Longevity in British Cities. A child born in London may expect to live about forty-one years, but a Glasgow baby has only a little over thirty-five years' expectation of life.

Under the caption, "The Union Pacific Railroad and Louisiana Territory," the new World's Fair folder is issued by the advertising department of the Union Pacific, which has attracted such general attention, recites these interesting facts:

"While the construction of the Union Pacific Railroad, its trials and triumphs, are a part of the history of the United States, the important part played by this railroad in the development of the Louisiana Purchase can hardly be estimated. It has opened up this vast domain it has been one of the chief factors.

One hundred years ago the population of the region was estimated at 20,000. Up to the time of the Louisiana Purchase (1803) it had increased to 3,225,229. In 1900 it numbered over 13,000,000 inhabitants. In this wonderful growth, with its stupendous increase in all the many-sided branches of commerce, industry, intellectual prosperity, the Union Pacific—as a glance at the map will show—has had a conspicuous share. It has opened vast regions of fertile country to settlement and brought great areas of an unknown and unproductive wilderness into close communication with metropolitan centers, markets, thriving cities, towns and hamlets, through its efforts, have sprung up in every direction.

It may be of interest to know that the total number of manufacturing plants, and the value of the products combined with that of the national products as reported in the census of 1900, give an aggregate product for the Louisiana region of $3,500,000,000 annually, or 252 times the original purchase price. The same census reports (1900) also show the total population to be 12,242,255, of which 1,200,000 inhabitants are living in the states and territories reached by the Union Pacific. On the 1890 census, the population estimated that the true wealth of the Louisiana purchase can be stated at about $1,000,000,000, of which $1,000,000,000 is represented in the states reached by this great railroad.

Life's improvement depends on the profits we make of its reports.

A NAME IN THE SAND.

Benington looked after Lucy Altman with amazement. Only the night before he had promised that she would marry him in the spring and had sealed the bargain with a kiss. She had been tender and loving then.

REPROBATION and REPENTANCE.

There was a slight pause, and before he could gather his senses Benington found himself outside the closed door. It would never do to make a scene on the front steps. Benington was determined to get at the bottom of the mystery, but this was not the place.

When he returned to the city, he was a different man. He had been through a great deal, and he was a different man. He had been through a great deal, and he was a different man.

Benington turned the letters over to her. She looked at them with a mixture of surprise and indignation. She had been through a great deal, and she was a different man.

FORCED HIMSELF TO WORK.

Queer Way Historian Prescott Had for Curbing Laziness. Bolton Ogden in his brief and very readable biography of William H. Prescott, the historian, cites many passages from the diary showing Prescott's habit of forcing himself to work by making wagers with his secretary that he would complete a given task by a certain day.

When the orchard is young and the soil is rich, it will generally pay the grower to plant corn in the rows during which the trees are reaching the stage of fruit bearing.

Potatoes and tomatoes are two crops which are often raised together in the orchard. Both are well adapted for the soil and the climate of the orchard.

When to Stop Cultivation. Cultivation of the orchard should be stopped in the fall. The soil should be left to rest during the winter months.

The American Eagle to the Rescue. A young man, who had been working in the orchard, was injured by a falling branch. He was rescued by a passing stranger.

"Are you sure you will never make a mistake again?" "I can't say I won't, but I will do my best."

"Come to the tableaux vivants to-night," said the manager. "I will give you a chance to shine."

U. S. SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA.

Recommends Pe-ru-na For Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble.

U. S. Senator H. C. Butler from South Carolina, was Senator from that State for two terms. In a recent letter to the Peruna Manufacturer, he writes: "I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia as a stomachic."

Catarrh of the Stomach is Generally Caused by Dyspepsia—Something to Destroy Irritable Digestion is Generally Taken.

Hence, Pepsin, Pancreatin and a Host of Other Digestive Remedies Has Been Invented.

These Remedies Do Not Reach the Seat of the Difficulty, Which is Really Catarrh.

Peruna has cured more cases of dyspepsia than all other remedies combined, simply because it reaches the seat of the difficulty.
