VETERANS IN CHICAGO

Thirty-Fourth Annual Reunion of Old Soldiers.

An army, grand but without guns, glorified but grizzled and decrepit, stormed Chicago Monday morning, looted the treasure houses of its hospitality, plundered its pleasures and sacked the city day and night while every citizen looked on approving and cried "Welcome" and "Well done." The scouts had been coming for a week, the skirmishing line started Sunday, the advance guard fell upon the city Sunday and all Sunday night the main army, 20,000 strong, was rushing forward.

Twenty thousand old men who care about weather and war overran the streets and parade. Dressed in army togs with badges and ribbons in the fatuous hope that old soldiers would wear them in peace or that old backs could bear loads before the battle, old bellies carry all I locust and "scrip" as they do after the battle. The streets were filled with them, rushing to and fro and generally losing themselves.

Every Train Was Crowded.

During the [illegible] the Chicago [illegible] Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago, Illinois Central, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, Michigan Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Wabash, Chicago & Atlantic, Chicago & Erie, Chicago & Western Indiana, Chicago & Grand Trunk, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis, Grand Trunk, Detroit, Grand Rapids & Western, Chicago & West Michigan, Toledo, Peoria & Western, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Chicago, Milwaukee & Northern, Illinois Central, Peoria, Decatur & Evansville, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Louisville, New Albany & Chicago, Chicago & Atlantic, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago, Chicago & Western Indiana, Chicago &