FOUNDED FEMAINS.

NOTE: FIGURE OF FORTY YEARS AGO.

When a full-fledged Revolutionary War hero and—James Stephens in His Day Overhauled O'Connell and Other Leaders of the Irish Cause.

(Special Letter)

To those interested in the National Movement in Ireland the name of James Stephens, who died in Dublin a few days ago, is little more than a memory. They have heard of him as a great British leader of other days, but he is not remembered as such for those who remember O'Connell and Parnell. Nearly half a century ago, however, James Stephens was the most prominent revolutionary in a sort of which he believed in liberating his country by physical force, and at one time he was all but successful in organizing a well-developed revolutionary organization.

JAMES STEPHENS chosen head center for the United States.

With the close of the civil war many Irishmen who had won fame in the Union army on southern battlefields returned to Ireland, having been led to believe, through students' representations that a good sized army of Irish patriots had already been organized and equipped and was only waiting for competent commanders. Among those who returned to Ireland at the time were Finneas Michael, Kerwin, Denis Donoghue, P. Burke, of the Irish Brigade, James Williams, Captain Thomas of Kelly, Captain James Murphy and John Nolan. When these distinguished soldiers had been in Dublin for a time they became disaffected with Stephens' methods. When it was urged upon him that the time for action had arrived, Stephens insisted upon a delay, and he was openly accused of being a traitor, of being vain and altogether incompetent.

What might have happened had the revolution actually begun on one occasion. The fact is that the British government set out to destroy Stephens' plans for a Republic in Ireland. Stephens' government, a suburb of Dublin, through the aid of the famous lawyer, Dawson, and on the morning of Saturday, November 11, 1865, the agitator was arrested and lodged in Richmond, Ireland.

He was remanded for examination, but before he could be brought into court again he had escaped from prison, chiefly through the efforts of Captain John Kerwin, who now lives in New York. Stephens made his way to France and thence to the United States, where he was arrested with great honor in New York by the United States government. In November, 1866, when he was again in the United States, Stephens was arrested and held in prison for a short time, but he was again set at liberty.

BICYCLES
$22 1/2

As the price is $35.00
As the "Elk" our price is $22.50

Our suggestion the manufacturers of a certain well known wheel to furnish us one thousand of their 1910 machines at a special price, provided they be allowed to substitute a name plate. You see, the wheel is sold at regular agencies for $35, and it would be fair to representatives in this vicinity if we were allowed to advertise and sell it at a lower price under the right name.
