A man may shun other men, but he can't get away from himself.

It's always difficult for a man to get anywhere with a lame excuse.

Trusts not only have no souls, but they are also devoid of nationality.

A man may have much idea of home comfort in mind, but that wasn't made at home.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"LESSONS OF THE RIVER," SUBJECT THEREOF.

Isaiah 48: 18: "O That Thou Hadst Harkened to My Commandments! Then Had Thy Peace Been Like a River."

"In the anatomy of countries the arteries are its rivers, through which throb the life and the strength of nations. Along their banks cities have planted themselves, and the whistle of the factory answering to the whistle of the boat and the steady blow of the pilot-wheel is the music we are in a busy land accustomed to hear. Because the rivers, they shall not overflow thee."

"Yet, so inexorable are God's laws, Naaman the warrior, to be cured of his leprosy, had to wash in the troubled Jordan, the swiftly flowing, filthy waters of the despised Jordan. 'Absurd,' answered the Napoleon of the Damascene capital. Am I going to make a spectacle of myself? I am not a hireling. I can pay for a cure. My servants are carrying the presents of 10 talents of silver and 6,000 pieces of gold and 10 changes of raiment. And I have a letter of introduction from my royal master to the King of Jerusalem. Besides that, what right have you to ask me to bathe in the waters of the Jordan?
