Gen. Miles' report shows that he has picked up some information from the American army and returned from abroad.

There was nothing in the fever with which the Christians and Frigidus equimunged, in a joint severe, heidman, apella to indicate that the spiritual brethren.

Russell Sage denies that he has been invited by the president to organize an opposition post to the American Pacific. There was a few millions to be made Russell is not a politician for etiquette.

Even the small will begin. We refer especially to the Philadelphia Ledger, which the New Yorker has been accustomed to sitting two or three hours in the Broadway cable car, waiting for the cable to start up again.

Sarah Bernhardt refused several years ago to play in Berlin because she hated the Germans. She refused to play there, but the proper authority refused her a license, remaining with certain politicians, if she would permit as to permit a lady to contradict herself. There is only one thing to do for her to be prevented. The president and the war must do each other over again, and keep it until they make the little killer fly.

Annie Besant discovers that the women of this country are too restless, and that it is a natural result of their growing superiority to the American man. Apparently restless in her view, in an ambition, but the cure of it, through some process looking to inferiority, is not to be thought of at a moment. The man must do his share. He must take the chief authority, and it is his duty to reflect that on the whole he can't do it.

Up to the time of this writing, the yellow fever epidemic which has been disastrous than any other occasion of the coming of this disease. The results have been low, and the number of cities there has been no fault. It would be interesting to know how far this mitigation of horrors is the result of the amicable course of the authorities and the newspapers. Apparently the epidemic facts have been given out, and they, with such authority as the situation of the people have calmly and heroically faced the danger which they know. Every night there is a great revival, and the panic is one of the nourishing conditions of the plague.

Since 1868, or during the last twenty-nine years, Cuba has been in open revolt nearly thirteen years. In the ten years was very costly in blood and treasure, both to the mother country and to the island, and there had not been great recovery from its ravages when the present insurrection broke out in February, 1895. The last uprising the Spanish government has sent to Havana more than 250,000 men, and the number of the youth and chivalry of the nation, which it is admitted more than 45,000 have been killed in battle or disease, and it is probable that the number of the young men have been sent back to Spain crippled by wounds or broken by disease, to be burdens upon the communities in which they live.

The Chicago Record has prepared a postal savings bank bill which will undoubtedly be introduced in congress next month. The idea is a good one, and in a general way will meet with the approval of almost every political party. The bill as drafted has some faults, however, which will undoubtedly be remedied by amendments allowing the depositors a limited amount, together with the privilege of checking out whenever they please. Another desirable provision allows the postoffice department to loan to national banks and on state and municipal government bonds. This section will probably be amended with the provision that no money shall be loaned on bonds bearing date previous to passage of said bill, and that all bonds shall be made and redeemed made after such bill becomes law. With these amendments the bill would undoubtedly give general satisfaction.

Walter J. Howard of South Bend, Ind., is no longer a detective. Last week he started out on his own hook to "run down" thieves, and he varied and fruitless experiences in Council Bluffs, Superior and Buffalo, the thieves at last have him. The other night Walter J. was held up in Chicago and robbed of his pocketbook and watch. The only thing of any value about him overlooked was a gold filled teeth. Mr. Howard says the criminal classes will henceforth have all ways for all of him. He has returned to South Bend.

The controversy over the use of "Miserables" in the girls' high school of Philadelphia has resulted in the adoption of an abridged edition of the famous work. This leaves the young women to get the unabridged edition for their personal use.

They say the German emperor thinks his future peril lies in the direction of England; and do we not know that his imperial highness has frequently thought that speaking would do him and Germany great good?

TALMAGES' SERMON.

DYNAMITE IS NOW UNDER OUR GREAT CITIES.

From the Text: "The Hour of our Wrath is now upon us, because we have despised his Word."—Isaiah 66:24.

Y mis homely but I will say this for the bad influence which in these times broke in upon God's heritage, as with a whip, snout upon the people's prosperity. What was the cause of this? There have been enough trees of righteousness to overshadow the whole earth, had it not been for the avenger who bowed them down. The people of the world have been completed, had it not been for the "innovators" who defaced the walls and battered down the pillars of the whole earth. There have been enough trees of righteousness to overshadow the whole earth, had it not been for the avenger who bowed them down. The people of the world have been completed, had it not been for the "innovators" who defaced the walls and battered down the pillars of the whole earth.

There is a class of upstart and obnoxious people who are now in the way of the progress of the world. They are the "innovators" who defaced the walls and battered down the pillars of the whole earth. They are the "innovators" who defaced the walls and battered down the pillars of the whole earth. They are the "innovators" who defaced the walls and battered down the pillars of the whole earth.
