TO WORKING GIRLS

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE

Every working girl who is not well is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice; it is freely given, and has restored thousands to health.

Miss Paine's Experience.

"I want to thank you for what you have done for me, and recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all girls whose work keeps them standing on their feet in the store. The doctor said I must stop work; he did not seem to realize that a girl cannot afford to stop working. My back ached, my appetite was poor, I could not sleep, and menstruation was scanty and very painful. One day when suffering I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and found that it helped me. I continued its use, and soon found that my menstrual periods were free from pain and natural; everyone is surprised at the change in me, and I am well, and cannot be too grateful for what you have done for me."—Miss JANET PAINE, 530 West 125th St., New York City. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Take no substitute, for it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that cures.

A good memory sometimes comes in handy to forget with.

THE LAND SAILOR.

Come, fill my sails, you wastrel wind,
And waft me o'er the fields,
The golden fields, rich harvest lined
With all that red earth yields.

Come, blow me down the valley way
Between the crimson hills,
Where hardwoods make the landscapes gay,
And Nature's glad heart thrills.

Blow, blow my craft where yellow leaves
Swirl vagrant through the air,
And blow me where the rustling sheaves
Dot fields of stubble bare.

For I would sail the autumn land
While glow its radiant hues;
With boat and breeze at my command,
Down all its vales I'll cruise.

GENERAL JOLLYMORE'S IVORY HUNT.

By C. L. O. LUCKEN.

(Copyright, 1902, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Hello, Jollymore; when did you get back from South Africa?"

The remark was addressed to a rather portly personage, of medium stature, who was seated at the window of one of the most popular clubs, his chair tipped back and his feet on the sill, and a long, pale cheroot in his mouth.

"General Jollymore, if you please, duly commissioned by the joint governments of the Orange Free State and the South African Republic. Well, I returned a few days ago. Nothing doing in South Africa after the Boers quit; I put in a month or so up in the north country ivory hunting, but found it too tame," replied the "general," toying with a miniature ivory elephant's head, which was attached to his watch guard.

"Hunting elephants, eh, and brought back a trophy of the chase?"

"Oh, yes. The adventure was such a peculiar one that I felt disposed to retain a memento, and so had this head carved from the tusk of the elephant which so nearly finished my career."

"Well, general, I should like to hear of it, provided the telling will not entail the recollection of any unpleasant features."

"No, indeed, not at all. Were such the case I would not wear this," and the general twirled the ivory head between his fingers. "But there's not much to tell, after all, and perhaps I am disposed to magnify the danger.

"At the conclusion of the war I decided to go north, having been informed that lions, elephants and other large game were abundant. I had put in five days in Matris land, reaching the native village of Mpweto on the evening of the fifth day, without having sighted an elephant, although the spoor was there in plenty, and abundant evidences were encountered which showed that large numbers of the animals were in the immediate vicinity. I accordingly resolved to remain at Mpweto for a few days, and the morning following my arrival there, I started out, accompanied only by my extra gun bearer, a native named Umbolalla, with the hope of encountering the game I sought.

"A few miles east of Mpweto there is a circular plain, probably a mile in diameter, almost entirely surrounded by forest. Upon approaching this plain, it became evident that my quest was at last ended, and that my eyes were to be gladdened by the sight of an elephant, for the frequent trumpetings of a large bull elephant were distinctly audible. Pushing rapidly ahead in the direction of the trumpeting, we arrived within sight of the plain, and there, standing in a clump of small trees upon whose tender branches he was feeding, was the largest elephant it had ever been my good fortune to see. Cautioning Umbolalla to keep close to me with the extra gun, I maneuvered around for some time, endeavoring to secure a position from which I could fire a shot which would prove fatal, but the frequent movements of the elephant rendered this impossible. Becoming impatient at the delay, I finally risked a shot, the bullet lodging, as I afterwards learned, in the beast's left shoulder, producing a painful and irritating wound, without in the least impairing his vitality.

"With a scream of rage, the huge animal plunged wildly through the forest and out into the open, running straight across the plain. Snatching the extra gun from Umbolalla, and telling him to follow as soon as he had reloaded the empty gun, I set out in pursuit, hoping to get another shot. The trumpeting of the wounded elephant was terrific, and he had nearly reached the forest on the opposite side when I stumbled and fell, the gun being discharged as it struck the ground. On hearing the report, the elephant turned in his flight, and, observing Umbolalla, who had reloaded the other gun and was hastening to ward me, gave utterance to a terrific cry of rage and rushed toward the native. Without a second's hesitation I grabbed his gun and fired it point-blank at the massive head of the elephant, which by this time was less than twenty feet from us. Providence must surely have guided that bullet, for it entered the right eye, and with one last ear-splitting scream, the monstrous bulk tottered and fell.

