Wonder why so many of our prominent citizens are wearing black eyes? We begin to think it must be fashionable to have an eye draped in mourning.

Fred E. Brooks sold last week, Black King, the famous stallion of the Brooks farm, to Joseph Lutz of Grass Lake, Mich. This fine horse brought $600.

Say! have you got your participation ticket in the music-box-graphophone concert? It's going to be great and you had better see Mitchell for particulars.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Whiting, after a six months' visit with Mr. Whiting's sister, Mrs. Potts of Maple avenue, have gone to Los Angeles, Cal. We'd go too, if we had chink enough.

Only 12° below zero last Tuesday morning and a trifle warmer the day before. With our coal bin down so low that we are ladling it into the furnace by the teaspoonful this begins to look serious.

There is a proposition before congress to double the President's salary, giving him $100,000 a year. It is suggested that he works too hard for $50,000. We wouldn't mind having the job ourselves at that price.

All are requested to wear some emblem designating the month of birth. A prize will be given for the best representation, at the birthday social to be held at the Baptist church on Friday evening next, February 27.

Oil speculation, gold mine speculation, get-rich quick horse racing investments, etc., are not in it with Frank Blakeslee's money making scheme in saving coal. Ask Frank to explain about it. He has a cinch on economy.

The tripple alliance will kindly take notice that there are about eleven million men capable of bearing arms in defense of the United States. We also have a few ships that are still capable of doing a little business in an emergency.

The first, the very, very first of the season! Two prominent citizen of our beloved, beautiful, little village returning from church Sunday noticed a strange dog acting very queer, and on investigating found the dog had a snake about two feet long. This goes ahead of robins—blue jays.

A goodly number of Birmingham gentlemen attended the divine services at the Pontiac opera house on Sunday last. It was for men only and 800 were present. The services were very interesting and resulted in much good in a religious way as well as in other matters pertaining to men.

We learn from the Livingston Herald that our old friend and former clerk, John Barron, has taken unto himself a bonnie bride in the person of Miss Matilda O'Connor. May their wedded life be one uninterrupted term of bliss, and may the little Barrons live to grow up and bless them.

To-night—yes, to night, that's right—the Maccabees give that good old-fashioned dance at Library hall, where fun will be the key note. Let's turn out and try our hand at some of those good old quadrilles, where you balance on the corner and swing with the girl behind you. Fifty cents pays the fiddler.

We are pleased in this issue to present to our readers a letter from Miss Mattie Baldwin. It is right along on Mattie's own characteristic lines—no liquor, no expectorating on the sidewalks, etc. All our readers will be pleased to know she is having a fine visit, and expects to be with us again in the near future.

The Franklin hive, L. O. T. M. M., have postponed their social from February 20 to February 27. The same literary program and fish pond will will take place. Admittance free and supper will be furnished for all who wish to buy. One week from to-night—not to night as previously advertised.

W. H. Sherman of Sedgewick, Colo., is visiting his brother Palmer H. of this place. It is thirty-seven years since these brothers met and the visit is more than enjoyable to both. Mr. Sherman has been in the school room as principal for 46 years. His stay is short and the time is improved by the brothers as you may imagine.

Albert Vendt, three miles north and one half mile east of Royal Oak, will sell at auction on Tuesday, February 24, a little of everything that goes to make up a big auction sale. The sale takes place at ten o'clock and Albert will feed the hungry during the noon hour. This will be a good opportunity to purchase some young stock. Martin Blunt will wield the hammer.

The pioneer meeting of Oakland county will be held at Pontiac on Saturday, February 21, this year. These meetings are very interesting social events, aside from the banquet and program rendered. All persons who have lived in Michigan for 25 years can be members of this society. If you attend once you will wish to go again. Pontiac people provide dinner free to visitors.

George H. Mitchell of this paper met with his brother fellows of the executive committee of the Eastern Michigan press association, recently, to make arrangements for an excursion to St. Louis, Mo. While in St. Louis one day the association will be cared for by the world's fair committee, and the next will be taken up in sight seeing, etc. A jolly time is ahead for ye poor country editaire.

And now the Emperor of Germany has a new grievance. The American people in their simplicity do not enthuse worth a cent over his proffered gift of a statute of Frederick the Great to be erected in Washington. It has been hinted that an intimation has been delicately conveyed to his imperial majesty that no tears would be shed if he kept his precious gift at home. And the emperor is exceedingly wroth.

Dr George P. Raynale was summoned by telegraph from Palmer, Mich., near Ishpeming in the upper peninsular, to take the place of Dr. Buchart, a mine physician who is to be absent about four months. With a really good recommendation from Dr H. O. Walker of Detroit, Dr. George P. starts at once for the scene of his new duties. We predict a glorious future for this promising young physician.

The entertainment given by the young people of the Baptist church last Friday evening was a success financially and otherwise. We have already heard the desire expressed in the following words: "I hope they will give it again." We have been advised that the society has already taken action in the matter but are a little undecided yet. Due notice will be given should they decide to repeat the performance.

On Monday, February 23 (Washington's birthday celebration), there will be a blue rock shoot at the Daniels shooting range. There will be ten contests and the prizes will be divided on the Rose system. Crack shots from Oakland, Wayne and Macomb county will take part, and it is safe to say there will be some fine shooting done. Manager Daniels will see to the comforts of all participants. Fun commences at 10 a. m. A special prize of five dollars will be given for the best average during the shoot.

