THE LIGHT OUT OF

INTERNATIONAL PRESS ASSOCIATION. In to say, except for Barbara, who was jubilant at having got her long holiday over and delighted to be at work

To Dorothy Barbara at this time was a wonderful story of which she was never tired.

For Barbara had been born and bred in the country, and had lived more years at Gravelly Hill than Dorothy could remember, and her comments on town people and town ways were something more than amusing.

"Ah! they did things in a queer sort of fashion at Halloway. My cousin Dick says he knows a girl named Dorothy—she's a plumper in quite a large way of business and has money

Now, as the two were still quartered at Colchester, it became a question of some importance for them to decide whether they should go back to his old abode after this. Colchester or its immediate neighborhood was, of course, an impossibility, as her whereabouts might be known, and Dick's real name, Dick suggested that she might go to Chelmsford and take rooms there for the time being, but Dorothy was not to be outdone in this. She had a plan

"I shall have Barbara," said Dorothy, smiling bravely.

"Yes, you'll have Barbara, but Barbara will not be necessary for you to answer," I do not have this complaint. I am leaving you, as it were, and I hate having to live, as it were, in the city, and I'm afraid always that some one will be seeing you, and that they may get hold of a wrong idea altogether, and I sometimes feel as if I should like to see that old savage at Ayler's Field."

"But, Dick dear, nobody will see me, and if they do they will think I am Dorothy," said Dorothy, with a smile.

"I shall have Barbara," said Dorothy, smiling bravely.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MOTHERS. A LETTER TO WOMEN.

Then in the village set, but to a girl situated as Dorothy was, London is a social blank. She knew nobody, and nobody knew her.

"But in town, in London town, it is all so different. It is true when you get known in London, the gossiping is nearly as bad as if you were the center of the world."

"The readers of this paper will be glad to hear that there has been a great deal of work done in the way of relief for the poor in London."

"Beauty is Blood Pure. Clean blood means a clean skin. No beauty without clean blood and healthy skin."

"Lanes Family Medicine. Makes the bowels regular. In order to be healthy this is necessary. Acts gently on the liver and kidneys."

"Worship falls into error from emotion while men are in the wrong. In the wrong of emotion."
