WORK DONE

THE WORK OF THE SESSION OF STATE LEGISLATURE DONE.

RESULTS PLEASE GOVERNOR WARNER, SO HE FRANKLY STATES.

IMPORTANT MEASURES THAT BECOME LAW BRIEFLY NOTED.

With the usual horseplay in the closing hours the forty-third legislature of Michigan concluded its work for the 1905 regular session, and while final adjournment will not take place until June 17, no further business will be transacted. The galleries of both houses were crowded with visitors almost up to the last minute of the session which lasted until 12 o'clock midnight Wednesday. "I am highly gratified at the work of the legislature of 1905," said Gov. Warner. "The appropriations are reasonably low, the railroad legislation gives the roads no advantage over the people, and the primary bill going beyond the platform, is in line with the people's wishes."

The legislature of 1905 was in session five months, and held sittings on 94 days. The house has received 902 bills, the senate 450. In the house one committee on towns and counties, Chairman Fisk, reported 55 bills, all of which passed.

The legislature has provided for two new state boards—the state board of accountancy and the securities commission. The state tax commission has been continued as the highway commission has been restored. One new institution, or institutional experiment, has been established, the tuberculosis hospital.

An important addition to the judiciary of the state is provided in the bill for juvenile courts.

Another judicial change is the passage of the Brown bill, allowing trial judges to have an advisable maximum in imposing indeterminate sentence, and requiring the pardon board to look into each case upon the expiration of the minimum sentence.

Next to judiciary legislation important work has been done in tax legislation. The Read bill to change the tax on vessels from an ad valorem tax assessable locally to a tonnage tax payable to the primary school fund caused much discussion.

The tax commission now has power to equalize between railroad and general properties, and sleeping car companies are to be taxed. The state tax commission is to be reduced to three members and the attorney general has been given authority to examine the books of railroad companies.

The railroads have not fared well, while the electric railways, which are desired by the farmers, and are rivals of the railroads, have been treated royally. Two new powers of importance have been conferred on electric railway companies—under the Elchorn bill they were given the power of eminent domain and the Simpson bill the right to own steamboat lines. The "G. R. & I." fare bill failed miserably, and if the Baillie bill to cut out damages for suffering of persons injured in accidents and who die from their injuries, advantages railroads, the houses were unaware of it at the time, and the house has repudiated this act by voting for a repeal bill.

When it was thought that the omission of the subrogation clause in the insurance policy bill would help the railroads, the clause was promptly restored. Both in this and in the Baillie bill the railroad interest was not known at the time of passage, and when it was known things were different. The Simpson bill to make railroads common carriers of live stock passed the house, and only narrowly failed in the senate.

Corporations in general have received safe and sane treatment. This is true with regard to bills that have passed and bills that have been killed. The Smith bill releasing certain corporations from obligation to file lists of stockholders was held up in the house committee. The Lord bill, requiring patent rights, copyrights, good will, etc., to be included in company statements passed both houses, and it is expected it will be a serious curative for overwatering of stock.

Although important because of the interest taken in the subject, the labor and liquor legislation of the session is very slight. The only labor bill to become law is the Duncan bill to prohibit women working at polishing or buffing. Legislation for or against the liquor dealers has failed, except the provision in the general primary law to close saloons on primary days. All of the anti-gambling bills failed.

In public health and education a number of important matters have been done. The state board of health has been reorganized, the state board of education has been granted the repeal of the one mill tax, and the deaf schools of the state are brought more under its supervision. School districts may now bond themselves without asking Lansing, the first real home rule bill. The powers of the state superintendent have been increased. The new compulsory attendance law makes the full year the necessary term of attendance and makes country deputies truant officers. The school legislation of 1905 is thought by the department to be the most important in years.

In general state affairs the bill that has attracted most attention is the Holmes bill regulating the speed of automobiles. The game and fish laws that were passed were the result of able discussion and wise compromises, and do not effect any very great changes.

The bank legislation has been toward conservatism and security. The Partlow bill, allowing state banks to organize in cities of 1,000 or less, with a capital of $15,000, was killed. Rep. Lord's bills to prevent fraudulent manipulation of bank assets, to raise the necessary capitalization of loan societies from $50,000 to $100,000, to require two examinations yearly of all banks in the state outside of reserve cities, instead of one each year, has at present, to widen the scope of investible securities and create a securities commission, all passed both houses. The house approved the administration bill for the state examination of private banks, but it failed in the senate.

