Kipling must have told the truth, from the way his brother Britons squirm.

Common sense is one of those admirable qualities that never hide their light under a bushel.

A process has been discovered for the reduction of milk to powder. It begins outside the cow.

It is a large mouthful which President Castro has bitten off, and he may yet find difficulty in chewing it.

The powers have resumed the harmless and diverting pastime of sending joint notes to the Sultan of Turkey.

Just as it seems to be a personal matter between Von Buelow and Chamberlain why not let them step into the alley and settle it?

Insanity is on the increase in England, according to statistics; there are, it seems, more muddled oafs there than formerly.

John D. Rockefeller is chopping wood at his country home as a means of health. Other fellows do it as a means of wealth.

A heavy load has been added to the Wagner style of music, which is now universally held to be responsible for the popularity of rag-time.

An Omaha man has been refused by fifty-six girls to whom he proposed. He should be wary, however. The fifty-seventh might surprise him.

Congressman McCleary protests that other eminent men besides soldiers and sailors should be honored with statues. There are too many of us.

At a scientific meeting in New York the other day the translation of a Babylonian deed 8,000 years old was read by a professor of ancient languages.

At the recent United Irish league meeting in Dublin, through some oversight, no delegates were appointed to represent the society at the king's coronation.

An American missionary has been arrested in Japan for cracking a native boy on the head with a Bible. Perhaps there was no other way of getting the truth into it.

Nicaragua is buying war materials in Germany. If Germany can get all the war material trade in Central and South America she ought to enjoy quite a boom.

By invitation, forty bartenders attended service in a Cleveland church the other day. They all kept awake, and not a single poker chip was taken up in the collection.

As between Jane Hading's advice to girls not to marry and Mme. Marni's that it is their duty to marry, most young women will continue to manifest a strong sense of duty.

It is a mistake to argue that when a gentleman and lady go sleigh-riding she should sit on his left side, in order that his right arm may be free. At such a time either arm is the right one.

The coeds of Northwestern university have been warned that the sweater is not a proper masculine garment for female society, but they will continue to tolerate it for the sake of what's in it.

The largest locomotive works in the world will be established in Canada because she has the cheapest steel and the cheapest labor. We have no use for cheap labor, and the other is a very cheap steal.

The woman in Spring Valley, N. Y., who vowed 30 years ago not to speak to her husband again while she lived, and has just died with the vow unbroken, must have been an extraordinary female character.

It is rather difficult to decide which to admire the more, Mr. Morgan bidding $1,000,000 for the Borghese Titian, "Sacred and Profane Love," or the Italian government refusing to part with it for that great sum of money.

The cable companies may have a monopoly of the telegraph business between England and Newfoundland, but we will warrant that there is nothing in their charter that gives them the exclusive use of the atmosphere. Marconi will have his innings yet.

The excepted classes under the proposed new law to exclude the Chinese are required to have photographs attached to their tickets of admission. This is the first intimation from official sources that all Chinamen do not look alike.

An Indiana editor suddenly lost his reason the other day, his insanity having been revealed by an editorial he had written. He is now confined in a padded cell. This fable teaches us the advantage of editing a newspaper in New York, where insanity is regarded as enterprise.

Without a word of unmanly complaint a Nona, Tex., correspondent writes to his paper: "The Cameron company is about to locate a sawmill in our midst." Think of a buzzsaw going through the poor fellow's midst!

LATEST NEWS IN MICHIGAN.

The Grand Rapids Bribery Case Put Over.

ADAMS AND FRENCH CASE ENDS

A Crazy Man at Large—Terwilliger and His Flight—A Catastrophe in Detroit—Lapeer as a Beet Market—Various Happenings Throughout the State.

Terwilliger Again.

Interest in the case of Banker H. H. Terwilliger is again aroused in Montague. A couple of months ago he ran away, leaving his bank, home, wife and two children, for the sake of Minnie Schneider, the daughter of the man who ran Terwilliger's farm. The affair died out for a while, and is being revived by a definite rumor that it was a sure case of blackmail. A prominent resident is now away, negotiating between Terwilliger and his wife, and says that in a few months Terwilliger will give the girl up, and Mrs. Terwilliger will take up her home in Montague, and go to the husband of her youth. It is almost a certainty now, however, that Terwilliger was forced to go to what he now wants to return back to Montague. Those who know won't tell where he is. They think his creditors will be paid in full.

Ends the Adams Case.

