A COLD STEIN.

An Application For Clemency Turned Down Hard.

One of the most cold-blooded crimes in the history of the upper peninsula has been recalled by the refusal of the state board of pardons to recommend clemency in the case of Frank Stein, convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced from Dickinson county to the Marquette penitentiary.

The crime was committed a dozen years ago near Sagola. The victim was Patrick Carey, a cedar jobber, by whom Stein had been employed. The killing was carefully planned, according to the evidence adduced, and it was committed for a paltry sum of money. While Carey was walking from the Sagola railroad station to his camp, Stein, who was concealed behind a clump of bushes, struck his victim as he was passing a fearful blow with an ax, crushing his skull.

Having robbed Carey's body of a sum of money and a watch, Stein dragged the corpse to the Milwaukee railroad track, where he placed it across the rails, hoping it would be run over by the night train and thus destroy all evidence of the murder. The body, however, was discovered by the trainmen in time to prevent the being ground beneath the wheels. Suspicion fastened itself upon Stein, and a few weeks later he was arrested by detectives in Chicago.

AFTER MUKDEN

The Japs Are Enveloping the City to Seize It.

The latest development in the situation at the front is the despite established fact that Field Marshal Oyama has now begun to move up his left. Gen. Kuropatkin's report shows that the Japanese have reached Davan, on the west bank of the Liao river.

A considerable concentration of Japanese is observed at Sandepu, on the Hun river, 35 miles southwest of Mukden, and Japanese cavalry is massing in the valley of the Pu river. The latter is a tributary of the Hun river, which crosses the line of railway, midway between The Pass and Mukden, and may furnish a natural line of advance from the west.

Oyama's armies now apparently cover a front of 60 miles for enveloping movements. His wings are extended to the north and west of Mukden. Thus far the Russians have found little strength or pressure from the Japanese center. Oyama seems to be moving with great deliberation, probably gathering strength for a rapid advance of both wings when an attempt is made to close the net.

Although the imaginary line connecting the Japanese advance east and west of Mukden still passes ten miles below that city, it is evident that the fate of Mukden cannot be long delayed. If Field Marshal Oyama intends to try to hold the city fighting on his flanks will begin almost immediately.

On the Pompeii side the eruption is very threatening and a great quantity of ashes is being ejected. The eruption is more violent than at any time since 1872. Red hot stones are hurled to a height of 1,000 feet falling down the flanks of the mountain with a deafening sound.

MUST APOLOGIZE.

An Auto Causes an Big Tempest in Massachusetts.

The following telegram bearing on the case of Hugh Gurney, the British diplomat who was arrested at Lee, Mass., for speeding his automobile and fined for contempt when he refused to plead, was sent to Squire Phelps, who imposed a penalty, by Acting Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., of Massachusetts:

"The assistant attorney-general informs me that if the facts are as stated you have in your endeavor to enforce the laws of Massachusetts for the security of life upon our highways committed in this particular case a grave breach of international law. May I ask you to telegraph me at once if Mr. Gurney was arrested and fined in spite of protest. Other chancels of redress are open in case of the violation of Massachusetts laws by the diplomatic representatives of other nations. Therefore, if fine was improperly collected the British government will apologize. The fine must be remitted and I need not suggest to one so respected as you the personal amend that you will, of course, desire to make to Mr. Gurney for the error in method adopted by your court in this unusual case. Kindly forward me affidavit of the evidence of any breach of Massachusetts laws."

Gurney is third secretary of the British embassy and was fined $50 on two charges, $25 for contempt of court, and a similar fine on a charge of speeding his automobile in Stockbridge Sunday.

It is believed at the state department that the matter may be far more serious than local officers at Lee seem to regard it. By constitutional and statutory law, the persons attached to any embassy are expressly relieved from any legal responsibility and the exception even extends to domestic servants.

Justice Phelps, who imposed the fine, said: "If I find that I have made a mistake, I will gladly apologize," he added. "I did only what I believed to be right."