The primary bill that has been passed and signed is not what everybody wanted, but it is more of what more people wanted than any other measure that was presented. Else it would not have passed. The primary bill, whatever its mechanism may prove to be, is in its terms a worthy type of the hard working, conscientious, compromising legislature of 1905. There is no doubt that at the opening of the session the majority of house and senate were in favor of a strict platform bill. The two new state institutions, with all allowances for growth and extension, the total this session is only $166,991 75. *

Flint's Jubilee.

The spectacular parade of soldiers, sailors, the G. A. R., Masons and other fraternities having passed into memory, and the greeting to Vice-President Fairbanks and the laying of the cornerstone of the new federal building, which proved an occasion of much enthusiasm, having also become history, Flint, in the midst of her golden jubilee Wednesday turned to the more intellectual side of life and made the dedication of the new Carnegie library and the dedication of the new Genesee county court house the central figures in the second day's program.

The Saginaw Strike.

The street railway men's strike in Saginaw and Bay City is attended with violence, though public sympathy is with the strikers. In Saginaw Tuesday Fred Harris, a strike breaker from Cleveland, was killed by Henry Wade, Jr., who abbuted an abusive term to him as a car passed. Two others were wounded, Terrence Kelly and Wallace Dunham, both were shot through the left legs and their injuries, while painful, are not likely to be serious.

A plain face is its own chaperon.

The Indian who was arrested at Dowagiac for laying ties across the track in front of a passenger train gave his name as Mike Catalk, and says he is from Milford. He was placed in jail at Cassopolis and at his examination next Friday the Michigan Central attorneys will appear to prosecute him on a charge of attempted trainwrecking. Since sobering up Swalk says that he remembers nothing of the affair.

The 17-year locusts which dispatches say are spreading throughout southern Wisconsin are due to appear in some counties of Michigan this year, according to Prof. R. H. Pettit, of Michigan Agricultural college. The swarm is known as brood No. 8, and has been under observation for a number of years, but it is said that their numbers will not be sufficient to cause serious damage. According to Prof. Pettit the locusts are looked for this year in eastern Iowa, northern Illinois, northwestern Indiana, a part of Pennsylvania and in several counties in Michigan—Berrien, Branch, Cass, Hillsdale, Oakland and Wayne.

No street cars were running in Bay City and Saginaw Wednesday owing to violence and wrecking of cars on Tuesday.

H. G. Wait, of Mt. Pleasant, had his neck broken and died almost instantly from a fall down stairs at the home of his son-in-law, J. F. Randall.

That babies can survive hard knocks was evidenced in Kalamazoo when the seven-weeks'-old baby of Jacob Schreckgrust was blown off the porch by a gust of wind and struck on its head on the cement pavement seven feet below and was uninjured.

Spanish anarchists tossed a bomb into the palace of the governor-general at Barcelona on Friday evening. No one was killed, but considerable damage was done.

MEANS TO SEEK NORTH POLE.

Wealthy Youth Will Devote Life to That End.

William Ziegler, the 14-year-old boy who was left $30,000,000 by his foster father of the same name, is slowly recovering at Stamford, Conn., from injuries received in a pillow fight on April 1 last and the effects of three operations.

The boy, who will have an income of $1,000,000 a year, has been brought up to understand that he is a son of the man who fitted out polar expeditions. His books are volumes dealing with adventure in the far north seas. He has been made to understand that there is no doubt in the minds of the friends of the family who are permitted to talk with him. He has spoken of the polar expeditions frequently since his father's death. He is interested in having the location of the north pole set at rest.

Within two weeks Mrs. Ziegler will take the boy to some resort for a change of air. It is expected that by then he will be able to walk.

WOULD-BE ABDUCTOR SOUGHT.

Large Reward Offered for Man Who Threatens Child.

When John Jay Tonkin, a wealthy resident of Oswego, N. Y., discovered what he considers indubitable proof that the man who for more than two years has been pursuing his 12-year old daughter, Rosamond, to kidnap her had begun his exertions to that end, he offered a reward of $50,000 for clews leading to the identification of the would-be abductor. In the publicity attendant on Mr. Tonkin's action there was revealed a tale of persecution in the form of threatening letters and attempts to steal the child that caused the terror-stricken mother to flee from her home and has resulted in her prostration. So keen is her fear that the effort may be successful that now she never trusts the girl out of her sight. The only motive the kidnaper can have, it is said, is to secure the $50,000 ransom money through taking advantage of the intense love of the parents for Rosamond.

