QUEER AND CURIOUS THINGS AND EVENTS.

Some People's Food—Foreigners in a Land Generally Averse to Old Country Methods of Cooking and Eating—The Crowned Crane.

The Gully Heasel. GULLY, Judge, and I own the house. I slipped away from my work in the middle of the night. They nabbed me in the middle of the night. I had had it come in the middle of the night. Only, the constable on the hill. I had jumped the bill. I had the money with me. "Larceny" that's the proper word. "There's never a crime but has law."

Only, I wonder if law has law. That any one but the law to blame. Say did the constable on the hill. Tell you about the constable on the hill. Tell you of men who must leg or steal. To give their ladies and wives a fall. Yes, I have begged—and I'll tell you. I walked the roads and fields and the lanes. And asked for work with a pleading face. And came back empty for all my pains.

Gully, Judge—I own the crane. I have it in brass without delay. Only—please—work me double time. And send my family half the pay. Tell my children if ever they ask. That I was working my glowing tale. But for the love that I had for my wife. —Will Christian.

The Crowned Crane. The crowns of Kaffir cranes is a striking bird, nearly five feet in height and pale gray in color, the ruff and white chest-edges edged with crimson and the neck yellow. It is an attention attracter by its long neck, which is an object of desire among the natives of South and East Africa. It seeks the high water level, and to procure the turtle's shell for its less feathers wherewith to adorn their own heads. The crowned crane is found singly, in pairs, or in small flocks, sometimes associating with the Stanley or Parson's crane, in the vast areas of swampy ground, where it finds a livelihood. The nesting arrangements are unobscure from the human point of view, like other ground-building creatures, it selects a favorable site, usually in a shallow, constructs a conical mound of rushes or long rank grass, sometimes ankle-deep in water. In a slight depression announce the sale of French foods, in the French language, in the Hebrew quarters you will find that it is the kind of food that the Hebrews, no matter from what country they come, prefer that is sold in the shops. Where the Chinamen live, it is the foods that they prefer that you will find in the shops. These foods come from their native country. Thirty thousand ducks were sent to this country from China during the last season. These eggs are each wrapped in black mud. This mud, which is of the consistency of pulp, remains on the egg for many months. The yolk of the Chinese eggs is pink, not yellow like our flocks. These eggs are packed in boxes of twenty or twenty-five, but the Chinese do not like to eat them. The rice the Chinamen prefer is cooked to a jelly. Some of the Chinese are also a delicacy, and salted pigs are also a delicacy. You may think these are queer things to want to eat, but you must remember that the Chinese do not make a Chinaman shudder—that he can not conceive how you can wear the clothes you do, and that your babies, with their feet bound, are the Chinese little monsters. It is a matter of education and custom—Selected.

CAPTURE DON PEDRO.

When we went west in search of fortune, we got a thing at Golden Gulch and staked out our claim. In a month's time we had a thing to running all right, and were congratulating ourselves that the west was not so "wild and woolly" as it is represented. The yolk of the Chinese eggs is pink, not yellow like our flocks. These eggs are packed in boxes of twenty or twenty-five, but the Chinese do not like to eat them. Here is a story in War. History records that, according to Mr. Whitley Stokes in the London Athenaeum, in which he has been used in warfare as weapons against the Mexicans. The first is related by Apian, of the siege of the Misera in Pontus, by Lucullus in his attack on Mithridates. Turkeys were brought up, mounted on the backs of huge mines were made by the Romans. The people of Thessaly dug open the hillsides from above, and through the holes cast stones upon the enemy. Bears and other wild animals and hives or swarms of bees.

THREE HAPPY WOMEN.

Each Relieved of Periodic Pain and Backache. A Trio of Fervent Letters. Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my health was gradually being undermined. I suffered untold agony from my menstruation, backache, pain on top of my head and certain troubles. I concluded to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound, and found that it was all any woman needs who suffers with painful monthly periods. It entirely cured me. Mrs. G. W. Williams, 363 Madison St., Cincinnati, O.
