Heartburn.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by Whitehead & Mitchell.

REPLEVINED THE MONEY.

New York Judge Turns Neat Trick on a Swindler.

Justice Marean, of the Supreme Court, Second District, is a tall man with a tender heart, says the New York Tribune. Not long ago he caught an imposter just as the fellow was performing the last act of a swindling trick on him. The Brooklyn judge tells the story as follows:

One day a shabby and loquacious individual walked into the office of Judge Marean and said:

"Judge, I'm in hard luck. I want a couple of dollars to get a Turkish bath, a meal and a shave, and then I'll be in decent condition to visit my friends."

The money was handed over at once, with the courtesy that distinguishes the judge in his dealings with his fellow-men. Then it occurred to the judge that perhaps he had been a bit hasty in giving the visitor money. He looked out of the window and saw the man heading for Court street. Grabbing his hat, he followed him straight into a saloon and heard the fellow say with a wave of the hand:

"Come on men. Drink with me."

Down went the two-dollar bill on the counter. Forward surged eight or ten loungers. Just as the hobo's words of invitation were getting cold a long arm circled over the shoulders of the thirsty and Judge Marean said quietly but firmly as he picked up the bill:

"Not with my money."

Queensland's Destructive Drought.

The long drought in Queensland is still causing immense loss to farmers, and the cattle for want of water and grass are dying off in their thousands. The number of sheep has dropped from 22,000,000 to 9,000,000, and that of cattle from between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 to 4,000,000.

There is at present a large demand for frozen meat in Pretoria, Kimberley and Capetown, but Queensland is unable to meet the demands. The effect of the drought must also be felt in England, since the price of frozen meat will go up.

Inquiries at the Queensland government agency showed that this is the most serious drought since the colony was established. The cost to the farmers can only be estimated as "millions and millions of pounds." It has thrown the country fifteen years back, and practically everything is at a standstill.

There is no gold prospecting, and business in the town is stagnant, since the shopkeepers draw their custom from the squatters, who have sustained the chief losses.

Satisfied to Be Publisher.

They are telling in New York of a man who after putting a large sum into a publishing business decided that the word "publisher" was much overworked. So he decided that, inasmuch as it was his business to make books, he was a bookmaker. A few days later he met a politician from up the state who inquired as to his business. "I am a bookmaker," said the New Yorker, proud of the opportunity to say it. "Just the man I'm looking for," said the politician. "I always like to take a flyer at the track when down here. What will you lay against King Hanover?" The reformer considered deeply for a moment and then said slowly: "I am not a bookmaker any more, only a plain, everyday publisher."

From Section Hand to President.

Prof. S. P. Brooks, who was recently elected president of Baylor university, Waco, Tex., was a section hand on the Santa Fe railroad less than twenty years ago. Out of his small earnings he saved enough to pay his expenses for a year at Baylor. His evident disposition to make the most of every opportunity attracted the attention of R. C. Burleson, founder, and at that time president of the university, and the ex-section hand was given every chance to improve himself. After graduating Mr. Brooks was a member of the faculty until two years ago, when he entered Harvard to take a post-graduate course.

If the Creator ever made a failure it was probably due to an attempt to make a man who could please his neighbors.

Many a boy thinks he will be his own boss when he reaches man's estate, but then he proceeds to get married and it's all off.

There is a lot of unconscious humor concealed in the explanations of baseball managers as to why their clubs fail to make good.

GOOD TO REMEMBER.

Experience that is given away is seldom appreciated.

When the day breaks some men are too lazy to make use of the places.

Only the man who knows he is in the wrong can afford to lose his temper.

If a splinter isn't as tall as she would like to be she should get spliced.

If a senator cannot fight his own battles he is hardly fit to battle for his constituents.

Girls who make the greatest exertions to catch husbands are usually last in the race.

Neither adversity nor prosperity ever changes a man; each merely brings out what there is in him.

Many a bachelor who plans a happy fireside of his own eventually bumps up against a so-called furnace-heated flat.

Usually the man who expresses a willingness to die for a woman during courtship is too lazy to earn a decent living for her after marriage.

BRILLIANT THOUGHTS.

Men and roosters sometimes lose their heads by crowing too soon.

Only a mean man enjoys seeing another man's wife smoke a cigarette.

You can bottle up the truth for a time, but it eventually pops the cork.

You may succeed in convincing a man against his will, but what's the use?

When it comes to adversity or prosperity the average man prefers ruin by the latter route.

One-half the world knows more about how the other half lives than it is willing to confess.

But few girls would refuse to share a young man's lot if it happened to be worth $1,000 a front foot.

When a man is sick he wonders if there is another man on earth capable of continuing his business in case he shuffles off.

TRITE TRUTHS.

To obtain confidence it is often necessary to confide.

To love a woman is to love an ideal you have formed in your own mind.

The amateur writer is known by his vocabulary, a master by his thoughts.

It's curious the way a woman dresses in winter to catch cold and in the summer to get bitten by mosquitoes.

A man would rather expect a stone and get bread, but a woman considers it beneath her dignity to expect anything less than cake, no matter what she knows she is going to get.

ARE YOU A PRISONER?

THOUSANDS of men are prisoners of disease as securely as though they were confined behind the bars. Many have forged their own chains by the vices of early youth, exposure to contagious disease, or the excesses of manhood. They feel they are not the men they ought to be or used to be. The vim, vigor, and vitality of manhood are lacking. Are you nervous and despondent? tired in the morning? have you to force yourself through the day's work? have you little ambition and energy? are you irritable and excitable? eyes sunken, depressed and haggard looking? memory poor and brain fagged? have you weak back with dreams and losses at night? deposit in urine? weak sexually?—you have