"Aroused, undoubtedly, by the dying scream of the elephant which had just fallen, and which was probably the leader of the herd there appeared from the forest which surrounded the plain, a herd which in points of numbers outdid anything I had previously encountered, and I flatter myself that I have, in my time, seen considerable of them. In fact, it seemed as if all the elephants in Africa were assembled at that particular place, and were bent on my destruction. With trumpetings which were deafening, they came rushing toward us from every point of the compass. Flight was impossible, for we were entirely surrounded, nor was there a distance of even ten feet between the foremost ones, and as the leaders in this magnificent charge neared us, of course even this space was narrowed.

"I felt that my time had come, for, unfortunately Umbolalla, in his haste to reach me before I was crushed by the wounded elephant, had dropped the ammunition, and we were without arms other than my two army revolvers and Umbolalla's assegai, a weapon without which no native African can be induced to enter a forest. The bullets from the revolvers would have proven as effective against the tough hides of the elephants as from a boy's sling-shot, and I did not, therefore, deem it worth an attempt to use them, nor did it then occur to me, as I remember it now, that I had them with me.

"Then it was that a most remarkable thing occurred. You know what will happen if you place a number of moving bodies at an equal distance from each other, upon the circumference of a circle and start them toward the center? Well, that is just what happened in this case! Those elephants in the lead reached the circumference of the smaller circle at precisely the same instant, and there they stuck, utterly unable to approach an inch nearer!

"Not only had the terrific momentum of their huge bodies served to wedge them tightly together, but behind the elephants comprising the inner circle were scores and scores of others, each possessed by an uncontrollable desire to get at the something which formed the center of the circle of which they were the circumference, and serving to hold fast in their positions the elephants on the inner circle.

"Conceive, if you can, the picture of two men seated upon the carcass of a dead elephant, surrounded by a living circle of other elephants, nearest these in turn pushed and crowded and wedged in still more tightly by hundreds of others! The elephants on the inner circle might as well have been trees, so far as their powers of locomotion were concerned. With almost ever-powering trumpetings, they swayed from side to side, lashing each other with their trunks in their rage, but absolutely unable to stir either forward or backward. Although I had, but a few moments before, resigned myself to a speedy and apparently inevitable death, the humor of the situation now struck me, and I rolled from the carcass in a violent paroxysm of laughter.

"To make a long story short, it was a simple matter, considering the position in which we had the herd, to finish a few of the elephants nearest us by well-directed shots from my revolvers, as a bullet penetrating the eye would readily reach the brain. We had killed perhaps half a dozen in this manner, the bodies retaining their upright position in the circle through the pressure of others, when Umbolalla reminded me that the remaining revolver cartridges might better be saved, and that we could kill the elephants as well with his assegai. His plan was to climb upon the backs of the elephants, place the head of the assegai over the spinal cord at the point where it enters the skull, and using the heavy elephant gun as a sledge, drive it home. This plan we found upon trial worked well, and after seven hours incessant labor we had stilled the trumpetings, and out of that vast herd not one remained alive.

"Returning to Mpweto we enjoyed the night's rest, and in the morning I had no difficulty, such is the simplicity of the African native, in arranging a trade with Chief Mugbokuku, whereby I gave his tribe the carcasses of the elephants in exchange for the services of his men in removing the tusks and carrying them to a point on the Nile at which transportation to Cairo could be secured. From Cairo, two months later, I reshipped the tusks taken from the 468 elephants to Copenhagen, where the ivory was disposed of at a profit of $300,000.

GHOSTS HOLD CARNIVAL HERE.

House at Dunkirk, N. Y., Which is Haunted by Spirits.

Residents in the Fourth ward are greatly excited over an alleged haunted house in Lincoln avenue. The house in which the ghosts are said to hold sway is a small, gloomy, vine-covered cottage resting back from the street, almost hidden from view by deep shrubbery. It was the home of an aged woman who was found lying upon the floor one morning dead. For years she had led the life of a recluse and her every action had been shrouded in mystery. After her death considerable money was found secreted about the place. Within the past two years over a dozen families have lived in the house. None remained longer than two weeks. A family who had moved into the house Monday last moved out to-day. They stated that continually about midnight the sound of footsteps, groans, blood-curdling chuckles of laughter, and the clanking of chains could be heard throughout the house.

The lighted lamp on a number of occasions was blown out without any apparent cause, and several times the bedclothes were forcibly pulled from the occupants of the bed. The old woman during her life never allowed a person to enter the house. The opinion is that she has come back to this world to keep strangers out of the house which she guarded so jealously before her death.—Dunkirk (N. Y.) Correspondence.

All the Men Are Princes.

There are about 12,000 people scattered over the twenty-odd rocks or islets which constitute the Feroe group, between the Shetlands and Iceland. Every man in the country is in some way the descendant of a king—that is, Norse sea-kings, who fled to the islands in the ninth century and peopled them.

In spite of his home-spuns, his turf hut, and his primitive life, every good Feroese is conscious and proud of his ancestry, and he bears himself like a prince. He has no newspapers or social problems; but he knows the history of his island home, and he is a constant reader of books, mostly Danish. His literary taste is inferior only to that of the Icelanders, who for 1,000 years have raised and maintained an ideal national literature of merit.

