QUESTION ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers' and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart Failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system, and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and had with headaches and other ailments. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Sample bottles at Whitehead & Mitchell's.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she could not even sleep, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night, and with two bottles has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Lutz." This is that Yankee Jockeys have had a great run of engagements and the English are training their younger jockeys to ride American fashion.

Irrigation of Tea.

An investigation recently inaugurated by the United States Department of Agriculture promises if successful to promote the growing of tea. This is the irrigation of tea at Pinehurst, the home of Dr. C. U. Shepard, near Summerville, S. C. The labors of this gentleman have already produced interesting results. He has about fifty acres planted to tea, which will when in full bearing produce each year about 10,000 pounds. Last year it produced about one-third of this amount. His investigations have been continued long enough to make it manifest that in any part of the South where the temperature does not usually fall below 25° F. and never falls below zero tea can be successfully grown, but that in order to make it a complete success in all cases irrigation is necessary. The great obstacle in the way of making this industry a commercial success is the cost of production and the rudest means of reducing this cost is to increase the yield per acre. If more pounds per acre are grown, it means a less cost per pound for fertilizers and cost of cultivation, picking and preparing will have to be traversed.

The need of irrigation to stimulate the growth of foliage is shown by a comparison of the rainfall at summer resorts with that of other tea growing districts. This is given by Dr. Shepard's report and shows that the precipitation during the tea growing season at that point is only about one half to one quarter of that of the tea-growing districts of India and China. Summerville is within twenty miles of Charleston, S. C. The rainfall at Charleston from May to September is only 31.3 inches, while the rainfall of the tea growing districts of India and China for the same period varies from 60 to 111 inches. Through the co-operation of Dr. Shepard and Elwood Mead, the irrigation expert of the office of Experiment Stations, plans have been made for the construction of a storage reservoir sufficient to hold water enough for a season's irrigation of one of the tea gardens. This reservoir will be filled from a well-dug to a depth of twenty feet and supplied by the underflow of a neighboring stream. The tea garden to be irrigated is planted in rows five feet apart. These rows have a fall of four inches in one hundred feet, which gives ample fall for distributing water and for underdrainage should this prove necessary. In order to test the relative merits of surface and sub-irrigation about one-half of this plat will be served by means of tile placed one foot beneath the surface and laid down between the rows. The distance between these tiles will therefore be five feet, and the water will have to percolate laterally two and one-half feet to moisten the ground around the plants. Another portion of the garden will be irrigated by surface furrows run on each side and one foot from the plants. In order to test the difference between the growth and productiveness of the irrigated and non-irrigated portions a small part of this garden will be left unwatered.

An interesting feature connected with this extension of irrigation is the fact that a part of the farm on which tea is being grown was formerly devoted to the production of indigo and was irrigated. The production of this crop finally became unprofitable and was abandoned, but the remains of the ditches can yet be seen.

It will probably require several years to fully determine the extent to which this form of agriculture can be extended in the south. Even without the aid of irrigation tea has been grown with profit, but if it is believed a material increase can be made in the yield through the application of this process, and an improvement in the quality of the product as well there is little reason to doubt that the time is near at hand when the country will have made another acquisition adapted to its capacity to successfully self sustaining.

Horses in the North Central Division.

The census report of domestic animals, just published, credits Illinois with 2,385,550 horses, of which 253,000 are animals two years old and under three, and 1,132,000 are colts of one year and under two years. It is incredible that the supply of colts under one year is only 2,000, but it serves to emphasize the predictions of the Farmers' Review relative to a horse famine after the next few years. Indiana has a still smaller stock of colts to report, the number of horses over two years of age being 1,210,000, the number of colts one year and under two, 1,410, and of colts under one year, 1,750. This Missouri has a total of 1,900,000 horses, including 1,200,000 horses over two years old and over, 324,000 colts one and under two years, 1,064 colts under one year. Kansas has 1,217 Michigan's supply of two year old horses is given as 104,000, of colts one and under two years, 223, of colts under one year, 1,500. Nebraska has 1,000,000 horses, including 700,000 two years old and over, 1,811 under one year. Wisconsin has 1,146 two year olds, 870 colts one year and under two years, and 874 under one year. Iowa has 1,117,272 horses, including 1,000,000 over 2,000 one year and under two, and 2,000 colts under one year, a larger number of young colts than is credited to any other state. Kansas is reported as having 957,000 horses two years old and over, 1,182 one year old and under two, and 1,775 under one year. Kentucky, so famed for its horses, is allowed 1,200,000 horses two years old and over, 565 colts one year and under two, and 1,000 colts under one year. Ohio has 1,000,000 horses two years old and over, 676 colts one year and under two, and 1,000 colts under one year.

It was generally thought that English jockeys could give pointers to the world in the matter of horse racing. But Tod Sloan went over and showed them a new style, by means of which he beat the best jockeys in England. He sat much further forward than the English riders, and it has been found by actual test that a rider so perched, besides being easier on the horse's wind, enables the horse to make from four to seven inches longer stride than if he rode in the good old English style. The result of this is that Yankee jockeys have had a great run of engagements and the English are training their younger jockeys to ride American fashion.
