MORTUARY. Another Esteemed Pioneer Taken Away.

WILLIAMSON died on the 14th of October, 1897. Mrs. Wm. Williamson, the beloved mother of Mr. Peter McKay, of this village, died at the home of her daughter at the advanced age of 81 years.

Wasn't Fluch on the Burple.

Last Monday evening a would-be burglar entered the sleeping apartments of Mr. and Mrs. George Ferguson on the town line, swung open the door and then struck one of those snapping parlor matches, which in the still silence of the night made a noise that would shake a frailting gun.

A Funny Suggestion.

Some of the notorious boys around us are making great plans for the destruction of property and the annoyance of people at the coming Halloween. It may be fun to them but it is a poor kind of fun that annoys others.

THE STAGE. AT THE EMPIRE.

"The Widow Jones, one of the famous M. Nell Gales in which May Irwin made a memorable success, comes to the Empire Theatre on the latter half of this week."

AT THE LYCEUM.

A four act sensational drama entitled "The Electroman" at the Lyceum, where it will be continued all the week. It is a characteristic work of the ingenious and industrious, Chas. E. Halsey, and is shrewdly calculated to arouse popular sympathy and set the galleries on fire with enthusiasm.

Advertised Letters.

The following is a list of letters remaining unclaimed in the post office at Birmingham, Mich., for the week ending October 23, 1897: Miss Clara Allen, Mrs. Schulte, Young, J. J. Teachout, Carl Schutte, Richard Tilton.

FOUR YOUNG MEN

of Holly came to Detroit yesterday to buy winter overcoats. They came here first. We showed them our Kerseys, Meltons, Coverts and Friezes at $15 each. They liked them, but they thought they would look around before buying. They went out and visited other stores. At 5 o'clock they came back.
