"CHRISTIANITY AS A DELUSION" THE SUBJECT.

From the West. Rev. Mr. J. H. ... He made His home in the light. Consulted with Images, He looked in the Liver.

(Copyright 1891 by Louis Klopsch.) The message of the king of Babylon propped to find out the will of God. He took a bundle of arrows, put them together, mixed them together, and then he looked at the inscription on it.

For reasons all can understand, the Turk probably never be a simulator or a gobbler. Georgia is engaged in confascating all the oil in sight. This smooth way of reaching the octopus.

Fish being rich in phosphorus and phosphorus being the essential thing in making matches, it therefore stands to reason that girls should be partial to a fish diet.

Senator Beveridge of Indiana, supposed to be lost, has been heard from at Nagasaki. The public generally doesn't know where Nagasaki is, but it is pleasing to learn that Beveridge is there.

One of the proverbial "long-fest" bids fair to be filled in the establishment of schools of domestic economy, which shall teach the arts of housekeeping and of caring for the self.

Robert Evans, who has just arrived at the tin mine in the Adirondack district, says that he has a tin mine in the Adirondack district, says that he has a tin mine in the Adirondack district.

The Supreme Court of Indiana has rendered a far-reaching decision in a suit brought by citizens of Portland against a natural gas and oil company which it was claimed had conspired into an illegal combination to raise the price of its product.

Every day that brings Admiral Dewey nearer home also brings increased evidence of the great esteem in which he is held by his countrymen.

Admiral Farragut, one of the most admired men of the American navy, early became a victim of this Christian delusion, and before his death he was giving some friends an account of his early life.

The statements of the Fall River mill accident, which ended July 20, of this year, indicate that the pressed cotton industry in New England, especially that part of it located in Fall River, is coming in slowly, it is true, but surely for some time has been its better times.

At Philadelphia a court-martial has officially decided that lovelomaking is not inconsistent with soldierly duty, and that a soldier may be married in his right hand while his left arm is wounded around the waist of a girl.

Simultaneously with the news that William Waldorf Astor has become a Baptist, comes the news that John J. Astor is organizing a company for service in the Philippines.

Love levels all ranks—except in Kentucky. There a man is either a major or a first as long as he pays his liquor bill.

perence would give it in broken style, but the one experience would be just as good as the other. Some of us have read everything. You are scientific and you are scholarly, and yet if I should ask you, "What is the most sensible thing you ever did?" you would say: "The most sensible thing I ever did was to give my heart to God."

But there may be others who have not had early advantages, and if they were asked to give their experience they would say: "I have never been to a meeting where I saw a man who was going to a prayer meeting. I said, 'I am going to a prayer meeting.' He said, 'There are a good many religions, and I think the most of them are delusions. I am only a Christian religion, and I think the most of them are delusions. I am only a Christian religion.' I said to him: 'Stranger, you see that tavern over there? Yes, he said, 'I see it.' 'Don't you see me? I am going to a prayer meeting. Now, the time was when every body in this town knows if I had a quarter of a dollar in my pocket, I could not pass that tavern without going in and getting a drink; all the people of Jefferson could not keep me out of that place; but God has changed my heart, and the Lord Jesus Christ has destroyed my thirst for strong drink, and there is my whole week's money in there, and I have no temptation to go in there, and stranger, if I had a notion, I want to tell you it is a mighty powerful notion; it is a notion that has put clothes on my children's backs, and it is a notion that has put good food on my table, and it is a notion that has filled my mouth with thanksgiving to God. And, stranger, you might better go along with me, for I am a religion, too; lots of people are getting religion now.'"

Well, we will soon understand it all. Your life and mine will soon be over. We will soon come to the last bar of the music, to the last act of the tragedy, to the last page of the book—yea, to the last line of the last word, and to you and to me it will either be midnoon or midday!

FOREIGN BODIES IN THROAT. Children, who act on the belief that the mouth was made before pockets, will swallow anything that comes in their way. Material used in its construction, pains-taking care in manufacturing details, ease in running, and handsome, symmetrical design are a few of its claims for superiority.

Older people may also suffer from swallowing things unintentionally while eating. A bit of bone is a peculiar troublesome thing to swallow in the gullet, but more dangerous still is a large piece of meat, which may slip into the stomach, and there it may remain for days, and sometimes for weeks, and sometimes for months, and sometimes for years, and sometimes for a lifetime.

Most articles swallowed, either by children or adults, cause no trouble, but if they are arrested in the gullet, they may cause most alarming symptoms of pain and suffering. Many cases are recorded in medical literature of grave suffering, and even death, from the lodgment in the gullet of a piece of meat, a piece of bone, a piece of potato, a piece of false teeth, and so forth.

The signs of an arrest of this sort are coughing, difficulty in catching the breath, pain and difficulty, or impossibility, of swallowing. When a small, sharp body, such as a pin or a fishbone, is causing trouble, it is better to try to bring it out first, rather than to let it down into the stomach. The latter course is usually the best, but it exposes the patient to the danger of scratching or perforation of the stomach or intestine by the sharp body.

If food has just been taken, vomiting may be induced by tickling the back of the throat with the finger or a feather. If there is no food in the stomach, the sufferer may drink a pint of milk and directly after take some rennet or a few drops of vinegar to curdle the milk; then, if vomiting is induced, the curds may catch the foreign body and bring it up.

Another plan is to swallow a loose ball of raw size of an English walnut, not attached to a stout thread, and then to pull it up. If it is impossible by any of these means to bring up the body, it will have to be removed by a surgeon. The patient should be kept in a recumbent position, and the head should be raised by pillows.

Photographs of Postmaster Gordon has presented to the Chicago post-office a set of photographs of the postmasters of Chicago, taken by a biographical sketch of each. The only photograph missing is that of the first postmaster, who, as a first learned, never sat for a picture. The pictures are framed by eleven inches of white paper, and are mounted on a frame five and one-half by seven-and-a-half feet. The work is sepi, and the frame is made of mahogany from the West Indies.

The back of the throat should be examined by the doctor for the body of the foreign body. The patient may be arrested at the throat, and if seen, can often be dislodged by the fingers of some improved instrument.

The Smallest Dwarf. The smallest man ever lived was the dwarf Bebe, born in France in 1740. He was just twenty inches high and weighed only seven pounds when full grown.

Office Of E. W. Jenks, M.D. Detroit, Mich. July, 1897. Mess. S. A. Sloan & Co. Gentlemen: I have carefully compared your old Diamond Wedding Whiskey with others that I have heretofore recommended for medicinal purposes, with the result that this comparison is most favorable to your article.

You have asked for my conscientious opinion of its merits as a medicinal, and I have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best ever prepared, and possesses the highest standard of excellence and purity.

Yours truly, E. W. Jenks, M.D.
