SCYTHE IN TREE.

The scythe seen in the singular position depicted in this picture has a unique history. The tree lited is located in the tewn of Warwick, Mans. Early in the civil war a certain James Bliss, while moving in the fields, suddenly decided to enlist. Hanging his scythe over the limb of a small pine tree, and requesting it to be left there until his return, he went to Athol cabout eight miles) and joined a resiment that was sent South. Unfortunately he succumbed to fever, and the scythe was never removed, with the
