POPULAR HERO OF ROMANCE.

He can Do Almost Asything Well, but

Keeps It to Himsel.

If one may judge from the novels that young women seem, to read with most avidity they do not like a lover
to be sentimental, rehetorical for brutal.

They still prefer him to be big and strong, but let him be careful not to which seems to please a little manner more than to huntilate a big man—and that at his own game. If she can show him that she can isall a boat, shoot a rapid, climb a mointain, or swim further out to see at him he can, she is in a fair way to accept his humble proffer of love and allegiance in the next chapter. The prevalent hero is a man who can do almost anything well, but keeps it to himself. He must be a man of immence reverve powers, who exhib-

He Could Not See the Signal

He Could Not See the Nigeal.

Clark Russell, has, in a revert Issue of the New Illustrated Magazine, a spirited account of Lord Nelson at the attitle of Copenhagen. Although the English ships met with a variety of disasters early in the flath, for three of them had touched ground and one had been several to the property of the prope

Then turning to Captain Foley he re-marked:

"You know, Foley, I have only one eye. I have a right to be blind some-times." Putting his glass to his blind eye, he exclaimed, "I really do not see the signal!"

He went on fighting, and the battle

He went on fighting, and the battle of the Baltic became one of England; most famous victories. A blind ey that does not see defeat is better that two good eyes that fail to recognize

Hard and soft Cider.

A New York man has been convicted and fined for selling "hard cider" without a license. This precedent will call for some expert talent among revenue officers to determine exactly at what point in its career cider ceases to be a "soft drink."

Satisfied.

The Female Reporter—I am just dying to be original—send me somewhere that no lady reporter has ever gone. The Editor (musingly)—Well, you might go to heaven.

No Concealment There.

Binks—I read a curious article the ther day advocating a tax on beauty. Inks—Good idea. They won't have truthed in collecting it.—Harlem
