Could he have stolen upon her in the night? He had fired an arrow and she had felt the delicious pang of the wound in her heart, and wondered if it was love.

CHAPTER TEN.

Samuel Lemuel Rounds.

"The Rounds don't run much true ancestry, I reckon; leastwise one end on 'em don't." Sam Rounds had explained to John Burt on one occasion. "Course I've got a lot of ancestors back a ways, but when you consider they are, I'm glad I know!"

It is reasonably well established that a Round settled in Rehoboth Falls one hundred years before Sam was born, but the latter's recollection did not extend back of his father—one Hiram Rounds. The annals of Hiram Rounds and his family can be epitomized in one word—work.

"Dad shored me up hard work, but he was a real good man," said Sam. "When that war 'n' you know how it was on our farm, he'd hire out two or three neighbors for fifty or seventy-five cents a day. And at night we'd all have chops after supper, working till nine or sometimes ten o'clock. In the winter dad would haul logs two miles, and he'd haul them on the chumplow round Rehoboth. Lots of young fellows came up from Rehoboth and tried to mow a swath with dad, but he would all of a sudden 'kill himself to live,' mused John Burt.

"Well, I reckon I did it—leastwise he did. He was a real good man. Dad did what he was forty-eight. He teamed all night, three nights running, working for the neighbors, and he'd be dead or stroke. Dad warned him then to let up a bit, but dad just wouldn't do it, and he pitched in again. He was ailing, and he'd been on the farm, about eleven o'clock one night, and I guess he had another stroke. The doctor couldn't exactly

He said, 'You're a good man, but you're a little overworked. You should take a rest.' Dad said, 'I'll be right back.' And he was gone for good.

"That's the way it was on our farm. Dad was a real good man, but he was a little overworked. He was ailing, and he'd been on the farm, about eleven o'clock one night, and I guess he had another stroke. The doctor couldn't exactly

Christianity and Cooking.
 The British public has humor, even though it be unbecoming, as the following advertisement for a cookery book, "In a local paper, proves: Cook wanted; no objection to a Christian, provided she is also a good cook."

Delicious
 Mapi-Flake is made from the whole of the wheat, toasted to a delicious brown, and flavored with pure maple syrup.

Whether he had a stroke, or whether he fell off an broke his neck, or both—how he was dead was not his business. Dad did what he was forty-eight. When Sam was able to build a house he declared that it should be his mother's home. He registered a vote that she should live with him in a stock farm. He was ailing, and he'd been on the farm, about eleven o'clock one night, and I guess he had another stroke. The doctor couldn't exactly

THE CAT AND ITS PEDIGREE.

Ornament That Daily Impressed the Marjory.

A pedigree undoubtedly adds to the value of an animal, but all pedigree is not of equal value. In the case of a cat, the pedigree is the one herein described. When Marjory heard that the Maddens had a pedigree cat, with a splendid pedigree, the child was naturally desirous of beholding a quadruped with such a unusual attachment; she had never one with a pedigree, and her curiosity was satisfied, she saw the favored animal in the flesh and became home in a great state of excitement.

"Oh, mother," she cried. "You should see the Maddens' cat. It has a white patch on its forehead, and six inches around and looks exactly like the ostrich plume on your Sunday hat!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Leaves Hard Soft Skin.

A policeman in Buda-Pest recently noticed a man opening the back door of an empty and deserted theatre with a key, after which he disappeared. The officer, becoming suspicious, summoned reinforcements, and a constable having been formed round the theatre, the police entered and found large numbers of thieves and loafers who had been mingling from their usual haunts comfortably. The boxes had been fitted up with beds, and three or four men were seen to be quietly engaged in breaking tools and a large amount of stolen property were also found.

Electricity Warms Water.

When a man at home and wants hot water he goes to the faucet and draws it or else pours it from the kettle on the stove, but the same man driving to the city or to the hotel or boarding house is another story.

Electricity has done so much for humanity in recent years that it is hard to believe that it has not been used to warm water. It is obvious that the electric lamp is not the only use of electricity. It is obvious that the electric lamp is not the only use of electricity.

Until Too Stiff to Bend Over.

"When I drank coffee I often had sick headaches, nervousness and biliousness. After I had been using Postum for two years ago I went to visit a friend and got in the habit of drinking Postum. I have never touched coffee since and the result has been that I have been entirely cured of all my stomach and nervous troubles."

Durability of Liquid Air.

An experiment for the purpose of testing the durability of liquid air has been conducted by the American and German engineers. One morning two quart liquid air were delivered to the railroad at Berlin, packed in a manner specially adapted for this purpose.

Back to His Youthful Days.

When Elizabeth Akers Allen wrote "Backward, turn backward, O Time, in thy flight, make me a child again just for tonight," she did not foresee the response of the great inventor, who was struck on the head by the branch of a falling tree and made unconscious for a time. When he regained his senses he was again in mind. He now wants to play again the same games he played as a young boy.

Electricity Warms Water.

When a man has studied the field of friction cannot fail to have noticed that many of them do not appear to exert as much energy in flying as they do in sliding. This is due to the fact that the motor car and the locomotive are able to run three miles while any land animal is only able to run one. Why the difference? It is due to the fact that the motor car and the locomotive are able to run three miles while any land animal is only able to run one.
