Get into a Lottier Region. The true way to conquer temptations is not to fight them in detail, but to go up into a loftier region where they cease to be temptations. How is it there are no mosquitoes nor malaria on the mountain tops? They cannot rise above the level of the swamp by the river. Go up to the mountain top, and neither mosquitoes nor malaria will follow you—which, being interpreted, is, live near Jesus Christ and keep your hearts and minds occupied with him and you will dwell in a region high above temptations.

A Milestone in Dairy Progress.

From Farmers' Review: Not long ago I spent a vacation on a dairy farm. The manufacturer of the product had been previously created to the little co-operative factory in the village two miles away. I felt some curiosity in the matter and accepted the invitation of the farmer to drive with him to the factory one evening after supper when the milk had to be carried over. When the evening was around for a while waiting our turn at the separator. By the time we got back to the farm with the separated milk, which had been returned to the cans, it was 9 o'clock and I wondered whether the tired farmer's wife would have them to wait before the milk was carried over. When the system afforded relief from the awful drudgery that dairy farming used to impose on the woman of the household, I examined to me there was considerable economic waste in carting the milk to the factory and then carting it back, while also in the operation of the separator. Later in the season, in the course of another trip, I met a man brimming with enthusiasm for the hand separator, which, in his opinion, supplied the missing link in the factory system. He explained that with a hand separator the cream could be extracted as soon as the milk had been drawn from the cow and the separated milk, while still warm and in the best condition for feeding, could be taken at once be transferred to the pigs' or calves' trough, thus liberating pails and cans which could then be washed and put away for the morning. With an ice chest or a jacketed can in which the cream could be kept at a low temperature, it could be held without injury until the following morning when the two lots of cream could be taken to the factory, thus making necessary but one trip a day. In some factories a cream gathering wagon is sent around which entirely relieves the farmer of all fetching and carrying. The hand separator, which is the hand separator in the path of progress in dairy farming and I have since noticed that the manufacturer of the separator is giving it first place in the list of their products. It certainly increases the independence of the farmer, for with it he is in a position to manufacture his own butter to good advantage, should occasion arise. I confidently expect to see it become as common on dairy farms as the feed cutter—Martha Adams.

The machine of today is a very different proposition from the hand separator first put upon the market. Any one who doubts its merits should see one for himself in regard to its mechanism and capacity. It will not be difficult, as the separator manufacturers are able to furnish literature bearing on the subject which has been prepared by the best dairy authorities in the country. Write them for it.

Individuality of Cows.

There was a time a few years ago when dairy experts and men that thought they had a great deal to say about cows held the opinion that dairy cows were nearly everything and that individuality in cows was of minor importance. They would hardly concede that it was possible ever to find a good cow in the beef breeds. Within the years a great change has come in public opinion in this matter. Some men of high standing are saying that they do not care what breed a cow is but she is the only thing that counts. Gurler, than whom there is no better dairyman in Illinois, selects his cows without regard to breed, only making sure that he gets animals that have capacity and that are persistent milkers. A. J. Glover, now connected with the University of Illinois, and who is devoting his entire life to the study of dairy lines, makes much of the individuality of the cow. He has found very good cows even among those not supposed to have any individuality. Hence between individual cows is very great. Sometimes a cow is a medium matter but is so consistent that she will do very well in the course of a year's work. Mr. Glover tells of one Guernsey cow that has come under his observation that produces a pound of butter in a year. Let that cow be so weak in constitution that she had to be fed and handled with the greatest care. If she were turned out into a muddy pasture and should fall down she could with difficulty extricate herself or get up. She was wonderful but she was an individuality of her own and not something that belonged to her breed. Pedigrees are sold in Birmingham by Cobb & Cobb to a certain value, but they do not tell all the story. That must be hunted for some time. We cannot yet select good cows by the wholesale and on breed characteristics.

Care of Milk Cream.

The quality of Iowa butter could be considerably improved if the quality of the milk and cream delivered to the factory was better. There is nothing that the farmer or better maker can do to make the milk or cream any better, they can simply keep the milk clean and the cream clean since the farmer has the great handling of the milk and cream, his responsibility is the greater. The cream is the milk that is left after the milk has been strained into clean pans, strained into clean cans, set in the tank of water as cold as possible, the can cover left on and the milk set in the cream house as soon as possible—Ed. Wright.

I Coughed

"I had a most stubborn cough for many years. It deprived me of sleep and I grew thin. I then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was quickly cured."
—R. N. Mann, Fall Mills, Tenn.

Sixty years of cures and such testimony as the above have taught us what Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will do. We know it's the greatest cough remedy ever made. You will say so, too, after you try it.
Consult your doctor. If he says take it, then do so. If he says you do not need it, then do not take it. He will say you will like Ayer's Pills also, to keep the bowels regular.

MY BABY WAS SICK

My baby is 4 months old and is teething. He was sick and I tried a good many things, but nothing seemed to relieve him. I called a doctor, who said it was inflammation of the bowels, and that I would never pull him through—perhaps, if he was under his care. When he was getting worse I stopped giving him his medicine, he could keep nothing on his stomach. He was troubled with colic very much, and used to scream when he had a touch of it. I did not know what to do to close my eyes, day or night. I gave him a few drops of LAXAXOLA and it relieved him. I gave it to him a few times and it worked like a charm, and he now rests pretty fair all night. He is a great deal better, taking baby siccus. I am glad to say that I think if all mothers knew how good it was they would use nothing else.—Miss Mary Dazey, 2105 St. Anne, 287 First, South Boston, Mass.
