the neighborhood of 1,000 votes. Intimidation or other occasion ever caused such a general upset in the line of business and daily duties as the contest between Col. Owens, W. C. Breckinridge and E. E. Beckham for the Democratic nomination for congress from the Seventh, better known as the Ashland district. The campaign in the district was agitated in the most bitter personal agitation. It was not a political war, for there was not a word in a moral contest for weeks and months, and it became intensely personal, so far as Col. Breckinridge is concerned, and the result was that the nomination was not the only issue.

Serious Runaway at a Funeral.

A frightful runaway occurred in a funeral party near Irondale, O., in which Mrs. Andrews was injured, three fatally. While the funeral cortege was returning from the cemetery the horses attached to a carriage became frightened and the driver lost control of them. The animals dashed into the front carriage, wrecking it and causing the second carriage to turn over. Both jumped after the first. The child is dead. The other two were fatally injured. Although the horses in the second carriage ran away, they were stopped by a passenger train from Minneapolis while waiting west of the scene of the accident and the whole train load of passengers were passing around the wreck to take a train on the other side. When the latter left the track the wreck exploded. The flames enveloped the air with a noisy roar, and all four horses perished after being burned to death.

Japs to March Upon Pekin.

London: A dispatch from Shanghai says that a fleet of 21 Japanese transports, conveying 10,000 troops, sailed from Nagasaki Japan port. WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

New York—R. G. Dun & Co's review of trade says: Business has not so attack and is more satisfactory than last month and than in year ago directly after the panic. The small increase since the election of a new tariff, and all assist that changes have been for the importance as was expected. If in some branches business has materially increased, it is in many others far below the fallen off in others. Loss in some directions is in part offset by gains in reports 79 the heavy favorable estimate of exports put the loss of corn at about 40,000,000 bu. whereas the government report is by some interpreted as meaning a loss of 100,000,000 bu. The opinion of corn is does not favor the official estimate, and the fact that the largest three states in the vote stood very small and exports have practically ceased, all add weight to that idea. The effect of the crop is serious, if it proves to be no greater, since there is no doubt about the quality of the corn. More is unchanged, but lard has risen. Oats are 2½ cents and pork is 50 cents higher. The great increase in the iron production which was reported for August has not continued, the difficulties is suggested by the capacity of furnaces in blast. Less activity is seen in goods, the rush of postponed business having passed and the jobbers have ceased their purchases. The failures have been 207 in the United States during seven days against 314 the same week last year, and 44 in Canada against 27 last year.

R. G. Dun & Co's weekly review says: All the features of improvement in general business of last week are retained, and from a number of the more important branches of trade still further gains are reported. At various northwestern centers cold weather has stimulated the sales in dry goods, clothing and shoes. The showing of the railroad earnings for October presents an irregular distribution of increases, the most favorable being in the southern lines. Woolen and dress goods are not so active as well as in previous weeks, but the cutting up suggests that the public are likely to take before January 1. Prices of woolens range for August, covering returns for 123 roads, having a mileage of 120,000, are for the aggregate $47,461,000, against 147,080,386 in August, 1893.

Stone and Treasurer Evans waived examination and were released on their own recognizance to appear at the November term of the U. S. district court.

The New York constitional convention has passed the amendment removing the statutory limit of $5,000 for actions for recovery for damages for injuries resulting in death.

CHINESE DEFEATED.

CHINESE IN KOREA LOSE OVER 16,000 MEN.

The Japanese Practically Annihilated an Army of 20,000 Men and Lost Only 30 Men With 270 Wounded—Japs Now Control Korea.

London: Dispatches from Seoul, the capital of Korea, tell of the total defeat of the Chinese army, entrenched at Ping Yang, by the Japanese. For two days the Japanese had been making a careful reconnaissance in force to ascertain the position of the Chinese army. On the third day the Gen. Oku column faced the Chinese left flank, the Nodzu column the center and the Hwang Zu column the right. The Chinese defenses had been greatly strengthened. The battle opened at daybreak, both sides cannonading heavily. The Pong San column did the fighting for the Japanese while the flanking parties gained some in positions, but at night the situation was practically unchanged. Firing was continued all the night and meantime the Japanese had left closed in upon the Chinese position, and at 4 o'clock the Japanese attack was delivered simultaneously. The Chinese lines, which were strong in front, were found to be weak in the rear and the Chinese were soon completely by surprise, became panic stricken and were cut down or bayoneted by the hundreds. So well was the Japanese attack directed that the Chinese were surrounded at every point and eventually sought safety in flight. The Pong San column, swarming over the damaged defenses of the Chinese front, completed the rout of the Chinese.

Some idea of the manner in which the Japanese attack was delivered may be judged from the fact that one-half an hour after the early morning attack had commenced the strongly defended position of Ping Yang was in the hands of the Japanese troops. It is believed that the Chinese loss in killed will reach by 20,000 Chinese, of whom only a few succeeded in escaping.

The Japanese victory was brilliant and complete. An immense amount of provisions, arms, ammunition and other stores in addition to 30 standards of flags were captured and 16,000 of the Chinese soldiers killed, wounded or taken prisoners. Among the latter were Gen. Tso Fook Wai, the commander-in-chief of the Manchurian army, and several other prominent Chinese officers. The Japanese loss was trifling, only 30 being killed and 270 wounded, seven officers being among the number.