On a writ of habeas corpus the Supreme Court released Charles H. Pratt, who was committed by Judge Wiest last week for refusing to testify in the Adams case. Pratt's attorneys contend that he was irregularly subpœnaed as a witness, having been brought into the state by order of the court for a different purpose, and further more, that he could not be made to disclose the secrets of the grand jury room nor forced to testify in view of his claim of constitutional privilege. It is believed that the failure to force Pratt to testify means that the cases against French and Adams will end.

Lapeer Will Buy Beets.

Though the Lapeer Beet Sugar Co. failed to get a factory, they decided upon a scheme at a meeting which will be of quite as much benefit to beet growers, likewise the business men of Lapeer. The plan now is to sign contracts with the farmers to raise and deliver beets at Lapeer, paying them for the same at the rate of $4.25 per ton, and thirty-three cents additional for every per cent that the beets may assay over 12 per cent. The beets will be delivered to Detroit parties on a contract, while the beet producers are guaranteed against loss by the Lapeer Beet Sugar Co.

The Mcgarry Case.

When the case of Thomas F. McGarry, under indictment for conspiracy and bribery in the Salisbury boodle case, was called for trial in the Superior Court, Judge Morse, one of the respondent's attorneys, read his own affidavit and one from Dr. Louis Barth, stating that Mr. McGarry was sick in bed and too ill to appear in court. It was the opinion of his physician that Mr. McGarry would not be able to go into court this week and his attorneys asked that the case be put over until Tuesday, January 28.

A Rich Lodge.

The richest Masonic lodge in the country is declared to be that at the old Central mine, which commenced just across the line from Calumet. The treasury contained something like $550, and it was decided to purchase Calumet & Hecla mining stock for less than $40 per share. Since then the stock has sold for over $800 per share, while the dividends received have all along been applied to the purchase of more shares, until now a good-sized block is held by the lodge.

A Detroit Catastrophe.

With a rumble, a roar, and then a frightful crash, four brick stores four stories in hight, running east from the southeast corner of Jefferson avenue and Shelby street, Detroit, collapsed a few minutes before 8 o'clock Sunday night, causing a loss approximating $200,000, but fortunately resulting in no sacrifice of life. The cause of the collapse is said by some to be an explosion of gas in the cellar of the store occurred in the ruins when flames began playing a lurid part in the catastrophe.

He travels rapidly and has made 30 miles on several days. His mania is stealing shoes.

Beet Sugar Men Call on the President.

All of the Michigan beet sugar manufacturers in Washington were escorted to the White House Saturday by Reps. Wm. Alden Smith, Fordney, McCullough and Chairman Diekema, of the Michigan Republican committee, and called on the president.

Ex-Congressman N. B. Bradley, of Bay City, in the name of the manufacturers, handed the president a written protest of 400 words against any reduction of the sugar tariff. The memorial, in part, says:

"Within two months after the Dingley law went into effect the contract was let for the first beet sugar factory in Michigan. This factory took off in the first crop the fall of 1898. Since that time, 12 other factories have been erected and four more are now in process of construction. The capital invested is $10,700,000, in 1899 Michigan paid the sugar trust $7,000,000 for sugar consumed. In 1901, her own factories produced 125,000,000 pounds of granulated sugar, or 80 per cent of her consumption, for which she received $5,647,320. Beets now under contract for the season of 1902, will increase the output to 175,000,000 pounds, or 24 per cent above her consumption.

"In 1901, Michigan raised 60,000 acres of beets, yielding 507,000 tons, for which the farmers received $2,535,000. In the beet fields, 33,707 persons found employment during the growing season, besides 2,678 factory hands during the time of the operating period.

"We cannot stand any reduction in the tariff on raw sugar, especially as such reduction will only serve to assist the sugar trust, thereby furnishing them with increased funds, with which to combat our industry.

"Because the Republican party has always kept its promises, Michigan has been prosperous. To that party's principles, to-day her sons believe that the sacred pledge given in 1896 and reaffirmed in 1900, a pledge upon which we have already invested over $10,000,000, will be kept inviolate. We cannot believe that the industry thus inaugurated will be ruined by the very political power that gave to birth; that our 17 busy factories will be closed only to stand as monuments, marking the power of the sugar trust in its ruthless effort to crush competition."

The president was very cordial, but non-committal. He said he didn't want to see the tariff reduced so that any opportunity could be imperiled. At the same time he desired to see some tariff concessions made to the Cuban people. He promised to give the memorial careful consideration.

The Seneca Wreck Victims.

