It takes a man to be stuck on [illegible] at the station of a Texas oil well.

An Irish philosopher says that it is useless for a man to try to succeed in life without trying.

Jinks—So he married the widow? I thought he had his eyes on the daughter. Waggles—So he had, but the widow had her eyes on him.

"She told me she would like to spread and cheese and kissed me." Friend "What then?" "She found out that he expected pains to furnish the bread and cheese."

Viola (aged 4)—Mamma can I give one of my dolls away? Mamma—Why, dear, what do you want to give one away for? Viola—Because I find twins too great a charge.

Jinks—How much do you think a minister ought to get for marrying a couple? Filkins—Well, if wholly unacquainted with them perhaps he might be let off with six months.

Willie—Pa, who was Shylock? The Father—Goodness boy! You go bend church and Sunday school every week and don't know who Shylock was? You ought to be ashamed of yourself.

Mrs. Frill—I see that I have received your Bible. I am going to begin right away to give you a little training in the art of waiting on people. You see my daughter leaves us next month. Bridget—Indade, mum. At how long was she sint up for?

Littlewit—Oh, yes; I've got a situation, but it's pretty hard work. I'm after a good soft thing, though, and I'm going to get it, too. If I can only keep my head about me. Miss Peppery—I don't doubt it. You'll surely find a soft thing if you only keep your head about you.

Sunday School Teacher—Faith, children, is believing in the existence of something we can't see. For example, when you buy bananas, you know that there is a delicious fruit inside the tough skin. Do you understand? Children—Yes, ma'am. Sunday School Teacher—Well, what is faith? Children—Bananas.

LITERARY NOTES.

The latest book by the versatile queen of Roumania is [illegible] entitled "A Real Queen's Diary." It has just been published. Carmen Sylva is very fond of children and considers the fairy tale the best method of teaching them the highest principles of right living in an entertaining man-
