

Jealousy Causes Chicago Tragedy

Frenzied by jealousy and desperate because of imaginary wrongs, Theodore Ouleifer shot and instantly killed his wife, fatally wounded his 14-month-old baby, and seriously injured his stepdaughter, Lizzie Stramm, at their home, 27 Twenty-first place, Chicago.

Lizzie, the stepdaughter, saved her life by crawling through an open window before Ouleifer could fire a second shot.

Ernest and John Stramm, two stepsons, aged 12 and 8 years, sprang through another window just as Ouleifer entered the bedroom where they were sleeping to knock into the street.

The tragedy occurred shortly after 6 o'clock. The streets were thronged with churchgoers, and while they hurried to the scene of the shooting, Ouleifer with his revolver still clutched in his hand, ran to the rear of his home and opening the door started up the stairs to the parlor.

At the second landing the murderer was confronted by Timothy Dolan, who occupies the flat directly above the one occupied by Ouleifer. When Dolan attempted to knock the murderer, he was threatened with death.

Dolan stepped aside and Ouleifer made his way to the attic, where he concealed himself behind a chimney.

Meanwhile the crowd, now numbering hundreds, was battering on the doors or throwing stones at the window blinds. They would have broken into the Ouleifer flat and dragged the man out had not Dolan informed them that he had been shot.

The Carrollport police station is only a short distance from the scene of the tragedy and when a man, hatless and excited, arrived at the station and notified the police of the crime, Policemen Nihil and Brennan were dispatched to the home.

They arrived just as the crowd had determined to drag Ouleifer out of the attic.

When the policemen, groping their way through the attic, reached the corner where Ouleifer was hiding he turned and shot at them. The policemen continued to advance and the murderer, springing to his feet, pressed his revolver against Nihil's stomach, at the same time firing the trigger. But the empty revolver merely clicked and Ouleifer reached for a second pistol which he had in his pocket before he could secure it. The policeman overpowered him.

The crowd made no attempt to assist as Ouleifer was led to the police station, although cries of "hang him" were heard at every step.

Mrs. Ouleifer was killed instantly.

Fate of Andree Still Uncertain

The Rev. Dr. Farlies, a Church of England clergyman, arrived at New York from York Factory, Northwest Territory, and brings authentic information of the fate of the explorer Andree, and his companions.

Two years ago, eight hundred miles north of York, a party of Esquimaux, under the leadership of "Old Huskie," saw the Andree balloon alight on a plain of snow in that vicinity, which is about two hundred miles north of Fort Churchill. Three men emerged from the balloon, and some of "Huskie's" people approached them out of covery of any portion of the outfit belonging to Andree, and though natives have gone in search of them they have never returned, believing that they were there without government consent. Signor Calogno has been impressed upon him because of his anarchistic utterances, was released only a short time ago on account of ill health and has fled to this country and to England more than once to escape the police.

His Remaining Ambition.

"There has never been a time when ambition did not beckon to me," said an Arctician man the other morning. "I have always hoped to amount to a great deal, to stand going the great of the earth. It is my ambition to have my name on every paper. There is one great hope that urges me onward and upward, that every day my wife may become president of the Federation of Women's Clubs."—Arctician.

May His Gratitude Last.

Larry Gataou, released from the penitentiary at Fort Scott, Kan., spoke for the first time in four years on that day. He is a Frenchman. His father had been committed to the penitentiary for $7000. During his term of confinement Gataou became converted to Christianity and then vowed not to utter a sound until released. His first utterance was to thank the officers for convicting him. But will his gratitude last?

Butler Export of Australia.

Australia has become an important factor in the world's commerce. The produce of Victoria exported to Great Britain, in 1907, was valued at $1,000,000,000. The value of the exports of Victoria was $200,000,000 in 1907 and $200,000,000 in 1908. For the past two years the export has been over $200,000,000.

Geography of Cecil Rhodes.

The book of Cecil Rhodes, the life of the man who built the empire of South Africa, is a unique book.

Taking Oath in Norway.

Probably the most curious European oath is administered in Norway. The candidate for citizenship has to put his finger and his middle finger. These signify the Trinity while the larger of the uplifted finger is supposed to represent the soul of the candidate and the smaller to indicate his body.

First Woman to Win Scholarship.

Miss Agnes H. Williams, of the University of Melbourne (Australia), has been awarded the first woman's scholarship of $1000 by the University.