Fifty Dollars to Sit Down.

Carmel, Ind., Dec. 15th.—Mr. Joseph L. Duffy relates an experience that has aroused considerable interest in this locality. It is best given in his own words:

"When I was working in the fields," says Mr. Duffy, "I would be ready to quit, but I could not get to the house I was so weak. It was worth fifty dollars to get to sit down.

"I had no strength and a person without strength is not much use.

"But bless the Lord I took four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they gave me health, strength and appetite.

"I might say I am cured, but I will keep on taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. Yes, I'll get them if it takes the last thing on the farm."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have effected quite a number of other cures here and it seems safe to say they are an effective and permanent cure for all diseases arising from the Kidneys.

RECORD OF THE PAST.

The best guarantee of the future is the record of the past, and over fifty thousand people have publicly testified that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured them of numerous kidney ills, from common backache to dangerous diabetes, and all the attendant annoyances and sufferings from urinary disorders. They have been cured to stay cured. Here is one case:

Samuel J. Taylor, retired carpenter, residing at 313 South Third St., Goshen, Ind., says: "On the 25th day of August, 1897, I made an affidavit before Jacob C. Mann, notary public, stating my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. I had suffered for thirty years, and was compelled at times to walk by the aid of crutches, frequently passed gravel and suffered excruciatingly. I took every medicine on the market that I heard about and some gave me temporary relief. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and they were the remedy for me. The cure effected was a permanent one."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Taylor, will be mailed on application, to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

A UNITED STATES ARMY SANITARIUM.

To Be Established in the Black Hills —The Healing Waters at Hot Springs Expected to Restore Quickly the Health of Sick and Exhausted Troopers.

Congress has authorized the establishment of a Sanitarium for disabled soldiers at Hot Springs, S. D., the famed health resort of the Black Hills, and a Board of Managers has selected a site for the purpose, bordering on the main street of the town, and including two of the best known springs. Its official name will be The Battle Mountain Sanitarium.

The Board of Survey went into the question of climate, water, etc., in a most scientific and thorough manner and has declared unqualifiedly in favor of the great South Dakota resort as being wonderfully well adapted for the Government's purposes.

These springs are not a recent discovery the Indians having known their healing qualities for almost 200 years. In fact the Sioux about the year A. D. 1617 fought a great battle here with the tribe then in possession and drove them out, to hold possession of the healing waters from that day to the time when, in 1877, they ceded the land to the U. S. Government. It is this great fight of three centuries ago that gives the name to the mountain near the springs, and to the Government's new hospital and resting place for troops.

The material development of the Black Hills region; and the Sanitarium project is of much interest to the Chicago & North Western Railway which has a direct line Chicago to Hot Springs, Deadwood and Lead.

MARK TWAIN IN THE LONG AGO.

A Thin, Scrawny Fellow When He Was a Wheelsman in California.

Capt. Selwyn Ramsey of San Joaquin City, Cal., claims the unique distinction of once having employed Mark Twain as second wheelsman at a salary of $18 a week. Capt. Ramsey is one of the old pioneers in California river navigation. He commanded the first steam packet that ever ran up the Sacramento river, and although he is over 80 years old and hasn't been on the bridge for more than 13 years, yet he still loves to talk of the good old river days.

"Yes, I used to know Sam Clemens," said Capt. Ramsey to an interviewer, "and he was one of the best wheelsmen I ever had. It was along in 1868. I was on the old John Wallace at that time, on the Sacramento river.

"About the time I met Clemens I was pretty hard up for help. Wages were good and lots of men deserted for the mines. All the wheelsmen had to be broken in, as there were no experienced river men in the country in those days. And I was pretty glad when I heard of a young fellow who had been in a pilot house on the Mississippi. The minute I tied up in San Francisco I went right over to the United States mint, where I got his address. As soon as I saw him at the wheel I engaged him on the spot.

"Mark Twain was a thin, scrawny looking fellow then, but he was a great hand making friends, and all of us liked him. I think he was on the Wallace about five months—it's so long ago that I forget the exact time. He was a straight out and out wheelsman, and he learned the river like a book. The country was pretty wild in those days and a man had to watch out for himself, but Clemens got along with the best of them."

Many of us might be happy if we did not suffer from disorders of the liver. Then we ought to use Dr. August Koenig's Hamburg Drops, which cure the disorders and bring the whole system to a healthy condition.

Constipation Makes Bad Blood.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC CURES CONSTIPATION

Constipation is the rotting and decaying of undigested food in the alimentary canal. Disease germs arise from this festering mass, which find their way into the blood. The blood becomes impure and shortly the entire system gives way to the unhealthy condition.

You cannot cure a case like this by taking pills or other common cathartics. A laxative will not do. A blood medicine is ineffective, etc. Mull's Grape Tonic is a gentle and mild laxative in addition to being a blood making and strength-giving tonic which immediately builds up the wasted body and makes rich, red blood that carries its health-giving strength to every tissue at every heart beat.
