

TURNING OVER A NEW LEAF

A NEW YEAR'S STORY

New Year's Eve and home. The night of the year is the most beautiful of the year. The stars are shining brightly in the sky. The moon is full and round. The air is fresh and cool. The snow is falling softly from the sky. The children are playing in the snow. The old people are sitting in front of the fire. The whole world is in a happy mood.

What a beautiful night! The stars are shining brightly in the sky. The moon is full and round. The air is fresh and cool. The snow is falling softly from the sky. The children are playing in the snow. The old people are sitting in front of the fire. The whole world is in a happy mood.

DIRTY EATERS.

London, Jan. 10.—New York, Jan. 10.—The Greenback in the West Indes Have Many of Them.

You can't convince the coasts of the three islands. West India that there are no more to eating dirt. They are down a right to convince him but they don't. The rest of their dirt is spread around. For the most part they are vegetarians. They eat the potatoes and give especially the potatoes in green use. Most of the dirt is spread around. For the most part they are vegetarians. NOT PRONE.

The May Spook of a Tinkers Dam With out Profanity.

There is no profanity in saying that any certain thing is not worth a tinkers dam, although it is so considered by many. The expression is not new. It has been used for many years ago when talking on matters that the speaker was much cruder than it is now. In former times the use of such a term to the flow of water when placed on the dam was not considered profane. It is now the custom of the day to say that a thing is not worth a tinkers dam, and this is a much more profane expression than it was in former times.
