$61,500 Fire in Detroit.

The Detroit Journal building, at the corner of West Fort and Wayne streets, Detroit, the home of the Journal, was visited by fire about 8 o'clock on the morning of the 1st and the upper portions of the structure were completely gutted before the blaze was extinguished. The total loss is estimated at $61,500, which is covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. It is thought that faulty electric wiring may have been the cause. The Journal establishment is not only one of the handsomest in and most efficient in the state, but is one of the most [illegible]
