Scene of Nation's Grief at the Cemetery.

REMOVED FROM THE CAPITAL. Impressive Scenes at the Capital Moved to a Church to Witness the Sad Ceremonies. Notable Personages Day Trips to Nation's Mournful Seat.

Washington, D.C., Sept. 13.—The body of McKinley was borne to the train that left for Canton at 7:30 p.m. The same funeral cortege that formed the procession from the White House to the capital, also made up the parade to the train.

At 1 o'clock while the tremendous crowd was surging toward the east entrance to the grounds thousands of people, many of whom were women and children, were caught in a crush at the foot of the main staircase.

Temporary arrangements for him during the funeral were to have been made for the church.

Some of women and children faint and many were taken to the hospital where no word of a death was given.

DESCRIPTION OF THE FUNERAL CORTAGE. Followed National Dead.