Everybody says that Mrs. Jarley's wax figures never had so good a presentation to the public as Miss Florence Brayman and Mrs. Ben Eldred presented to those at the Baptist church last week Friday night. The house was packed by a discriminating audience who gave every figure the glad hand. All subjects were fine and in a mechical way worked out their own salvation. All this under the careful and successful management of Mrs. Lora Hunt. Little Miss Carmen Gee of Amy gave a pantomime exhibition and sang several songs much to the delight of the large audience, who were enthusiastic in their applause. It is expected that Mrs. Jarley will show her wax figures at Big Beaver in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hulburt entertained the ladies' literary society at their pleasant home on Monday evening of this week. Over sixty people were present and all enjoyed a fine musical treat. The fine program was filled with vocal selections by Miss Margaret Backus of Detroit and Mr. E. F. Hulburt of our own village. Miss May Preston of Detroit presided at the piano to the satisfaction of all. Miss Marion Hobbs of Detroit gave several violin selections and gracefully responded to repeated calls for more. Miss Olean Doty also played a fine selection that drew for her a round of applause. A delightful Dutch lunch was served to the guests and all were catered to in true Holland style by Mesdames Raynale, Stearns, Satterlee and Miss Belle Smith, dressed in Dutch style, much to the pleasure of their patrons. All together it was a fine and successful affair, and the guests all went away wishing the hospitable hosts many long years of happy life.

School Notes

EDITED BY THE PUPILS.

The Veale children of the primary grades are absent on account of severe colds.

Prof. Field will speak on Washington at the high school on next Monday evening for 7 to 9.

Rather early for cherry blossoms, but Miss Ennis' room has some fine specimens. The branches were brought in the first of January.

Harry Brayman re-entered the fourth grade Monday after an absence of several weeks.

Several members of the fourth and fifth grades are out on account of illness.

The four lower rooms had valentine boxs Friday afternoon. The teachers are evidently very popular for Miss Craft received ten, Miss Ennis seventeen, Miss Pepper eighteen and Miss Koontz sixteen.

About half of the freshmen had charge of the morning exercises on February 11. Each gave an item of current interest.

Miss Hall is reading "Miss Wiggs in the Cabbage Patch," in which the children are very much interested.

The third rhetorical program has been postponed from February 13 to February 20.

The arithmetic class is drawing plans of the school house and grounds, and some good drawings have been made.

Remember the art exhibit March 6 and 7.

How It Strikes an Operator.

A coal operator who was at the capitol to-day entered into an explanation of why coal is high, and as his statement seems to confirm some public suspicions, it is worth printing as he gave it. His mine is in Ohio. Some days ago the company of which he is a part agreed to sell the product at the mine at $1.95 a ton. He was sitting in his office, when several coal dealers appeared. Instead of asking his price a ton, one of them exclaimed in a bold and eager voice: "I will give you for prompt delivery $4 a ton. Another interrupted quickly: "I will offer $4.50." Still another jerked out nervously, raising his voice to the highest pitch: "And I bid $5 a ton." Then by overbidding they carried the cost price up to nearly 300 per cent over the original price the operator had fixed. The consumer was only considered as a man to be supplied as rapidly as possible at exhalted prices.—New York Tribune.

Indian Summer.

There is a legend the Algonquins tell
Of power and splendor of the Great White One;
The God of Light he is, and of the Sun,
And in their strange lore hath no parallel.
He, in the summer, from his citadel,
Comes to the gates of his dominion,
And throws them open when the day's begun,
And shuts them in the evening. But a spell
Saps his puissance when the autumn haze
Spreads its dim-simmering silver on the hills;
Then to the mountain-tops he slowly wends
And, idly drowsing on the dreamy hills,
Puffs his pipe, and as the smoke descends,
Behold our mellow Indian Summer days!

—Lloyd Mifflin.

BACK TO THE FARM.

St. Louis Paper Thinks Policeman Made Wise Choice.

After ten years as a St. Louis policeman Hugh McMahon tired of life in a great city and has gone back to the country. Like Clarence the Cop, he has been "transferred again," but this time at his own wish.

He has gone back from the force to the farm; from politics to potatoes; from courts to carrots; from station to stable; from clubs to clods; from "plug-uglies" to plows; from "pinchers" to parsnips; from mud to meadow; from garbage to garden; from blood to blossoms.

He has gone back from writs to roses; from arrests to rest; from pool-rooms to cool rooms; from sunstrokes to sunflowers and suicides; from violence to violets; from helmets to hollyhocks; from dens to daisies; from running crooks to running brooks; from murderers to meditation; from quick thieves to quiet thoughts, and from "green goods" men to the green things of Nature herself.

Who shall say that he has not chosen the better part of life? "God made the country and man made the town," and at the very best, it sometimes seems, man made a bad job of it.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Goldenrod and Memories.

From far-off, blue Wisconsin hills,
There came a gift of flowers to me,
With prisoned sunlight in their depths,
And fragrance sweet of field and tree.
They spoke of days long passed away,
Of hazy-golden autumn eves,
Of moonlight filtered softly down
Through canopies of yellow leaves.

And like fair ghosts, for years laid low,
Come back to haunt familiar ways,
There rose to mind the fairy dreams
Woven in long-gone childish days;
Dreams great with noble deeds and true;
Of hard-won fame, and wealth and power;
And who shall say the riper years
But mock that golden fairy dower?

For speaks a living voice, as from
The perfumed flowers my friend has sent;
The visions of the child are true,
For what is wealth but sweet Content?
Lo! better than the fairies' pelf,
The hard-earned wage of honest men;
The noblest deeds are every day's,
Done bravely, once and yet again.

Power? It is ours, above a king's,
And godlier than exalts a throne,
If we but make a single life
The brighter, that 'tis next our own.
The soul that rules its living Self
Is mightier than a scepter's sway.
The fairy realm of childish dreams!
It lies about us every day.

W. D. Quinn, Marseilles, Ill.
