A VERY HOT DAY

Strange Experience While Down

It seems that Mr. Rue Van Every, of Southfield, while hunting coons, came across the track of a large one and fol-lowed it to Virginia where he treed it up a tobacco plant about daybreak the next a tobacco plant about daybreak the next morning. Mr. Van Every was about to start back, when seeing a little cabin he thought he would stop and rest as it was getting quite hot. He walked to the door and looked in and saw all the immates lying on the floor. It was now extremely hot. He asked for Ad rink of on milk and was informed that it was so hot that they could not milk but if he wanted to milk two cows he could have his herekist and all the milk he wished to o milk two cows he could have his breakfast and all the milk he wished to breakfast and all the milk he wished to drink. He picked up a pail and started out to milk. By this time the heat was intolerable. Mr. Van Every milked one of the cows and milked so fast and it was now so hot that when he emptied the milk it was lobbered. Rue returned to Michigan at once, while the joon still lives undisturbed in the tobacco plant.
