

By SUSAN COOLIDGE

I would tell that I must die to-morrow, That the next sun Which sinks should bear me past all fear and sorrow...

I do not think that I should shrink or falter, But just go on, Doing my work, my change nor seek to alter...

And, lying down at night for a last sleeping, Held on a scroll, Say in that Ear Which harkens ever: 'Lord, within Thy keeping...

I might not sleep for a while; but peaceful, tender, My soul would lie, All the night long; and when the morning splendour...

But if a wondrous hand from the blue yonder Held on a scroll, On which my life was writ, and I with-wonder...

What could I do, O blessed Guide and Master? Other than this: Still to go on now, not slower, faster...

Step after step, feeling The close beside me, Through thorn and thicket, flowers, whether the tempest hiss; Or Heaven serene, Assured Thy faithfulness cannot betray...

I may love decay, I may not love; My God; no hand revealed; Thy counsels wise, Along the path a deepening shadow stretcheth...

Let me keep on, abiding and unfeared, Through a long century's ripening fruition, Or a short day's; Thou cannot count me down; and I can wait...

When We Are Old.

When we are old, the fair world is so bright with song we list'ning 'a; our laughter lifting on another's tongue...

When We Are Old.

When we are old, there is no lovelier thing that speaks not youth, that fades not in the old-time dawn...

When We Are Old.

When we are old, our love, like a dream it is; the sweetest of the blimmable bliss, the flower, is blown, is ours...
