CHAPTER XXIV—Continued.
They strobed into the conservatory, for the first 'mme R-wag alone with castle Carden, and a chiese of existed applients surged over him.

Phate had formulated up plan of margine for the conquest 'desire Carden, and a chiese of existent the continued 'the continued' of the continued 'the control of the continued 'the continue Elike's admiration; but she neith-recognized nor took advantage. It.

Though he knew that the odds cre overwhelmingly against him, of that one clase step near irreduced to the control of the control of place noise there. Mes Carden was then a little girl, but I remember her distinctly. That's all, if you demand evidence, I have not the slightest doubt that Miss Carden or the except the slightest doubt that Miss Carden or the except in little slightest doubt that Miss Carden or the slightest doubt that Miss Carden in the slight slight and in the interval he regained his composure.

The play ended, and Arthur Morris again joined the Blake party as they waited for the crowd to leave. He declined Blake's invitation to supper, pleading a previous engagement.

"I am chaperoning the governor."

I shall be origined; excanned as in, who could not resist the temp-sis, who could not resist the temp-sis, who could not resist the temp-size as a straight of the first time at the ke box. The smile of yoy when recognized legale turned to one blank amazement when he saw as the same of the temperature of the temperature of the temperature of the box way through the crush. Blake it was picking way through the crush could not be read to the temperature of the box way through the crush size of the property of ale's laughing eyes admitted the and Blake looked properly conhall have to forgive you." Blake o Jessie, "but you are taking fair advantage of a wild Westhave the reputation of being said Morris, laying his hand ify on Blake's shoulder, "but know that your good fortune d to an acquaintance with trden."

know than your port of the total acquaintance with redear as shade of insolence in the same and the same t

name the changes he laughed, pointing to hig father, with the woman he gentleman sit- of compositor bit of the compositor bit of the

CHAPTER XXV.

The Marille of Charity.
It was late on Sunday morning whom Blake are to reach the office of the state of the castom in New York. Blace looked forward to what had ever been a pleasure, with an aversion not unmixd with fear.

He rang a bell and his valet responded.

He rang a best and nis vasce traponded.

"Mr. Burton will dire with me at work and the state of the state of mot laste it.

Take that stuff away and bring me more brandy," he ordered.

Again he rend the braced paragraph, it had a fascilation he could also the study of t

gold mine."
As the hours speed by and the dark red line in the decanter dropped lower and lower, liske's courage aroused to such a pitch that he welcomed the coming of John Bart.
"By God, we'll settle this matter now and here!" he exclaimed as he now and here!" he exclaimed as he may be a such as the courage of the cour

Beard Did It.

A recent graduate of one of the great universities secured a place with a well known firm at a modest salary. He fulfilled all his duties satisfactorily, but there seemed in the satisfactorily of the seemed in the satisfactorily.

on the strength of the beard."—New York Sun.

Record Lecensive Building.

The Stratford works of Great Bastera Railway, in England, have the Tecord of a locomotive engine built in ten hours—a large freighter with a tender. Before the actual construction was begun the various parts were laid close at hand, ready for fitting to gether. The workmen began early in the morning and continued until the Burner and the strength of the

been in active service ever since.

A Prophet Without Honor.
The late Hugh Stoyell Scott, fa. mous as Henry Seton Merriman, author of "The Sowers," "The Viltures" and other novels, was a man of extraand other novels, was a man of extration of the Sowers, "The Viltures"
and other novels, was to sold of him.

His father, who we told of him.

His father, who we told of him.

His father, who we told of him.

His father who we have to told of him.

His father who we have to the London Graphic, had an unaccountable objection to his son's following a literary career, and tried to make a business man of him. His son, wrote in secret under a pseudosym, and, although his work was suctioning to the sort of the son to the production of the stater.

On one occasion his father placed before him one of the young author's own stories, saying, "Now, if you could write a book like his, it would be another thing altogether."

And still the son kept silence.—
Harper's.

Harper's.

What the Senator Thought.

Who southern men," said "Joe" Blackburn, "often look at a pretty women meth ha we would at a picty women meth has we would at a picty women meth has been a present and women method to be a present and
women method to be a present and
way that I not long ago resided ary
orbs spou a handsome young woman
way that I not long ago resided ary
orbs spou a handsome young woman who was walking up and down the platform at the station at Washington waiting for her train.

"Soon abot turned and saw me.

"book off my hat.
"I took off my hat.
"Madam, said I, beg a thousand pardons. I took the liberty of admirlig you because I thought you were the real thing."—New York Times.

The Cop—Yes, sir, yer honor, an' at I was passing by the corner the pris oner here, who was blockading desidewalk, sprang at me troat and struck me wid his fist, and it was only by superhuman effort dat I brung him here.

He Coughed Up.

Very Sad.

Deacon Fowler—Ye seemed great by affected at th' sermon I preached. Farmer Tenderheart—Yes, Yer chin went up and down with them whis-kers on, an' reminded me so much of our poor dead Billy Goat that I just burst right out a-cryin' an' couldn't

"Oh. George!" she exclaimed, bib-terly, "I beard you tell your friend that you didn't love me any nore. Boo hoo!"
"Don't cry, dear," he whispered ten-derly, "I mean it as a compliment. Of ceurse I couldn't love you any more than I do now."

Gut Rich Quick.

Gunter—They say Barker has been married three times. Did he make any money out of marrying so often?

Guyter—T should say so. He made as much money out of marrying as a 41 Joe minister.

Real Estate Exchange

3.

6.

10.

38.

42.

72

we speak No. 5a. A powral with. * §§§.

75

Cottage, number 79 Oak Hill street. Poutlass Mich., a rooma and attic. Haff a mile from the court boose. Price $975, each of installments. The court boose. Price $975, each of installments. The court boose. Price $975, each of installments. The court boose. The price $1.00 one of the court boose. The price $1.00 one of the price $1.00 one wishing to parchase will fair formation one wishing to parchase will fair the fair angle like Exchange flow.

83

93

About a they will interest you.

One of the best form, whittens exception, in the township of youthfield, 12 acres and, no waste land. Well fenced and thoroughly thedronece excellent orchard, is except good heavy and the place can be bought on eavy terms to the youthfield or the place of the place of the bought on eavy terms to place with the place of the bought on eavy terms to place upon the place of the bought on eavy terms to place when the place of the bought on eavy terms to place with the place of the bought on eavy terms to place when the place of the bought on eavy terms to place when the place of th in the big, wicked city. Eighty-five acres, soak timber. Soft a rich, loamy gravel, 6 fine orchard, whole farm lenced with best a wire fencing with cedar posts, miles and of tile drain and about a mile from the ic road between Birmingham and Pontiac.

97

Price $1.500. Come on and let us
106
House and two lots on Stanle ngham. 195x 100. well, cistern, or worth $1.000 and that's all we use
Wouldn't that take you to the fal

112

114

Old Established Papers

Bring Best Results

to Advertiseral

115