She Would Not be Without It Now.

Neither would thousands of others. We refer to Vogeler's Curative Compound; it does so much good and seems to reach every form of stomach trouble, that people have found that it is the one true specific. And what are stomach troubles? The easiest answer is that three-quarters of all the diseases and ailments which affect us proceed from one form or another of stomach trouble.

Indigestion is one of the worst and most prevalent forms, but Vogeler's Curative Compound cures indigestion. Here is one instance:

Mr. W. Bowell, of 34 Priory Street, Winchester, Col., writes: "I wish to state that my wife has been taking Vogeler's Curative Compound for a long time, and it is the only thing that has done her any real good for indigestion, in fact nothing would induce her to be without a bottle now."

When we stop to seriously consider the fact, that this great remedy is made from the formula of one of the most eminent living London physicians, it is no wonder that people who have happily experienced the benefit to be derived from its use, will not now be without it at any cost.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

HE COMPLIMENTED THE CZARINA.

Lord Tennyson Records a Rather Humorous Experience.

Lord Tennyson once told Captain McCabe the following story as one result of his defective eyesight: "Hallam and I went with Mr. Gladstone as Sir Donald Currie's guests on a cruise in the Pembroke Castle among the Hebrides and thence on to Denmark. While lying in the harbor of Copenhagen we were invited to dine at Fredensborg with the king and queen of Denmark, and the next day the whole royal party came on board to luncheon. There were the king and queen, the princess, the czar and czarina and their attendant ladies and gentlemen. After luncheon the princess asked me to read one of my poems and some one fetched the book. I sat on a sofa in the smoking room next the princess and another lady came and sat beside me on the other side. The czar stood up just in front of me. When I had finished reading this lady said something very civil and I thought she was Andrew Clark's daughter, so I patted her on the shoulder very affectionately and said, 'My dear girl, that's very kind of you, very kind.' I heard the czar chuckling mightily to himself, so I looked more nearly at her, and God bless me! it was the czarina herself. I fancy that was the first time that august lady had been patted on the back and called a 'dear girl' since she had left the nursery."

SEVEN PRINCIPAL ROUTES.

It is a well-known fact that the C., M. & St. P. Ry. system offers a great many different routes between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis. Its main line between those points is especially well known as the route over which runs the famous "Pioneer Limited" and the Government Fast Mail Train.

There are six or seven other routes over a number of which are run through coaches and sleeping cars, which are almost as direct as the principal main line.

These various routes traverse the most interesting and attractive sections of Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota, including the celebrated "Lake Region" of Wisconsin, and cross the Wisconsin river at the famous "Dells," where is the most picturesque scenery in the Northwest.

The main line and several others include from 150 to 200 miles of romantic and picturesque scenery along the Mississippi river. On these various lines are located the most important towns and cities in the Northwest.

Both one way and special excursion tickets between Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis are honored via any one of these direct lines.

The teachers attending the National Educational Convention at Minneapolis will appreciate and take advantage of this fact as they can have a choice of routes going and returning.

He Helped Ericsson

How Representative Sperry of Connecticut Proved Himself a Patriot.

"There is the man who was bondsman for the construction of the Monitor."

This remark is often made at the capitol as Representative Sperry of Connecticut is pointed out. It was forty years ago that Mr. Sperry signed his name to the instrument that pledged every dollar he had in the world on the success of an experiment—an absolute experiment—that the United States Navy Department was not willing to back, which a great many people thought was a foolish one, but the success of which marked the turning point in the naval fights of the war of the rebellion.

Mr. Sperry's story of the bonding of the constructors of the Monitor, the fiscal act which was antecedent to the great military drama, is very interesting.

"I was a young fellow," said Mr. Sperry, "but was full of patriotism and ardor for the success of the Union cause, and I guess that was why the projectors of the Monitor approached me to back the scheme with a bond for the successful building of the vessel.

"John A. Griswold of Troy, at that time a member of Congress; Cornelius S. Bushnell of New Haven and a Western man named Winslow were the builders. The vessel was designed by Ericsson, as is well known, but these three men were to construct her. The Navy Department was skeptical of the practicability of Ericsson's idea, and declined to advance the money unless bond could be provided to secure the department against loss if the plans should not work out successfully.

"There was great commotion about the building of the Confederate ram Merrimac. We knew that she was going ahead at the Gosport navy yard and would be the most formidable vessel afloat. She was iron-clad, and the thought of that invincible ship being turned loose among the wooden vessels of the coast was a terrible one.

