

Riding

In the morning of estacion. They were out to the pink and white persimmon. We shall ride out in our carriage.

When there comes life's noontide golden. In the fashion, good and old. Let us twain go flying riding.

When the falling shadow lengthens. And the day no more is bright. Who knows a stranger with a scythe.

Who knows a stranger with a scythe. Says the stranger with a scythe. —McLendon Wilson

"I don't understand why my wife is so infernal gloomy," remarked Captain Hill, of the schooner Whydah.

"That shows the foolishness of women," replied the mate, flourishing his pipe and speaking in an argumentative tone.

"I didn't know it was myself until a 'half hour ago," replied the captain, with intense gloom.

"The mate looked at Mrs. Hill with visible perturbation, then he brightened and he helped that lady aboard with deference.

"Who's in there, Henry?" demanded Mrs. Hill. "Mrs. Hill" demanded an astonished glance at the plate.

"She's one of these hearty English girls you read of," replied the mate, cheerfully.

"The next morning Mrs. Hill announced at the breakfast table that she intended giving the captain's caddy a complete renovation.

"I've just had my caddy cleaned," said Mrs. Hill. "The mate thought for a moment and would doubtless have admirably explained the omission of the captain's caddy from the renovation.

"The mate and skipper looked at each other in affrighted silence. 'Who's in there, Henry?' demanded Mrs. Hill, with a rising infection of voice.

"There's a liddy aboard," the word to stay in the caddy till goes to Lannon. We'll be there by noon to-morrow at the latest.

"Who's that?" ejaculated the skipper, turning to the mate.

The unshaven man had a passage to London, but when the schooner was at the wharf the skipper addressed the mate.

Colored Witness Left No Doubt as to His Meaning. Down in Mobile there is a dinky, a carpenter by trade, who according to John Sharp Williams, has a local reputation for quickness at repartee.

"I'm a carpenter, sah," said Bots. "What kind of a carpenter?" asked the attorney.

"Jackleg carpenter!" sharply reiterated the lawyer. "What is a jackleg carpenter?"

"Well, sah, a jackleg carpenter is what we culd folks calls a carpenter who ain't a fut-calls carpenter."

"The fish was thrown into a pond in a nearby pasture and no more attention was paid to the excited boy and child, who during the year has caught sight of the fish occasionally while he was playing near the pond.

From a minnow it had grown in a year to 8 1/2 pounds, and there was a fish carnival at the Van Kirk ranch that evening.

Thomas W. Lawson recently received a shock at his own specialty. He was driving a spirited horse to a light vehicle.

"By that clock," continued the land-pointing to a street clock in front of a jeweler's.

"All right," assented the boy, with a sudden alacrity in contrast with his previous hesitation.

"The man in the red coat in Mexico. You watch the sun, a blazing orb, descending with growing swiftness and wreathed in a veil of fire.

"The person who sneezed in 'this room,'" said Mrs. Hill, shortly, "who is it?"

CARP THRIVE IN ARIZONA.

Lady Resident at That State Votes for Fact. About a year and a half ago Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Van Kirk picked up a little fish in the desert north of town.

"The fish was thrown into a pond in a nearby pasture and no more attention was paid to the excited boy and child, who during the year has caught sight of the fish occasionally while he was playing near the pond.

Perhaps the earliest protection to trees in the colonies was in Massachusetts, for in 1627 Watertown was moved to mark the desert by the trees.

Thomas W. Lawson recently received a shock at his own specialty. He was driving a spirited horse to a light vehicle.

"By that clock," continued the land-pointing to a street clock in front of a jeweler's.

"All right," assented the boy, with a sudden alacrity in contrast with his previous hesitation.

"The man in the red coat in Mexico. You watch the sun, a blazing orb, descending with growing swiftness and wreathed in a veil of fire.

"There's a liddy aboard," the word to stay in the caddy till goes to Lannon. We'll be there by noon to-morrow at the latest.

"Who's that?" ejaculated the skipper, turning to the mate.

Of Wide Interest.

street, Wis., June 26.—Special-Commissioner P. Peterson, chief of police for Oconto Co., has delivered a judgment that is of interest to the whole United States.

Underclothes Marked With Crests. Austrians of rank have their crests and coronets worked on their undergarments. A case was tried in the Venetian courts not long ago in which a splendidly crested coat was found.

Curfew Does Not Ring. The historic bells of Chester, parish church of which inspired Homer's famous verses, "Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight," have lately stopped ringing.
