

A LOVE STORY BY AMELIA E. BARR

(Copyright, 1909, by Amelia E. Barr)

"CHAPTER IX.—(Continued.) "I care not for such things. I am a poor fool, if Cornelia be not my lady."

"I will see Cornelia for thee," said Madame Van Heemstraik. "I will see the girl what she means. And I will tell me the truth. Yes, indeed, if into my house she comes, out of it she goes not until I have the way, and the wherefore."

"Dear George," the earl said, "I was afraid to disturb you. I have brought you your usual French papers. In this world, I will not care at my message."

"I hear that madame's daughter, which Mr. Morris received at the last hour, has arrived in New York; and yesterday I met Mr. Van Arden, who is exceedingly anxious concerning his daughter, the Marquise de..."

"I am in danger, poor little Arden! What will she do?"

"There is a plan to remove Cornelia out of the country. She will take refuge in Philadelphia. He has long desired you to do so."

"I am sure that you are right in this Philadelphia." "You will write her in New York. Write to your brother, today, and soon as Cornelia is a little stronger, I will go with you to Philadelphia."

"CHAPTER X. "Life Tied In a Knot. One day, after the New Year, Hyde was returning to the Manor House from New York. It was to discuss the matter, and it was a heavy load of business."

"I am glad to be able to say that the old-time feuds which used to prevail in my state have died out, and that the wholesale killings which accompanied them are things of the past."

"I thought it might be needed." "Ex-Police Superintendent Byrnes tells of a noted burglar who died of lead on the brain as a result of a bullet which he had fired."

"Orders" the One Thing Wanted

"Old Gorgon Graham" Gives His Son Pierrepont a Few Pointers on the Duties of a Drummer, When the Latter Starts Out on the Road for the First Time.

"Dear Pierrepont: When I saw you start of yesterday I was just a little uneasy; for you looked so blameworthy and chummy that I am inclined to think you will not be a drummer."

"A real salesman is one-part talk and nine-parts judgment, and he uses the nine parts of his judgment to surround the Old Man in his last stage."

Real Estate Exchange

Of Whitehead & Mitchell at the Exchange Bank, Birmingham, Mich.

The following is a partial list of farm, city and village lots and real estate generally which we have for sale. As our list is constantly changing, we request that parties who wish to see it should write us if they do not find what they want in this list:

- 1. John McFarlin has a nice little farm of 12 acres... 2. Farm of 30 acres, well fenced, well watered... 3. Twenty-three hundred dollars cash... 4. One-half acre of land with a small house... 5. No better farm in the State of Michigan...
