IN LIFE'S MORNING

Mary B. Hanna's Sufferings Are Over and She Is Now at Rest.

Another one of Birmingham's fair daughters has gone from earth, and her home is in mourning, but the bereaved parents and friends are comforted by the thought that she is well with them love one, that the tired spirit is at rest. Thursday morning, June 14, Mary Hanna Seaward heard the call of the Master and her earthly suffering were ended.

Mary E. Hanna was born in Royal Oak, February 21, 1876, her mother dying at her birth. When quite young she attended the public schools in Birmingham for two years and then the State Normal four years graduating therein 1897. Commenced to teach in St. Clair the autumn following and continued her duties there until poor health obliged her eight months ago to return to her father's home in this village. Consumption had fastened itself upon her and no earthly power could stay its curse.

She joined the F. B. church several years ago, but had severed her connection with that society and was a communicant in the Congregational church at St. Clair, and expected to unite with it after her marriage, which was to have taken place this fall.

Through her long illness, 15 weeks of which she was confined to her bed, she never murmured and often said it the Lord had more work for her to do. He would raise her up, if not, she was willing to go. Day after day tokens of love and sympathy in the form of beautiful flowers came to the sick room, many handsome bouquets being sent from St. Clair, where she was a general favorite among the young people.

On Thursday morning, June 14th, the end came and she, as tired, child, she dropped off to sleep. The funeral was held at the home of her parents, Asburn Hanna, O. C. Farmer, funeral director of Pontiac, assisted by his wife, having charge of the ceremonies. Rev. Montrose B. Maxwell, of the F. B. church of this place, conducted the services after which she was laid to rest beside her mother in the Southfield cemetery. A large number of relatives and friends were present to pay their last respects to the departed, friends from Detroit, Warren, St. Clair, Farmington and Royal Oak being among the number. Teams to the number of fifty were in the procession on the last sad journey. The pall-bearers were the oldest unmarried cousins of the deceased and were Samuel, John, George and Cloud Hanna, Wiley and Robert Bell.

Through all pain at times she'd smile,
A smile of heavenly birth,
And when the angels called her home
She smiled farewell to earth.
Heaven's gain is earth's loss.
Earth the heaven's treasure.
And the sorrowful are comforted
Where angels sing their praises.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The Class of 19 Students Successfully Graduated from the B. H. S.

This has been a busy week in school circles at this place. Baccalaureate sermon Sunday, class Day Wednesday, and commencement proper Thursday, while the annual Banquet is to be given tonight. The largest class in the history of the school have finished the work there and are now ready to contend with the vexing problems of life. Thatsevery member of the class may succeed in the task before them is the earnest wish of all.

Sunday evening last the M. E. church was filled with a large audience who had assembled to listen to the baccalaureate address by Rev. B. S. Ninde, of Detroit, and the only fault found by any one was that the time was far too short, indeed, as it would have been a pleasure to have listened to the reverend gentleman an hour.

It is not often that our people are privileged to listen to such an able address as was delivered by Mr. Ninde Monday evening last. Point after point was illustrated showing the graduates how to succeed in life. The advice given them on this even should always be remembered and if followed out to the letter will prove of inestimable value in years to come. The song was indeed fortunate in securing Rev. B. S. Ninde to deliver the baccalaureate address.

On Wednesday class day, a large crowd gathered at the F. B. church on West Lawrence to witness the exercises given by the members of the class. The song service opened with the commencement song of 1900. A prayer rendered the occasion very impressive under the circumstances. Miss Mabel Hall, who was greatly appreciated. Miss Wattles then gave the class history which was cleverly appreciated. Miss Wattles then gave the class history which was cleverly appreciated.