So far as the active operations of the Chinese in Korea are concerned the war is practically at an end. It will take time to come and the mainland of Korea and Manchuria is also closed in the hands of the Japanese.

THE VETS AT PITTSBURG.

The Annual Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The decreasing ranks of the G. A. R. the veterans who saved the nation—gathered once more in annual encampment as is the custom, this time at Pittsburg.

As is usually the case, the parade of veterans was the big event of the encampment. Over 40,000 of the nation's heroes marched through the streets of Pittsburg and the line of march in some places was such as carried them away on gusts of tights of patriotism in their younger days. Between 500,000 and 600,000 people witnessed the spectacle and cheered the veterans.

The business sessions of the encampment were full of interest. Commander-in-Chief Adams in his farewell address gave the following figures to show the condition of the G. A. R. the year ago there were in good standing 397,283. There have been gained during the year, by muster-in, 16,752; by transfer, 6,354; by reinstatement, 14,036; by reinstatement from delinquent reports, 2,519; total gain, 39,661. Aggregate, 436,884. There have been lost. By death, 7,383; by honorable discharge, 1,756; by transfer, 7,132; by suspension, 34,895; by dishonorable discharge, 31; by resignment reports, 16,671; total loss, 67,801. Number remaining in good standing June 30, 1894, 369,083. To which he added: These figures show that the regular Army of the Republic has reached the beginning of the end, and each succeeding year will show a gradual decrease in our membership."

Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, presented the claims of his city for the encampment next year, and that place was the unanimous choice of the delegates.

Of course the real interest of the business session centered in the selection of a new commander-in-chief. Judge Lang, of Michigan, having withdrawn from the race there were only two candidates—Col. Thomas G. Lawler, of Rockford, Ill., and Col. L. N. Walker, of Indianapolis. The closeness of the result was a surprise to both victor and defeated. It took 45 ballots to reach and declare the result of the 649 delegates. Then Commander Adams announced that the vote stood: Lawler, 330; Walker, 319. The Illinois man winning by the narrow margin of eleven votes. Col. Walker then moved that the vote be made unanimous. The other officers were chosen as follows: Senior vice-commander, A. H. Ridenbaugh, of Pittsburg; junior vice-commander, Chas. Shute, of Louisiana; surgeon-general, O. H. Weeks, Marion, O.; chaplain-in-chief, T. H. Haggerty, Louis., The new commander-in-chief, Lawler, is a Canadian by birth, but in the months during the Atlantic coast and was the roll of honor by the Illinois regiment. Miss Lawler, daughter of the commander, was made sponsor for the encampment.

Mrs. Sarah C. Mink, national president of the W. R. C., in her report said that the movement to obtain pensions for army nurses has progressed. The other official reports showed that there are 2,676 corps and that $170,384.26 was expended during the year in relief work.

The Woman's Relief Corps elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Emma R. A. Wallace, Chicago; senior vice-president, Mrs. Helen R. Morrison; Philadelphia, Pa.; junior vice-president, Mrs. Lizzie R. Herrick, Washington; treasurer, Mrs. Armila A. Cheney, Detroit; chaplain, Mrs. S. Agnes Parker, Massachusetts.

The ladies of the G. A. R. chose officers as follows: President, Mrs. Nettie E. Tunnicliff, Ohio; senior vice-president, Mrs. Etta Toby, Indiana; junior vice-president, Mrs. Anna M. Hall, Wisconsin; secretary, Mrs. Ella C. George, Washington, D. C.; chaplain, Mrs. Mary Reynolds, Wisconsin.

The daughters of Veterans officers were elected: President, Mrs. Ellen M. Walker, Worcester, Mass.; senior vice-president, Miss Lucy Kendall, Louis; junior vice president, Miss Gladys Foster, Kansas; chaplain, Miss Lena Hyde, Illinois; secretary, Miss Mrs. Ida J. Allen, Newtonville, Mass.; inspector, Miss Addie York, Somerville, Mass.

London: A Shanghai dispatch received announces that the survivors of the persons aboard the Chinese transport Chean, which stranded in the Chefoo river in September, 1,500 troops on board, while on her way to the Island of Formosa, have arrived there. Of the 1,500 soldiers were drowned in the Che Tung pass.

DOGS TAUGHT TO BARK.

Costa Rican Dogs Do Not Do It Naturally and Must Learn How.

"They've got the biggest dogs down in Costa Rica you ever heard of," said Henry Coyne of Lycoming county, Pennsylvania, who spent several years in that tropical country with an engineer corps, to a New York Sun reporter. "When they are grown they are about the size of a shepherd dog, and look as if they were a cross between a wolf and a fox. They are of a light yellow color and slouch along as if they suspected every one they met of having a tin can and intentions of fastening it to their tails. The queerest thing about the Costa Rica dogs is that if they live to be 1,000 years old they can't bark unless they are taught when they are puppies.

"They have to teach these dogs to bark down there, just as some canary birds have to be taught to sing. When the pups are a couple of weeks old the Indians—every person down there is an Indian, for all practical purposes—put them with a dog that has learned to bark, so that they can hear him and imitate him. They never bark the lessons to the puppies themselves. The latter is the surest and most satisfactory way to teach a Costa Rican dog to bark. Other dogs are taught there that has mastered the voice that is natural to dogs elsewhere may not take it into his head to bark when he is grown, and if a puppy doesn't receive lessons in voice culture before he is six months old he will be mute all his life. So the Indians usually insist on having their dogs shall bark by giving the puppies less
