ATAXIA FOUR YEARS FOLLOWS MALARIA CONTRACTED IN SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

Wetlin Had Become Helpless When He Tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but Was Cured in Four Months.

Because he did not know that there is a remedy for ataxia, Mr. Ardel endured four years of weakness, pain and the misery of thinking his life was over...

"How did the ataxia begin?" "I first noticed a pain in my ankles and knee joints. This was followed by a numb feeling in my legs. At times I had to drag myself around; my legs would shake or become perfectly dead."

"How long were you a sufferer?" "Four years in all. For the last three years I was confined to bed, some times for a week, again for three or four weeks at a time. When I was lying down the pain in my back was frequently so severe that I had to be helped up and put in a chair to get a little relief. I had consulted several physicians and had taken all the medicines they prescribed, but they all failed to do me any good."

"How were you cured?" "I read that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured several cases of ataxia and one or two friends advised me to try them. In the fall of 1903 I began to take them for myself and I had not taken more than one box before I found that the pains in my knees and ankles were greatly relieved. Four months after I became a perfectly well man, and I am today enjoying the best health of my life."

Dr. Edward H. Ardel lives at No. 45 Fowles street, Amesbury, Mass. Every sufferer from locomotor ataxia should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Write for any drugstore can supply them.

THE COMIC WEEKLY: FIGHTING FOR A MILLION

BY CHARLES MORRIS BUTLER. Author of "The Devotion of Phoebe," "A Timorous Traveler," "The Cowpat," 1904, by Charles Morris Butler.

"At last you are in my power," said Schiller, as he peered into the help-

Huntington suffered something, but it was unintelligible on account of the gag in his mouth.

"Where is he?" she asked. "I suppose they have taken him down to Squibb's stable. I heard the men say something about it. That is where the man who broke his leg was the day after yesterday."

"Perhaps," Whitley continued, as he inquired by a greater happy thought, "perhaps your father is not so badly hurt as was at first thought; merely bruised a little, he may have managed to relieve the driver's action."

"After a whispered conversation between these three men, in which it became known that Sharkey and Pearson seemed to be trying to persuade Schiller to abandon some project he had scrubbed off the note which was found upon the center table. "Not without some misgivings was Pearl assisted, to a seat beside White- body. When she thought of the supposed condition of her father she had no fear but what she was doing perfectly well."

"You look like A villain and a villain!" was the retort. She had come to struggle now and Schiller proceeded to reach her father again. "Have good cheer, father," she said, "and do not waste your strength and handkerchief over her mouth. "All will be well!"

"After bidding the girl no time was lost in preparing to move. The team had been turned around, Pearl and her father were forced into the wagon and stretched out upon the bottom upon a pile of straw, then the whole party set out. Whitley and Schiller were seated in the front of the driver's seat; Sharkey and Pearson sat in the rear of the wagon with their feet hanging over the back, completely hiding from view their positions."

"I bid farewell to freedom, home and family," said Schiller, tamely to the man who had broken his leg. "For you never will enjoy them more. It is my turn now. I swore to you even with you, and I mean to do my worst. You have made me suffer years of toll and the loss of freedom, and now I will break your neck indignantly upon your coffin."

"He was turned around, Pearl and her father were forced into the wagon and stretched out upon the bottom upon a pile of straw, then the whole party set out. Whitley and Schiller were seated in the front of the driver's seat; Sharkey and Pearson sat in the rear of the wagon with their feet hanging over the back, completely hiding from view their positions."

CONSTANT ACHING.

Back-aches all the time. Spots your appetite, weakens the body, worries the mind. Kidneys cause it all and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills relieve and cure it.

"Who are you?" she asked at last, sobered by the vehement words of the great scoundrel.

"My name is Schiller, of whom you have no doubt heard, and you are the daughter of the cow-pat."

"You look like A villain and a villain!" was the retort. She had come to struggle now and Schiller proceeded to reach her father again.

Baby's Terrible Sore. Body Raw With Humors—Caused Under Operation—Doctor Did No Good—Cure by Cuticura. "My child was a very delicate baby. A terrible sore and humor broke out on his body, looking like raw flesh, and causing the child untold agony. My physician prescribed various remedies, none of which helped at all. I became discouraged and took the matter into my own hands, and tried Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment with almost immediate success. Before the second week had passed the soreness was gone, not leaving a trace of anything. My daughter is now 14. 231 Riverside St., Rochester, N. Y."

ACCENT NOT GOOD ENOUGH. Otis Skinner Unsuccessful in Fooling Englishman.

It is a common experience of American tourists to be recognized at once as Americans when in England, and the readiness of the English in general to understand the English language, Mr. Skinner was not inclined to go into a shop in Warwick one day so that Mrs. Skinner might acquire the price of her new window which caught her fancy; he insisted that the clerk would instantly class his voice as American, or his clothes, or something, and it was all so tiresome.

"Why don't you use that wonderful stage English accent of yours and fool the man?" suggested the clever wife. The idea was a good one, and Mr. Skinner smiled and acquiesced, and, asking, with the rising inflection and true British casual manner—the price of his wares. Mr. Skinner was charmed with the art of performance. "This 'ere one," said the shopkeeper. "Well, sir, his sells for five shillings, but he has about one dollar in your money, sir."

BOY SAVED THE EXPRESS. Little Fellow's Sharp Eyes Prevented Serious Accident.

Theodore Redinger, 3 years old, whose father is in the postoffice service and attached to station E, Manhattan, prevented a serious wreck at New York Park, L. I.

Recently some wheels for farm wagons were received at the station. They have tires nine inches wide and the hubs, spokes and felloes all of iron. An express loaded cast rubber pad the depot and the vibration caused one of the heavy wheels to rise from its position against the freight hook and along the platform in the wake of the train, and then out upon the rails, where it fell. It lay so long and difficult to see because of the station platform. No one saw the mishap except the boy, who was looking out of the door. His mother was sitting in the waiting room.

After the train had passed he returned to his mother and said that one of the big wheels had rolled off the platform. She told him he was mistaken, but he insisted and said it was not on the track. Mr. Redinger finally went out on the platform to see what the child meant and at once saw the danger. She called for a lift, but it was unable and so called out Station Agent Ferriss. Less than a minute after the wheel was removed the second express went past.
