Location of Poultry Houses.
The location of the poultry house is a matter that should receive more attention than it usually does receive. Whether a few hens are to be kept to many, a mistake in this matter is likely to prove unfortunate. Not long ago the writter visited a newly estable ago the writer visited a newly estable ago the writer visited a newly estable many of the most expensive kind, and had constructed large yards for his fowls. The work of the work expensive kind, and had constructed large yards for his fowls. But the whole place of several acres were also also the work of the wore of the work of Should be selected if possible. A heavy undrained soil research to another house of continuous presentations of several to the soil was heavy in character. After a long time in the open ditches. It was a wonder how the fowls could keep reported the loss of the owner reported the loss of chicks from unrecognized diseases. It was therefore no surprise to the writer to learn recently that he had gone out of the business. Not far from that location is another poutry for the second to the soil that is dry. If the say, it rhould be most thoroughly finded. In the case of a poutry established the located on soil that is dry. If heavy, it rhould be most thoroughly finded. In the case of a poutry established the located on soil that is dry. If the say, it is an expense that cannot be avoided. Otherwise, the surroundings will be damp and so will be the poultry bouses; and damp poultry houses on the soil of the poultry bouses and damp poultry houses can be soil to the soil of the poultry bouses and the soil of the poultry bouses and the product where the percention should be selected if possible. A heavy undrained soil prevents the percelulation through it of the dropping, and the products which no other animals seem to discove them. This is an attent of prime importance in keep-will be a publication of the poultry house.

In the first opening of Okiahoma to settlers in 1889, the editor of this paper was among the many seekers after fortune who made the big race one fine day in April.

During his traveling about and afterwaria his camping upon his claim, he economicred his camping upon his claim, he economicred his camping upon his claim, he economic was ever heat, gave him a very severe disraveness which it seemed aimost impossible to check, and along in June the case became so bath one specified to disc. Doe day one of his neighbors brought him one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Chohera and Dielproon.

Homeoff yas a last hope. A big flose was ground in great appray and in few minites the dose was repeated. The good effector the medicine was soon noticed and within an hour the patient was taking his first sound sleep for a foreight. That one little bottle worzed a complete cure, and he cannot help but feel grawfull.
