CROSS-EXAMINATION

Could Not Weaken Such Testimony As This.

(From the Kalamazoo Telegraph.)

The following statement is one of great interest to many a citizen of Kalamazoo, and a man as well known as Mr. Wallace should carry more than ordinary weight with your readers. Here it is as taken down by our representative:

"My name is John A. Wallace. I am a member of the firm of J. A. Wallace & Co., doing business as tinners, etc., at 106 Eleanor Street, Kalamazoo, in which city I also reside. For the past nine or ten months I have been having attacks of kidney complaint, the pain in my back, over my hips was very severe at times; my urinary system was also in a bad state, of derangement, sometimes the urine was scanty and then again the amount would be excessive, and a difficulty of passage always existed. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills at a time when I felt that I was going to be sick, but their use warded off an attack, and I am now feeling very much better. My urinary organism has resumed a healthy condition, and the terrible pain in my back is rarely noticed in severity, while it is now fast going away altogether. I am continuing the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, with positive feeling that they will effect in me a permanent and speedy cure. I have unbounded confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy for all kidney ailments, and feel good reason to be, as they have done so much for me."

Can you ask any more than this? Doan's Kidney Pills are relieving more backs of the burdens they have been forced to bear through the kidneys than all other means devised, and, better still, they are doing this right here in Michigan. Ask any one who has ever taken them and see what they will say.

THE CHANGE OF LIFE.

Intelligent Women Prepare for the Trying Ordeal.

A Time When Women Are Susceptible to Many Dread Diseases.

The anxiety felt by woman as the "change of life" draws near, is not without reason.

When her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of any organ, it is during this period likely to become active and with a host of nervous irritations, these make life a burden. Then comes Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a constructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, headache, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and irritableness, dizziness, etc., are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life where woman's great change may be expected. Though still at this critical time consult Mrs. Pinkham, and conduct their habits according to her advice.

and with the Vegetable Compound as a help through that distressing time with perfect safety and comfort. Mrs. W. L. Day, of Bettsville, Ohio, says:—

"When all else failed, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life. It carried me through the change of life all right, and I am now in good health. It also cured my husband of kidney trouble."

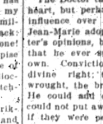
But the boy could never be brought to see that he had done anything wrong when he stole. Nor, indeed, did the Doctor think; he had; but that gentleman was never very scrupulous when in want of a retort:

"And now," he concluded, "do you begin to understand? My only friends were those who ruined me. Greig has been my academy, my canaterium, my heaven of innocent pleasures. If millions are offered me, I wave them back: Retro, Sathanas!—Evil one, begone! Fix your mind on Greig, and despise riches, avoid the debasing influence of cities. Hygiene—hygiene and mediocrity of fortune—those be your watchwords (spring, Jack!)."

The Doctor's system of hygiene strikingly coincided with his tastes; and his picture of the perfect life was a faithful description of the one he was leading at the time. But it is easy to convince a boy, whom you supply with all the facts for the discussion. And besides, there was one thing admirable in the philosophy, and that was the enthusiasm of the philosopher. There was never anyone more vigorously determined to be pleased; and if he said a great deal, and said it loud, he had a right to convince the intellect, he was certainly something of a poet, and had a fascination to seduce the heart. What he could not achieve in his customary humor of a radiant admiration of himself and his circumstances, he sometimes effected in his fits of gloom.

"Boy," he would say, "I envy you to-day. If I were superstitious, I should even beg for an interest in your prayers. I am in the black fit, the evil spirit of Kitty Skid, the roar of the merchant Abudah, the carnal devil of the mediæval monk, is with me—is in me," tapping on his breast. "The stew-pot of my nature are now uppermost; innocent pleasures woo me in vain; I long for Paris, for my wallowing in



CHAPTER VIII.

HE Doctor's carriage was a two-wheeled gig with a hood, a kind of vehicle in much favor among country doctors. On how many roads has one not seen it, a great way off, between the poplars! In how many village streets, tied to a gate-post! this sort of chariot is affected, particularly at the trot—by a kind of stifling the mire. 'See,' he would continue producing a handful of silver, 'I demande myself, I am not to be trusted with the price of a fare. Take it, keep it for me, squander it on delicious candy, throw it in the deepest of the river—I will homologate your action. Save me from that part of myself which I disown. If you are fog father, do not hesitate: if necessary, wreck the train. I speak, of course, by a parable. Any extremity were better than for me to reach Paris alive!'