"She could have levied tribute on every city along the coast from the Chesapeake to Maine, and would have had everything her own way. Well, when the Monitor was proposed, people said that was just the thing if it would work out. But many people were doubtful about the 'cheese box,' as they jeeringly called Ericsson's vessel.

"Mr. Bushnell thought she could be built. So Mr. John Drew of New York and myself went on his bond with the Navy Department and the work was started at Greenpoint, N. Y. Everybody knows how the Union vessel was finished, went down the coast and was in Hampton Roads when the Merrimac came out.

"I will never forget the day of the battle. It was an exciting time in New Haven, for we had a kind of local pride in the Monitor, on account of Mr. Bushnell's connection. All day long crowds clustered around the telegraph office, receiving bulletins of the fight.

"Mr. Bushnell and I were there, too, you may depend upon it. At last, along about 5 or 6 o'clock in the evening came the news that the Merrimac had been disabled by the Monitor and had put back to port. Bushnell, who was a strapping big fellow, with a hand in proportion to his size, brought his hand down on my shoulder with a whack that nearly knocked me down.

"'Sperry,' says he, 'your bond is safe.' I tell you, there was great celebrating in New Haven that time. A peculiar thing is that the original bond we signed has never been found. No one knows what became of it."—Washington Star.

SCARED THE SHARK

Adventures of a Diver Who Was at Work in the Magdalena River, Colombia.

Few men lead more adventurous lives in these latter days than divers; and few divers have survived more perils of the deep than one known to his fellows by the name of "Timmans." This is how he describes one adventure with a shark—a more exciting than dangerous one, as it happily proved:

"I once had an experience with a shark," he said, "while we were trying to save a 3,000-ton steamer of the Hamburg-American Packet Company, wrecked on a bar in the Magdalena river, Columbia.

"I'd been working for days patching her keel, hung on a swinging shelf we'd lowered along her side, and every time I went down I saw swarms of red snappers and butterfish under my shelf, darting after the refuse I'd scrape off her plates; and there were big jewfish, too, and I used to harpoon 'em for the men to eat. In fact, I about kept our crew supplied with fresh fish that way.

"Well, on one particular day I noticed a sudden shadow against the light, and there was a shark sure enough, not such an enormous one, but twelve feet long anyhow—big enough to make me uneasy. He swam slowly around me, and then kept perfectly still, looking straight at me with his little wicked eyes.

"I didn't know what minute he might make a rush, so I caught up a hammer I was working with—it was my only weapon—and struck it against the steamer's side as hard as I could. You know a blow like that sounds louder under water than it does in the air, and it frightened the shark, so he went off like a flash.

"I'll tell you how hungry those sharks were. They'd swallow big chunks of pork, sir, nailed and wired to barrel heads, as fast as we could chuck 'em overboard; swallow nails, wire, barrel heads and all; and then we haul 'em in by ropes that did for fish lines, only it took twenty or thirty men to do the hauling. And there were plenty of sharks round about, only they never seemed to tackle a man in the suit."

SAVAGES DEFEND THEIR PRACTICE OF CANNIBALISM

The Woelffel expedition which recently traversed a region of dense forests back of the ivory coast of West Africa found there a large number of cannibals comprising several tribes.

When the white men in the Woelffel party asked these cannibals why they indulged in the practice of eating human flesh they replied that men are in the habit of washing their bodies three times a day, and their flesh, therefore, is cleaner and sweeter than that of cattle, which are never washed.

When Mr. Stanley sent Captain Coquilbat to occupy the station he had established among the fierce Bangalla cannibals of the middle Congo he found the natives ever ready to defend the practice of eating human flesh. "This is horrible," said Coquilbat one day to a chief whom he saw at his meal. "On the contrary, it is delicious with salt," was the reply. Another time the Belgian soldier expressed his abhorrence to a chief who was about to sit down to a cannibal banquet. The latter replied to his protests:

"When you kill a goat I do not interfere. This dead man is my property. I did not steal or capture him, but I bought him with good cloth and I will eat him if I please."

One day Coquilbat pointed out the difference between man and mere animals, and tried to convince the native that to eat a man was to make a very bad use of him, and to degrade their species. A bright fellow in the crowd called out in answer:

"All your talk only shows that human flesh is the best sort of food, while the flesh of mere animals is a vile sort of nutriment."

