The Love Chase

BY KEBLE HOWARD

"Where's the church?" cried Monica. "There" asked Jack, a little indifferently. "There! Can't you see the spire peeping through the trees? Put your head out of the window."

"No, thank you. I might get a splurp or something in my eye." Monica sighed deeply. "I think you might try," she protested. "I am trying. I've been trying ever since we left Baker street. I am bound to admit, however, that you are the present."

"I shall call it something worse than that in a minute." "No, my dear. I'm so sorry. I've been making. Let me see if I can get it out." She sat down heavily, took the handkerchief, wetted one corner and screwed it into a point.

"Now, open your eye. Is it at the top or the bottom?" "I dunno. It's hurting most confoundedly, wherever it is." "Look out! Try to keep quite still. Look down." "I am looking down. Don't keep on jabbing me like that."

"I'm not jabbing. Jack. It's no use in getting in a temper about it. I'm losing my best." "Better leave it alone and let it come out by itself." "Then it may go on hurting you all day. Keep still a moment. Is it better?"

"Get! It's only a tiny little speck, after all." "You wouldn't think it so tiny if it had been in your eye, I'll bet." "I expect not. Hallo! Here we are!" The jerk slowed down and stopped with a jerk at a small country station.

"That's a new porter," whispered Monica, as they descended the steps. "Very likely." They don't generally keep their stations like this for five years, you know. "Five years isn't so very long."

CARE IN TESTING FLOUR.

Big Mills Take Pains to Ascertain Quality of Output. "It is surprising to note the difference that exists between the flour of different brands of flour," said G. D. Hutchinson, the representative of one of the big mills in Minneapolis, Minn.

"After the flour is ground comes the crucial test. A sample is taken and made up in bread. We have four bakings a day, and from twenty to thirty loaves are baked each time, each one representing a sample of flour."

"When the trees in his orchard at Fresno, Cal., are getting cold feet or chilled hearts, he calls for me. I get on up on the phone, so to speak, and tell him to get up and put a hot water bottle or a blanket on them."

"Whenever the temperature is too low for the comfort of the young buds, in any way, the 'monitor tree' with its thermometer registers a note of woe in Mr. Bolton's bedroom and keeps it up until measures have been taken to warm the trees up."

"That the idle rich of to-day are worse than the French aristocracy is the opinion expressed by Lady Helen Forbes in a new number of Lacy Helen's magazine. The French aristocracy, she says, was obliged by the necessities of the time to live in the capital and grind down its dependents, but the modern idle rich live the life they lead from choice."

"Every time the traitor Polly chases Reason from her throne, she is obliged to come a little more than she should. It's not so much that she is so much more than she should, but that she is so much more than she should."

"Here is a farmer's mode of ridding his premises of rats and mice: 'If you will sprinkle sulphur on your barn floor and through your corn as you gather it there will not be a rat or mouse about. I have done this for several years, and I have never been troubled with rats or mice. I have some old corn in my crib and bread and not a rat or mouse can be found in stacking hay or oats, sprinkle on the ground and a little sulphur each load, and my word for it, rats or mice can't stay there. A pound of sulphur will be sufficient to preserve a large barn of corn and it is good for stock and will not hurt the corn or bread.'

"In legal courts the solicitors must always appear in their robes. A London newspaper of recent date contains the following: 'I can neither see you nor hear you,' said Judge Edge to Mr. Turner, a solicitor at Clerkenwell county court, when that gentleman, in a plea of non est, proposed a barrister's application to have a case adjourned. Mr. Turner began to put on his robe, but Judge Edge interrupted. 'Now, will you do me a favor? I will not have this case made a rubbing room of. Next case, a barrister protested that it was an injustice to his client, but the judge ordered him to be silent.'

"The most puzzling thing about Espous is the origin of the name. Philologists are busy working on the question. They are divided on its derivation. Some say it is from the Dutch word 'Espous', the early English word for 'marriage', with the odds in favor of the latter. Some say it is from the Dutch word 'Espous', the early English word for 'marriage', with the odds in favor of the latter."

Mrs. Rosa Adams, niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C. S. A., wants every woman to know of the wonders accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me, suffering from the lice peculiar to the sex, extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I had used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyancy of my younger days returning, became regular, could do more work and did not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it. Yours very truly, Mrs. ROSA ADAMS, 319 12th St., Louisville, Ky."

"Some of the doctors say these causes Indigestion. Others declare it is a fine substitute for meat. During the meat strike, the first medicine I tried was 'doce' prepared in Mr. Bolton's bedroom and keeps it up until measures have been taken to warm the trees up."

"I am always a cinch when men take extraordinary financial chances, but it is frequently hard even when you hold them to get both pedros into your own pile." "A Chicago man robbed the slot machines and was sent to jail. No man ever yet monkeyed with one of these devices that he didn't get the 'sort of it'."

"We always wonder at the bravery of the able-bodied man whose wife supports it, by taking in washing. It takes nerve to face that." "Many a modern man hearing the old saying 'You are your Name' written 'There' would presume the interpretation of 'there' to be Bradstreet's."

"Heavy local pressure is usually accompanied by lowering clouds if father happens in just as his daughter is being pressed." "As the campaign approaches, wise men are having their fall suits made sans buttonholes. No man loves these flying tail-coats!"

"Clay machines for $25 each is said to be one of the probable future blessings that will not fly high on their own away." "Love is not always blind, but in instances of this sort it frequently wears blinders and is checked too high to be natural." "The baker never gets round-headed carrying the holes in his doughnuts. Moral—Do not lose sleep worrying over nothing!"

"There are more petty quarrels to the square inch in a town of 2,000 people than turtles' eggs on a caviar sandwich!" "Modernized utterance—'A school house on every hill top and a bishop-fleeced saloon in the valley!'" "No matter if the other relatives are out of a picnic party, the aunts always invite themselves." "Though our timepieces are frequently in error, few of us ever miss seeing that man!" "Opportunity is not placarded and seldom is it good for any but the man who does not recognize his own, or get left!" "A barbed-wire fence is seldom broken to a man in a flutry linen suit." "There is no waking at the barkeep in the 'mopel' saloon!" "It looks like Lassa would soon be dropping her 'h's'!" "A man is not guilty until his wife catches him at it." "Straw votes are ripe!"