Doubtless the Doctor enjoyed these little scenes, as a variation on his part; represented the Byronic element in the somewhat artificial poem of his existence; but to the boy, though he was dimly aware of their theatricality, they represented more. For the time, at least, the light shone for Jean-Marie. "Could not riches be used well?" he asked.

"In theory, yes," replied the Doctor. "But it is found in experience that no one does so. All the world imagine they will be exceptional when they grow wealthy; but possession is debasing, new desires spring up, and the silly taste for ostentation puts out the heart of pleasure."

"Then you might be better if you had less?" said Jean-Marie.

"Certainly not," replied the Doctor; but his voice quavered as he spoke.

"Why?" demanded pitiless innocence.

CHAPTER VII.

DOCTOR DESPREZ saw all the colors of the rainbow in the visible universe appeased to be about disappearing from him, "Because," said he—affecting deliberation after an obvious pause—"because I have formed my life for my present income. It is not good for men of my years to be violently dissevered from their habits."

That was a sharp brush. The Doctor breathed hard, and fell into taciturnity for the afternoon. As for the boy, he was delighted with the resolution of his doubts; even wondered that he had not foreseen the obvious and conclusive answer. His faith in the Doctor was a stout piece of goods. Despres was inclined to be a sheet in the wind's eye after dinner, especially after Rhone wine, his favorite weakness. He would then remark upon the warmth of his feeling for Anastasie, and with inflamed cheeks and a loose, flustered

Presented at Court.

A young woman about to be presented at court, receives the fullest instructions as to her "bearing," and is told how to dress, how to manage her train, how to courtesy correctly. Every incident is carefully rehearsed so that she may commit no blunder in the presence of royalty. If all this trouble is worth while for the satisfaction of one brief moment, how infinitely more important it is that a young girl about to enter into the sacred precincts of womanhood, should be properly instructed in all that concerns a life-time of joy, health, happiness, or disappointment and misery.

Every mother ought to see to it that her daughters are healthy and strong as well as manly boys. She ought to make them aware that any neglect or improper treatment of the special functions of womanhood may result in life-long weakness and disease.

Any mother or daughter may write confidentially to Dr. R. V. Pierce, and obtain without cost the advice of a physician of large experience in the treatment of women's diseases, and in well eminent specialist in this particular field of practice. His "Favorite Prescription" cures completely and permanently those painful and delicate ailments, with the attendant nervousness, sick headache, backache, dragging-down sensations, nervous exhaustion, prostration, "all gone" feeling, and blues, that make the lives of so many women miserable. Mailed, sealed, in plain wrapper, on receipt of 50 cents in stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Her letters will be answered free of charge, and held sacredly confidential. IMPORTANT AND INTERESTING MATTERS IN BRIEF.

Plucky Little Greece Still Declines to be Bulldozed, but is Willing to Meet the Powers Half Way in Peaceably Settling the Cretan Trouble.

Greece Defies the Powers.

The Grecian cabinet held a protracted meeting, at which it was finally decided to issue a note to the powers saying it is impossible to withdraw the Greek troops from Crete, because it would lead to pillage, murder and incendiarism the moment the Greek troops disappeared. The note also points out that the Cretans, who alone should be regarded as entitled to determine their fate, have declared their unalterable resolution, to be annexed to Greece as the only solution that will finally pacify the island.

King George has sent orders to Col. Vassos, commanding the Greek forces in Crete, to hold all the positions now occupied by him. Every effort is being made to concentrate the Greek troops on the Thessalian frontier before the threatened blockade of the Greek coast can be effected.

The trains are bringing in thousands of reserves from the provinces, and those already guarding the streets of Athens with their accoutrements. Great crowds join the soldiers in hurrahing for war and proclaiming loyalty to Greece, to King George and to the government. The decree summoning the remainder of the reserves was held back at the last moment. The troops already in the provinces are deemed sufficient for the present, and more than this, it is believed that the presence of foreign men of war near the Piræus indicates that the blockade will commence at once, thus severing communication with the frontier by sea.

Some of the members of the foreign legations and other foreign residents have already left Athens and it is reported that several of the legations have advised all foreigners to leave Greece.

THE OLD AND THE NEW.

Fifty-fourth Congress Dies and the Fifty-fifth is Ready for Business.