MAMMOTH PRESERVED IN THE ICE.

Scientists Revel Over Recent Discovery Made in Siberia.

The scientific part of the world that interests itself in bones and their natural coverings will be highly pleased to learn that the complete skeleton, and a good deal besides, of a mammoth has been found imbedded in ice in the eastern part of Siberia. It was the ice that preserved it all these years, and while for commercial purposes it ruined the ice, it kept the mammoth in really prime condition. This particular monster is estimated to have been in cold storage for something like 2,000 years, and it speaks well for the Siberian brand of ice that in all that time it seems to have kept up its admirable reputation for firmness and endurance.

It appears from investigation that the mammoth, while browsing along the ice fields, accidentally slipped, and before he could recover his balance came in contact with terra Siberia with such force as to break his mammoth neck. He lay as he fell, which was after all a good thing, because no horse ambulance ever made was big enough for a mammoth, and there the ice closed over him, and for 2,000 years, more or less, he reposed in his trapped tomb, until some wandering scientist came along and stared at him through the crystal walls. Then they cracked him out from his frost-bitten nose to his frozen feet, and set him up and danced the dance of triumph about him.

Poor old mammoth! The world has changed a good deal since fate dealt him that fatal jolt in the neck.

SOME STRANGE OLD INVENTIONS.

Museum of Instruments Used in Early Scientific Research.

Harvard possesses a new museum of great interest to the scientist. Under the direction of Prof. John Trowbridge there has been gathered at the university a number of the most interesting devices that were in use in early days of scientific research.

Among the instruments is one of the first telescopes ever made with a divided objective, the first type of storage battery and gramme machine, forerunner of the modern dynamo.

The most curious relic in the collection, however, is the famous Boston orrery, which is nothing less than a solar system in miniature. The name originated from the fact that the Earl of Orrery was the first to make one of these peculiar contrivances in England. There are probably not more than seven in the entire world.

The orrery resembles a small grand piano in appearance, has twelve sides and a glass dome. The twelve sides represent the twelve months of the year. Looking through the glass top, the spectator sees the entire solar system set out before him, sun, moon, earth and stars. By the turning of a handle the system is set in motion, each body moving in the place appointed for it by the Maker of the universe.

John B. Gough Not Forgotten.

GREATNESS THRUST UPON HIM

How Poor French Poet Was Made Great State Functionary.

A poor Parisian poet named Dubois, during the reign of Napoleon I. addressed an ode to Princess Pauline, Napoleon's favorite sister. A relative to the poet being waiting maid to the princess, presented the ode, with the result that Pauline asked for a post for M. Dubois, a man of superior gifts. Minister Fouche, delighted to please the princess, called at the poet's humble attic. The poet put his head out of the window of his garret and espying a carriage escorted by gendarmes, concluded that the boldness of his remarks with regard to a universal peace had been badly received by the emperor and that they had come to arrest him. Prompted by his fear, Dubois considered it more prudent to hide under his bed. The poet was got out and was sent to Elba as commissary general of police. It was some time ere Fouche and Pauline met, and the princess had difficulty in remembering the request that she had made for Dubois. "Does not your highness recollect a letter sent to me about three months ago, most pressingly recommending a M. Dubois, a man of letters, in whom your highness took the greatest interest?" "One moment," said the princess, and then a smile overspread her beautiful features. "My protege, M. le Duc, was a poor poet, a relative of one of my maids, who sent me an ode. What have you done with him? Have you given him a stool in one of your departments?" The minister, nettled at having been duped in that way, took particular care to suppress the fact of his having made a grand functionary of Dubois. Unfortunately, Fouche's friends at court got wind of the thing and there was an end of the secret. Napoleon himself was vastly amused at it and bantered his minister. Dubois was recalled, but already 200,000 francs had been paid to him.

HE MADE A TOO GENEROUS OFFER.

Dr. Emerson Was Too Hasty to Do Kindly Deed.

Dr. Edward W. Emerson, the son of Ralph Waldo Emerson, was recently the victim of his own generosity, says the New York Tribune. In Concord, where Dr. Emerson lives, one of the best known characters is a simple-minded old fellow, whose actions furnish the villages with an inexhaustible fund of amusement. Among the oddities of the old codger, who is locally known as "Charlie," is a fondness for reading. No one has ever discovered how much of his reading is for pleasure, but "Charlie" is never seen without at least one book under his arm.

