Henry Ward's faith in McKinley's protection ant a sure thing on wool is proven by the fact that he owns probably more sheep than any other man in the U. S. Buying when sheep was very low beginning two years ago, he has collected on his Michigan ranch in a Pontiac, 9,000 sheep and will touch 15,000 before finishing. He rece tly bought and brought from Old Mexico 5,000 of these wool bearing animals and we certainly wish him all that his fancy pictures and all that his faith and far seeing instinct will warrant. 'Rah for wool and a great big protection on the sheep.

Wes lames Leonard and Hemenway are home after a three weeks sojourn at Mt. Clemens enjoying the baths, the delightful scenery, the exhilarating climate and all the good things the Belle city is famed for. During their stay they were most enjoyably entertained by Mrs. Forster at her beautiful and elegant home on Church St. A delightful reception was tendered our Birmingham ladies and the many many acquaintances thus made will not be forgotten for many years. Oh, our folks did see the Wells girls—S ven, 7 inches high, who sleep in two ordinary beds placed end to end and have a hand almost equaling the hand of providence.

We are authorized to say that after the holidays Mr. A. H. Lott intends to devote three or four evenings to the lecture platform. His lecture will consist of an authentic account of the plot to assassinate Abraham Lincoln, of the assassination, flight, pursuit, capture, death and burial of the assassin John Wilkes Booth., He will also give a practical description of the battle of Gettysburg. Barring all claims of being an orator, the subjects Mr. Lott has chosen, one of them the most important, the other the most tragical of American history. He should be warranted a good patronage wherever he may hold forth.

A bold robbery took place Saturday evening near Buck Walnut lake. Three men got off the 5:15 car here, walked over to the home of Mr. Conklin an old bachelor, who lives alone, entered the house, tied their victim to the bedstead, gagged him and went through the premises securing $26 in money and two certificates of deposit amounting to about $75. Before they left they untied one hand giving him a chance to free himself after they were out of the vicinity. As soon as possible the old man went to Pontiac and notified the sheriff and a chase after the ruffians was at once began. Three men answering the description were here about 11:30 that evening and caught a ride toward Detroit on the electric car that hauls gravel. From their conversation it is thought they are the men who did the work. At this writing the scoundrels are still at large.

The very pretty home wedding of Miss Carrie C Moots and Mr. I. ### DETROIT THEATRES.

The sterling qualities of "The War of Wealth," which is given at the Lyceum theatre this week with an extra matinee Christmas Day has made it one of the most successful melodramas seen on the American stage in many years. It has a more liberal degree than any other recent melodrama the essential qualities of a successful play. Its success in New York, last season, where it ran continously for three months when it was only expected to remain two weeks, is well known. It received many flattering notices from the New York press and is conceded to be one of the best plays of its class. The play is under the management of Jacob Litt, a manager who is perhaps more liberal in mounting his plays than any other American manager.

Laughs flow fast and furious in the brightest of all farce comedies, "A Railroad Ticket," written by the popular author, Jos. M. Gaites, and presented by Freeman's Fun Makers. It is brisk and sparkling and thoroughly punched up to date with new music, specialties and witty dialogue. The cast this season is one of the best ever seen in this successful comedy, and includes 21 singers and comedians, among them Marie Stuart, Louis Wesley, Arthur Moulton, Harry Porter, Gus Pixley, Mattie Lockette, Charles A. Burke, "The Festival Ticket Quartette," and a strong chorus. This comedy will be presented at the Whitney next week.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A Trojan Lose's an Arm in a Cutting Box.

About as sad a calastrophe as can befall a man, occurred to Mr. Richard Vokes, of Troy, age 62 years, last week Friday. Mr. Vokes, who is one of Troy's staunch and able citizens, was busy at his home, one mile north and three quarters of a mile east of Big Beaver, cutting up constable by horse power. It is not known exactly how the accident happened but it is supposed that he slipped while feeding the cutter and the knives catching hold of his finger ends very quickly drew his left arm clear to the elbow, chopping it off piecemeal until his shouts stopped the horses. Mr Vokes himself with his other hand turned the large fly wheel back wards until he could loosen himself and easily bind up the severed member, stopping the flow of blood securely and then walked to the house. Dr A d rson was summoned after in about 30 moments from his notice Dr J. L. Campbell was on the scene and the two physicians amputated the arm between the elbow and shoulder. At this writing the sufferer is getting along very nicely and stands the shock with wonderful nerve, coolness and resignation.