Of the 25 victims of the railroad wreck at Seneca, Mich., last Thanksgiving eve, who were brought to the railway hospital in Fort Wayne, Ind., only 10 are still inmates of the institution, and none of them is bedfast. Miss Daisy McGinnis, of Calumet, Mich., who was on her way from Butler, Ind., where she was teaching, to the public schools, to Detroit, to spend the holidays with Dr. Osborn and family, is able to be up most of the time. The wound in her back, inflicted by a piece of broken glass, is healing nicely. Mrs. M. J. Stringer, the Belleville, Mich., woman, who sustained a fractured skull, in the accident, is up and around, but her mind, it is said, has not fully cleared.

Confessed a Murder.

James Mather has confessed to the murder of Peter Olsen, near Muskegon, Mich., nearly 20 years ago, and an investigation of his story indicates that he is telling the truth. Mather was only a few weeks ago sent to the insane asylum in Logansport. His home is in Elkhart, Ind., and while confined in the asylum made the confession to the officers. Mather disappeared in October, 1875, he was a telegraph operator at Big Rapids Junction, two miles east of Muskegon. One night he and Olsen were alone in the junction house, a quarrel arose. Mather claims he shot Olsen three times. During the night snow fell and covered the body, and it was not discovered until spring.

A Million for Beets.

The three Bay City sugar factories disbursed $942,000 to their beet growers and the stores did a rushing business all day. The Michigan factory paid out $59,000, the Bay City $94,000 and the West Bay City $71,000. These amounts were paid to farmers for beets, and are exclusive of all wages and salaries. The amount paid for sugar beets this campaign now amounts to nearly $2,000,000, and the new German-American Co-Operative factory is only just beginning operations, so that more than that sum will be paid the farmers this year by the Bay City beet sugar factories.

THE PRINCESS WANTS TO COME

What Judge Taft Says of the Filipinos—Miss Stone's Release—The Strike of the Paper Makers—Mineral Products of the United States—Various Matters.

Great Mineral Products.

Estimates of the mineral products of the United States, which have just reached the treasury bureau of statistics, indicate that they will exceed in nearly every particular those of any preceding year. Not only will they exceed those of any preceding year, but exceed in nearly every case those of every other country. In gold, in silver, in iron, in steel, in copper, in coal, and in mineral oil the products of the United States in 1901 exceed those of any other country, and in every instance, except possibly copper, surpass her own record. In any preceding year. These estimates put the gold production of 1901 at $80,218,800, against $79,171,000 in 1900, which was the highest record in gold production that the United States had ever made. They put the silver production of 1901 at 50,653,788 ounces, against 57,647,000 ounces in 1900. The pig iron production is estimated at 15,878,354 long tons against 13,789,242 long tons in 1900, in which year the figures exceeded those of any preceding year. The coal production is estimated at 267,850,000 long tons, against 258,915,917 long tons in 1900, the year of highest production heretofore. Of petroleum the production is estimated at 69,000,000 barrels, or 2,772,000,000 gallons, against 2,661,233,568 gallons in 1900, the year of largest production heretofore. Of copper the production is estimated at 585,000,000 pounds, or 265,025 long tons, or about 5,000 tons below the figures of 1900, copper thus being the only item in the entire list which shows for 1901 a smaller figure of production than that of last year.

The Panama Flight.

A battle Monday in the harbor of Panama between the revolutionary fleet and the three government ships resulted in a draw. It is not believed that the rebels will renew hostilities immediately. The revolutionary fleet attempted to force a landing off Susana. One of the rebel ships, the Darien, was so seriously injured that she had to be beached. The government steamer Lautero went to the bottom of the bay, after sailors from the United States steamship Philadelphia had made a desperate attempt to check the flames that were consuming her. Survivors from the Lautero declare that treachery is responsible for the loss of that ship. They say the Lautero was set afire by members of her own crew. There was a heavy loss of killed and wounded, especially on the government side. Sailors from the Philadelphia rescued many wounded from the Lautero. Gen. Albon, military governor of Panama, a man who has outgenerated the Colombian rebels for months, was struck down by a bullet while personally leading his men on the Lautero. He died quickly and his men there speedily deserted the burning ship.

The Peaceful Filipinos.

Judge Wm. H. Taft, governor of the Philippines, who arrived in San Francisco from Manila, Monday night on the transport Grant after a voyage of 26 days, gave out the following statement from his bed, which he was unable to leave: "By authority and order of the secretary of war, Gov. Taft turned over the executive power of the Philippines to Luke E. Wright, a member of the commission. The purpose of the visit, as expressed by the secretary of war, was to enable Gov. Taft to recuperate after the long months' illness which he has had in the Philippines and also to assist, as far as he may be able by information, as to the existing conditions in the Philippine Islands, the operation of the civil government there." The governor states that there has never been a time since the United States became interested in the islands that the gratitude of the Filipino people as a whole has been so friendly to the civil government established by the United States as now.