The other day "Charlie" came to Dr. Emerson, and said sorrowfully: "Doctor, they won't let me take books out of the library any more."

Dr. Emerson has a fine private library, and, moved by the sadness in "Charlie's" tone, said kindly: "Never mind, Charlie. You may take any book of mine you wish."

Satisfied with this assurance, "Charlie" departed, and did not return for several days. Then he came back, and said doubtfully: "You said I might take any book of yours I wanted, didn't you?"

The doctor assented, wondering what was coming.

"That means any book you own, doesn't it?" queried "Charlie."

Again the doctor assented.

"Well, then," said "Charlie," triumphantly, "let me take your mileage book."

EASY VICTIMS OF CARD SHARKS.

High-Rolling Players Cheated Out of Immense Amounts.

In the old days of gambling the men who played highest were very frequently the most easily duped. Wrothesly, duke of Bedford, was infamously robbed by a gang of sharpers of whom Beau Nash was the head. The duke had been plundered out of over $150,000 at hazard, when, suspecting the dice to be loaded, he rose in a passion, put them in his pocket and refused to play or pay further until he had examined them. He retired to another room and fell asleep, affording the conspirators the chance to pick his pockets and substitute legitimate dice for the loaded. The duke on awakening and finding the dice correct played again and lost a further $150,000. Beau Nash, not getting a sufficient share of the plunder, informed the duke. A similar misadventure befell a duke of Norfolk early in the last century. He went through the same ceremony of carrying off the dice and falling asleep with them in his possession. In this instance, however, the thieves got a notorious desperado to go into the room with a brace of pistols and new dice, with instructions to shoot the duke if the latter were awake and to change the dice if he were asleep.

The Jersey Man Won.

Traveling men, of course, can tell good stories, and once in a while they enjoy running a race relating improbabilities.

In a smoking car was a man from New York another from Chicago, and a third from New Jersey. The New Yorker was boasting of the Empire State Express, which he said went so fast that the telegraph poles slipped past seemingly as close together as the teeth in a fine comb.

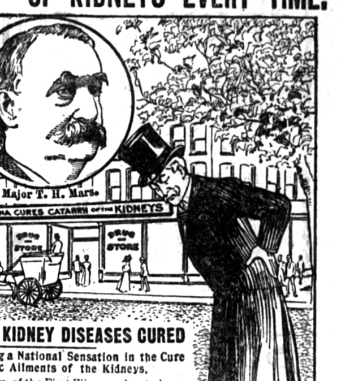
"That's nothing," said the man from Chicago. "There's a train from my city to Milwaukee. Nothing like it. I started to cross a bridge on the road and heard the train coming. Having great presence of mind, I made a leap in the air and the train was gone when I came down."

"That's a fast train," said the New Jersey citizen. "The Jersey Central flier is equally fast, but makes better time, because it starts fast. My wife was on the platform to bid me good-by in Jersey City. I opened the window to kiss her and by the good name of the land of nonquitone I kissed a strange woman standing on the platform in Newark."

A man is what he makes himself; a woman what her dressmaker makes her.

If there is only one unpardonable sin it must be insincerity.

PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH OF KIDNEYS EVERY TIME.



DANGEROUS KIDNEY DISEASES CURED

Pe-ru-na Creating a National Sensation in the Cure of Chronic Ailments of the Kidneys.

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry regiment, writes from 1425 Dunning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me at all until a comrade who had been helped by Peruna advised me to try it. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years, thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mars.

Mr. John Vance, of Hartford City, Ind., says: "My kidney trouble is much better. I have improved so much that everybody wants to know what medicine I am using. I recommend Peruna to everybody and some have commenced to use it. The folks all say that if Dr. Hartman's medicine cures me it must be great."—John Vance.

Mr. J. Brake, of Petrolea, Ontario, Canada writes: "Four years ago I had a severe attack of Bright's disease, which brought me almost over the doctor said nothing more could be done for me. I began to take Peruna and Manalin, and in three months I was a well man and have continued so ever since."—J. Brake.

At the appearance of the first symptom of kidney trouble, Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once the very root of the disease. It at once relieves the catarrhal kidneys of the stagnant blood, preventing the escape of serum from the blood.

Peruna stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the convulsions which are sure to fol ow if the poisons are allowed to remain. It gives great vigor to the heart's action and digestive system, both of which are apt to fail rapidly in this disease.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys simply because it cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.