SENATE.—64th day.—The closing day of the Fifty-fourth congress found the Senate with decks almost cleared. All of the appropriation bills were passed excepting the deficiency bill which was allowed to go over. The bill was passed providing for a labor commissioner to investigate the condition and needs of labor and report within two years. No action was taken on the President's veto of the immigration bill. Vice-President Stevenson temporarily surrendered his chair to Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, when a resolution was offered by Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, and it was unanimously adopted, tendering to the vice-president the thanks of the Senate for the dignified, impartial and courteous manner in which he had presided over its deliberations. A resolution to the same effect was offered by Mr. Faulkner, of West Virginia, thanking Mr. Fry, of Maine, as president pro tem. for the terms used being "courteous, dignified and able." Senators Hoar, of Massachusetts, and Brice, of Ohio, were appointed to notify the President of the readiness to adjourn and they had some further communications to make. At 12:13 Mr. Hoar reported that the committee had been requested to wait upon the President to extend his congratulations to congress and the country and to say that he had no further communications to make. As soon as the report was made the vice-president-elect was announced, and all stood up while Mr. Hobart walked down the aisle to the vice-president's desk and took a chair there reserved for him to the right of Vice-President Stevenson. At 12:23 the President and President-elect were announced, and the assemblage stood while Mr. McKinley and Mr. Hobart walked slowly up the main aisle and took the seats reserved for them. Then, in the presence of the Senate, the House, the President and President-elect and the diplomatic corps Garret A. Hobart took the oath of office as vice-president, and took the chair. Mr. Stevenson delivered a very well address after which Vice-President Hobart called upon the blind chaplain, Rev. Milburn, for prayer and then the vice-president declared the Fifty-fifth congress opened, after which he made a speech and called upon the senators present to take the oath of office. All present were sworn in and at 12:33 the Senate was declared adjourned for the day. Hot session. The appropriation bills were all passed and the House adjourned sine die and the Representatives marched over to the Senate wing to participate in the ceremonies there, as related above.

McKinley's Cabinet Confirmed.

The Senate of the Fifty-fifth congress convened in extra session with Vice-President Hobart presiding, to transact such business as was required by the production of a new chief executive. The first important matter after the forming of the new Senate was the confirmation of President McKinley's cabinet, as follows:

Secretary of State, John Sherman, of Ohio.

Secretary of the Treasury, Lyman J. Gage, of Illinois.

Secretary of War, Russell A. Alger, of Michigan.

Attorney-General, Joseph McKenna, of California.

Postmaster-General, James A. Gary, of Maryland.

Secretary of the Navy, John D. Long, of Massachusetts.

Secretary of the Interior, Cornelius N. Bliss, of New York.

Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, of Iowa.

A compliment was paid Mr. Sherman by the immediate confirmation of his appointment, while the others were referred to committees. Mr. Gage met with some opposition from silver senators on account of his gold views. Senator Teller was the principal speaker, and he rubbed Mr. Bliss because he was a business man and not a lawyer and, according to the Senator, this unfitted him for the interior portfolio. "All the nominations were finally confirmed, however, and then Senator-elect Hanna, of Ohio, was sworn in.

Col. John Henderson, vice-president of the Florida Central railroad, has been appointed by Gov. Bloxham to be U. S. senator from that state.

President McKinley has issued a proclamation formally calling for an extraordinary session of the Fifty-fifth congress to assemble March 15.

Four children and a nurse were walking on a Big Four trestle at Terre Haute, Ind., when a fast express dashed down upon them. The woman and two children reached the end in time, but the other little ones were knocked off and drowned.

"SHERIFF" FISHER.

The Union Silverites Frontier Candidate Interviewed by a Reporter on His Record—Issues Referred to.

From the Vikings' Lawrence Mich.

Learning of the recovery of Mr. George W. Fisher, of Lawrence, Mich., from his recent illness, and being informed that his attributed his recovery to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a reporter called at his home and he obtained the following statement which is sworn to.

Geo. W. Fisher is a strong Republican and nominee for the office of Sheriff of Van Buren Co., Michigan, upon the Union Silver ticket, being first duly sworn, deposes and says that during the winter of 1895 his system became run down, his blood out of order, continually tired out, and scarcely able to oversee his flouring mill. Any little scratch of the skin immediately caused a sore which grew in size and became very painful. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People being recommended to him by his wife and the neighbors, he was finally persuaded, though first only procuring a box and using it and one box according to directions, and found perfect health, and should I injure the skin anywhere on my body, the sore heals without assistance. I attribute the work to

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not looked upon as a patent medicine, but rather as a prescription. An analysis of their properties shows that they contain, in condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, and the tired feeling resulting from overwork, worry, grief, disease or anything from exhausted humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.
