A CAVALRY STORY

QUICK MOVES BY COL ASHBY AND HIS WHITE HORSE.

Horse and Rider Were Eventually Killed, But Never Taken Into Camp as Prisoners.

General Banks' and Shields were sent into the Shenandoah Valley in 1862 with an army of 60,000 men. The 1st Cavalry consisted of the 1st Michigan Cavalry and a battalion of New York men.

The infantry Generals had been clamoring for more cavalry to serve as the "eyes of the army," but General Scott and Halleck had postponed the idea.

Colonel Ashby had an independent command of Southern mounted men, opposing the army of Banks. Colonel Ashby was a magnificent man. From my own experience I believe him to have been the best mounted soldier in the North.

There are few horses, even the most valuable ones, that have received the advertising that an imaginary horse, "Black Beauty," written by Anna Sewall has received.

There is something about a horse or a dog that appeals to the best portion of every man's nature.

FOR A MERCHANT'S CONSIDERATION.

An exchange with more than the ordinary amount of acumen publishes the following: "A certain newspaper man in another country relates an experience that might shed some light on the matter of business."

Origin of Famous Saying.

In olden times a quorn, or hand mill, was used for grinding corn. Before the grain was ready for grinding it was winnowed in a heavy framed sort of sieve called a "sieve."

STOOD UP--DEAD.

The temple at Jerusalem was nearly rebuilt when Sionias died. The rulers knew that the workmen wouldn't go on and that if Sionias were not standing against a watch stick, so they leashed him against a stout stick, dead as a doornail, and the work went on.

A Well-Advised Horse.

There are few horses, even the most valuable ones, that have received the advertising that an imaginary horse, "Black Beauty," written by Anna Sewall has received.

A Fearful Fate.

It is a fearful fate to have to endure the terrible torture of pain. "I can truthfully say," writes Harry Colson, of Massachusetts, Inc., "that for blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles, Buckner's Anticure, is the best cure made."

CONTRIBUTOR GIVES AN EXPRESSION ON CONDUCT OF THE LIQUOR BUSINESS IN OAKLAND COUNTY.

If after all these years of waiting, the liquor laws are to be enforced in Oakland Co., then will many a weary mother and child have heart and thank God for answered prayer, and in no part of our county will there be greater joy than right here in our own village.
