

PURIFYING WATER SUPPLY.

THE TRIFOLIUM FILTER PLANT AT LAWRENCE, ON THE MERIMAC RIVER.

When the Massachusetts State Board of Health, in 1882, began its work on the purification of the water supply of Lawrence, it was a task of no small magnitude. The water supply of Lawrence was at that time a simple one, consisting of a few wells in the city, which were not only unimproved but were also unimproved in the sense that they were not protected from contamination. The water was drawn from a few wells in the city, which were not only unimproved but were also unimproved in the sense that they were not protected from contamination. The water was drawn from a few wells in the city, which were not only unimproved but were also unimproved in the sense that they were not protected from contamination.

THE DRAMATIC STORY OF THE MICROBE has frequently been told since it was established the germ theory of fermentation, but there is something unique in the accomplishment of such a feat as the purification of water by means of a filter. The water of the Merrimac River is not only unimproved but is also unimproved in the sense that it is not protected from contamination.

To Make River Water Safe.

From experiments in Lawrence and in the biological laboratories of the Massachusetts State Board of Health, it has been demonstrated that the water of the Merrimac River is not only unimproved but is also unimproved in the sense that it is not protected from contamination.

New Game of Ball and How to Play It.

A good variation of the American game of baseball and one which needs no particular preparation is known as the club ball. This game may be played by any number of boys, from two to twenty. All the outfit needed is a rubber ball, a club, which can be picked up