Paper Makers Strike.

A general strike was ordered Sunday at a meeting of delegates from the Kaukauna & Neenah lodges of the United Brotherhood of Paper Makers, which will result in less than three weeks in closing the 25 mills in the state of Wisconsin, throwing out of employment 3,000 laborers and cutting off over 780 tons a day from the supply of the paper market, unless the demands of the brotherhood before the state board of arbitration are granted. It is claimed the movement is soon to spread through every paper making district in the northwest.

The Princess Wants to Come.

If the princess Henry does not accompany her husband on his visit to the United States, it will not be because she wishes to remain at home, says a Berlin dispatch. On the contrary, the princess is making every effort, social and political, to be allowed to go on one of the launching party that has now become of international interest. Should the princess succeed in obtaining this desire she will not only make the trip she will be accompanied by an entourage of court ladies.

The Wynkoop Hallenbeck Crawford Co. claims that its bid on the state printing submitted to the board of state auditors is $1,007.44 lower than that of its competitor, the Robert Smith Printing Co., but the latter company is now willing to concede the contract. There is little doubt that the Smith company will again have the binding contract.

Indians Will Paint.

If Minnesota's governor shall insist that the Indians in its charge shall cut off their long hair, abstain from the use of paint and the usually ornaments of savagery, the aborigines will dig up the hatchet and shed their blood in resisting so sudden a wiping out of racial characteristics. This is the opinion of J. B. Bottineau, son of Pierre Bottineau, a northeastern pioneer and scout. Not only is Mr. Bottineau connected with the red race by ties of blood, but for years he has been counsellor and attorney for the Turtle Mountain band of Indians. Nominally a resident of Minneapolis, he calls Washington his home for business reasons.

Mr. Bottineau says an attempt at strict enforcement of Commissioner Jones' reported order means a revolution, whatever shall happen.

The Naval Show.

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, who has been charged with the preparation and execution of the naval program at the reception of Prince Henry of Prussia, will have this squadron, Flagship, the battleship Illinois, protected cruisers Olympia, San Francisco and Cincinnati, and the cruiser Hartford.

The imperial yacht Hohenzollern, which is to sail for the United States, is in shape. The officers have tested her boilers and adjusted her compasses. The coming Prince Henry's landing in the United States and his movements thereafter are entirely in the hands of Secretary Hay and Dr. Von Holleben, the German ambassador at Washington.

Vaccinated in the Pit.

The Minneapolis health department descended upon the chamber of commerce in full force Saturday morning. They fell upon the occupants and proceeded to vaccinate right and left, great excitement prevailing all through the building when it became known that all egress was barred. When the mill was at its height and the bulls and bears in the midst of their wildest game, were hard at work, a squad of burly policemen suddenly appeared. In a moment all the doors were barred. Many thirty-second traders in the county were in the gallery and as many more in the hallways and on the floor. In all, about 300 traders were vaccinated.

The Emperor's Theology.

The action of Emperor William in setting through a long lecture by Prof. Delitzsch, the Assyriologist, on the "Babylonish origin of Hebrew ideas," has alarmed the ultra-orthodox circles of the state church, who begin to think something is wrong with his majesty's religious views. The sermon preached in Gotha, three weeks ago, the emperor intimated that all churches were equally dear to him, saying that one of the great points he aimed to bring about in his reign was to bring about church unity. His allowing Prof. Delitzsch's conclusions as to the historical foundation of Hebraism to have liberal approval is regarded as a dangerous symptom.

The Panama Canal.

The supplemental report of the lethmian canal commission on the proposition of the Panama Canal Co. to dispose of its property to the United States for $40,000,000, was delivered to President Roosevelt Saturday. The members of the commission refused to discuss the nature of the report, and like reticence was maintained at the White House, but it is learned on excellent authority that the report unanimously recommends that the offer of the Panama company be accepted.

Henry's Tour.

The committee charged with the arrangements for the reception and entertainment of Prince Henry have decided that the prince will positively be yield to the requests of many cities to have the prince visit them. It is likely, beside New York, Washington and Niagara Falls, the journey will include Chicago only of the large cities.

Parliament Opened.

King Edward opened parliament Thursday with a ceremonial in all essential respects similar to that of February last. The speech was not an important utterance. His majesty referred in terms of gratification to the world tour of Prince and Princess of Wales expressed regret at the fact that the war in South Africa was not concluded, said he trusted the decision of the peace conference would lead to the abandonment of bounties, and noted the conclusion of the Isthmian canal treaty.
