

TWO WOMEN.

I know two women, and one is chaste. And old as the snows on a Winter waste, Stand over me in tact and thought. As a man, I'm dumb, in his speech ere mine, For she had looked toward her kind. Her eyes, the world for me, and a good word, And a word of grace, and a word of rest. She judges the world by her narrow girth, A breaker of quarrels, a broker of love. Yet she holds the lives of Society's great.

The other woman, with heart of flame, Went mad for a love that married her name. And out of the grave of her murdered brother, She rose like a god that has passed through pain. Her arms are made for hearts that bleed, Her voice is the voice of the meek and lowly Prince, Who is the son of man, and the son of God. Her words are the words of the meek and lowly Prince, Who is the son of man, and the son of God.

Her words are the words of the meek and lowly Prince, Who is the son of man, and the son of God. Her words are the words of the meek and lowly Prince, Who is the son of man, and the son of God.

The Log Rolling.

It was a fine day in the month of August, and the sun shone brightly upon the hills. The log rollers were at work, and the air was filled with the sound of axes and the roll of logs. The logs were being rolled down the hills, and the men were working hard to get them down. The scene was one of industry and effort.

There were many log rollers at work, and the hills were covered with logs. The men were working hard to get the logs down the hills, and the scene was one of industry and effort. The logs were being rolled down the hills, and the men were working hard to get them down.
