LONGEVITY THE SUBJECT FOR LAST SUNDAY.

From Psalm, 91: 18. As follows: "With Long Life will I satisfy him."

It is a wise man who can always tell when he isn't certain. Some novelties reach the prologue rolling a great deal too long.

Patience ceases to be a virtue when it is extended to a rattle-scan-human or reptilian.

When a man has one foot in the grave he naturally objects to "getting there with both feet."

Happiness may come on herbs, but tradition does not record that she often fed with Nebuchadnezzar.

A Connecticut doctor admits that he kills incurable patients. He's a wise doctor if that is the only kind he ever kills.

Carlists are renewing their activity in the West. The recent attack of a quiet was probably due to the fact that they were too much absorbed in the West.

A woman married public in Colorado was recently inquired and sought legal advice as to what name she should use in the future.

Rosa Bonheur said: "I have no patience with women who demand the right to think. If I had got up a convention to discuss what might be the result of my painting The Horse Fair, you suppose my own sex would have decided in my favor?"

Ninety thousand children were instructed in the public schools of New York city last year. The value of such teaching, in reciting neatness, precision and economy.

My design is to show that practical religion is the friend of long life. I prove that, first, from the fact that makes the care of our health a positive Christian duty.

There are aged people who would have died twenty-five years ago but for the defense and the quietude of religion. You have no more natural resistance than hundreds of people.

Glory be to God for this robust, healthy religion. It will have a tendency to make you live long in this world, and in the world to come you will have eternal life.
