Queen & Crescent Route

Charleston, the "City of the South," is the only city in the South which is connected with all points North. But the great pleasure of the Queen & Crescent route is to visit Chattanooga and its beautiful, Asheville and the "Land of the Sky," Atlanta, the City of the South, and to return, if desired through the old battlefields of Virginia.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

He could not help thinking that it was the best as well as the quickest way out of his difficulties. Jenks and the lady would be provided for, for Jenks, his one desire was their welfare.

Everything had gone wrong with him lately. A few months back he had been traveling for an apparently successful manufacturing company, earning a salary which sufficed simply to maintain his wife and child in comfort and with the expectation of a speedy return to his home. It would allow him to pay off his debts.

He had been beset by a series of tasks of great weight, with the result that his health had become weak. The company had been unable to pay him for some time, and he had been obliged to work for a number of days at a time, and he had been obliged to work for a number of days at a time, and he had been obliged to work for a number of days at a time.

was slippery as glass. He stumbled and fell on the ice. People shrieked, the car pulled up with a sudden jerk, barely touching him as the big policeman dragged him almost from under the wheels. He heard a confusion of voices and knew that he had fallen; then he felt himself being consolingly and hoped that he was lying there all. The doctor had told him that his last illness had left his heart weak.

Then all was a blank until he opened his eyes to find himself in the hospital ward, under a physician's loving eye.

His recovery had been broken. He was now in a hospital ward, under a physician's loving eye.