On Inside of Fashion.

Lady Duff Gordon, who is the sister of Elinor Glyn, and from whom the author obtains some of her data of the doings in high life, has been giving a unique private exhibition of "psychological" frocks at the London dressmaking establishment conducted by her under the name of Mme. Lucile. One tableau illustrated "The Seven Ages of Women," from the schoolgirl period to that of the dowager. Both Lady Duff Gordon and Mrs. Glyn are noted for their beautiful costumes and the gossip of this famous establishment furnishes Mrs. Glyn with very strong local color for her risque romances, as well as a framework of fact upon which to weave her plots.

Seven Pounds of Costly Stuff.

The lightest of European crowns is the state crown of Great Britain, which was made for Queen Victoria sixty-six years ago. Although it weighs only two pounds seven ounces, its value is $1,500,000. One enormous sapphire came from the signet of Edward the Confessor. One of the rubies has a sadly tragic history. It was at one time in the possession of one of the great kings of Granada, whom Pedro the Cruel invited to his palace and basely murdered him through greed for this gem.

Point of Military Etiquette.

Lieut.-Gen. Chaffee, chief of staff, recently rendered a decision regarding the proper construction of the infantry drill regulations requiring troops to "stand at attention" while the national air of "The Star Spangled Banner" is being played. He holds that the regulations do not mean that the troops shall uncover when out of doors, but if does mean for them to uncover if indoors without side arms. The question was raised by Capt. George L. Byroade, retired.

GAS AND WATER

IS ONE AS NECESSARY AS THE OTHER?

Citizens of Large Cities Say It Is.

New York, June 13.—In the recent agitation here about the price of gas, the demand for lower rates was supported by the argument that every resident is as dependent upon a supply of gas as upon a supply of good water.

It has come to pass that the day laborer uses gas as his only fuel for cooking, because of economy, and the rich man uses gas on account of its convenience. Gas for lighting, with modern improvements in burners, is cheaper, better and more satisfactory than any other kind of light. Gas sells at $1.00 per thousand cubic feet in large cities and from that to as high as $3.00 in smaller towns.

The consumer of gas in the country uses Acetylene (pronounced a-set-a-lene), and each user makes his own gas and is independent of Gas and Electric Companies. Acetylene is a more perfect illuminant than the gas sold by the big gas companies in the cities, and the cost to the smallest user is about the equivalent of city gas at 25 cents per thousand.

Acetylene is the modern artificial light, the latest addition to the many inventions that have become daily necessities.

The light from an acetylene flame is soft, steady and brilliant, and in quality is only rivaled by the sun's rays. If water and a solid material known as Calcium Carbide are brought into contact, the immediate result is the making of this wonderful gas. The generation of acetylene is so simple that a child may operate apparatus is not necessary to make it. If it is desired to make it for practical lighting, and to keep it for immediate use, then a small machine called an "Acetylene Generator" is employed. There are many responsible concerns making acetylene generators. In practice, this gas is distributed in small pipes throughout buildings, grounds, or entire cities and towns, in the same manner as ordinary city gas. Acetylene is the only satisfactory means of lighting isolated buildings located in the country or suburbs at a distance from city gas or electric plants.

Some Famous Sayings.

From Dryden comes "through thick and thin" and "none but the brave deserve the fair." Nathaniel Lee an English dramatist of the seventeenth century, wrote "when Greeks joined Greeks, then was a tug-of-war"—one modern "a case of Greek meet Greek." Shakespeare, of course, has showered the moderns with household phrases. Matthew Prior of the seventeenth century passed down to us "of two evils I have chosen the least"; Byron gives us "let slip the dogs of war"; Smith, "ask me no questions and I'll tell you no fibs," and Cowper "not much the worse for wear." "Selling a bargain" and "fast and loose" comes from "Love's Labor Lost," and Pope's prologue to "Satires" gives us "Yes, I am proud." "As good as a play" originated with King Charles when in parliament attending the discussion of a divorce bill, and Cowper exclaimed, "God made the country and man made the town."

RAILROAD RATE LEGISLATION.

Testifying before the Senate Committee at Washington, Inter-State Commerce Commissioner Prouty said in discussing the proposition to give to that Commission the power to regulate railway rates:

"I think the railways should make their own rates. I think they should be allowed to develop their own business. I have never advocated any law, and I am not now in favor of any law, which would put the rate making power into the hands of any commision or any court. While it may be necessary to do that some time, while that is done in some states at the present time, while it is done in some countries, I am opposed to it. * * * The railway rate is property. It is all the property that the railway has got. The rest of its property is not good for anything unless it can charge a rate. Now it has always seemed to me that when a rate was fixed, if that rate was an unreasonable rate, it deprives the railroad company of its property pro tanto. It is not necessary that you should confiscate the property of a railroad; it is not necessary that you should say that it shall not earn three per cent or four per cent. When you put in a rate that is inherently unreasonable, you have deprived that company of its rights, of its property and the Supreme Court of the United States has jurisdiction under the fourteenth amendment to restrain that. * * * I have looked at these cases a great many times, and I can only come to the conclusion that a railroad company is entitled to charge a fair and reasonable rate, and if any order of a commission, if any statute of a state legislature takes away that rate, the fourteenth amendment protects the railway company."

Peculiarity of Swiss Lake.

Lake Morat in Switzerland, has the curious property, every tenth year, of turning red, owing to the presence of certain water plants which are not found in any other lake in the world.

AN AWFUL SKIN HUMOR.

Covered Head, Neck and Shoulders—Suffered Agony for Twenty-five Years Until Cured by Cuticura.

"For twenty-five years I suffered agony from a terrible humor, completely covering my head, neck and shoulders, discharging matter of such offensiveness by night and small that I became an object of dread. I consulted the most able doctors far and near, to no avail. Then I got Cuticura, and in a surprisingly short time I was completely cured. For this I thank Cuticura, and advise all those suffering from skin humors to get it and end their misery at once. S. P. Keyes, 149 Congress Street, Boston, Mass."

95

193 1-3 acres in Southfield township, within six rods of a good school house. Drilled well, living water runs through the farm the year round. Farm well fenced and thoroughly drained. Buildings worth $4,500. Six acres of orchard, 10 acres of timber. This is a splendid, ideal stock farm and at so low a price that we are not allowed to say right out loud what it is.

99

An ideal country home for anyone. House worth $2,000 with all the conveniences you can have in the big, wicked city. Eighty-five acres, 5 acres oak timber. Soil, a rich, loamy gravel, 6 acres fine orchard, whole farm fenced with best wire fence, surrounding with cedar posts, miles and miles of tile drain and about a mile from the village of Birmingham, and about one mile from the city; without exception the finest location in our village; brick house, 10 rooms, bath, etc., cost $6,000 to build it; lot about 225 feet; front on the boulevard and about 200 feet deep. Now the price is so low that we wouldn't feel justified in mentioning it to any one except yourself. But if you want the best house and lot in our town at a price that is not high, we want to get it in the present condition, you surely would do yourself an injury if you don't call on us and let us take you to see it. That's right!

100

Farm of 71½ acres on the Twelve mile road, 1½ miles east of the Electric Railway on Woodward avenue, two-story house, good barn and building which are leased for $100 per year. Dark loamy soil, admirable for truck gardening; plenty of fruit of all kinds. Price $6,500.

101

Farm of 31 acres in sections 22 and 15, Southfield; 2 acres best grafted fruit, 5 buildings in fair repair, $2,000, all place fenced, well drained and under a high state of cultivation. Price $3,000.

102

Two story brick residence in the village of Franklin, Mich., and one of the finest in the country, with beautiful surroundings, nestled among the hills and valleys of the prettiest little village in Eastern Michigan. The cellar is divided into vegetable, provision, laundry and fuel rooms, and has thirteen rooms above and five closets, hot and cold water, furnace heat, bath, etc. Price $4,500 and it is worth more than you could possibly have in the city. Two acres of ground, with fruit, barn, hen house and corn house combined, work shop for odd hours on old jobs, iron fence around entire lot, flagstone walks, house fronts east and north on a corner lot of one acre. The house alone cost $6,000 to build and is as good as new as well as finished. Plenty of fruit—an ideal place for city people who would like to have a home down in a pleasant little country village and rest. Price (we are ashamed to say it), $4,500. Terms, half cash, balance on long time and easy terms. If you live in the big wicked city and would like to see a place that would suit you, we will take you to see this place and be glad to get acquainted with you whether you buy or not.
