Admiral Hichborn Praises Pe-ru-na

REAR-ADMIRAL HICHBORN

Admiral's Words Carry Weight.

Rear-Admiral Hichborn is one of the best-known officers of our navy. His statements concerning Peruna will have much weight as they go out in the world. What he says is echoed by many other officers of high standing.

What the Admiral Says.

Philip Hichborn, Rear-Admiral of the U. S. Navy, Washington, D. C., writes:

"After the use of Peruna for a short period, I can now cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy to any one who is in need of an invigorating tonic."—Philip Hichborn.

An Ever-Present Foe.

The soldier and the sailor are especially subject to catarrh. In the barracks and on the field, Peruna is found equally efficacious to overcome this physical enemy. If taken in time it will prevent colds from developing into catarrh. Even after a cold has settled in some organ of the body, Peruna can be relied upon as an efficacious remedy to promptly overcome it.

Peruna will relieve catarrh, whether acute or chronic, but a few doses of it taken in the first stages of the disease will be more effective than when the disease has become established.

COLORADO FARM PRODUCTS.

The plodding farmer may be slow, but in the end, in his race with other lines of industry that seem to hold out brighter promises, he proves to come out as did the patient tortoise in his race with the hare. The latest illustration of this comes from Colorado, a state which only a few years ago was dazzling the world with the riches of its gold and silver mines.

The annual reviews of Colorado's progress show that in 1905 the state produced the greatest amount of gold of any year in its history, a total of $29,000,000. But in the same year the grain and potatoes, hay and other produce from Colorado farms aggregated more than $40,000,000 in value. Silver was higher in value than for several years, and the production of this metal in Colorado rose to $11,500,000, but the combined product of the orchards and sugar beet patches beat the total of silver by $1,500,000. Five million dollars' worth of lead was marketed, which is just about equal to the value of the fat lambs shipped. The whole value of the product of the metalliferous mines of the state was $43,000,000. The products of the farms aggregated more than $70,000,000.

More money is being invested in agricultural projects in Colorado than in the development of mines. Reservoirs and canals originally planned for placer mining have been diverted to irrigation, and the next few years seem like to see the area of highly productive farming lands in the state more than doubled. The "man with the hoe" seems to have secured a start over the man with the hammer and drill, which the latter will never be able to overcome, unless some very remarkable new discoveries of mines are made.

Brevity the Soul of Ghosts.

"Here's the shortest ghost-story in the world," said the rednosed man who now, with the coffee, broke silence for the first time at the dinner.

"Two men were traveling from Boston to New York; strangers, but sharing between them the smoking compartment. After a bit, one laid by his magazine and said: 'Seems a bit jolty right here.' 'Yes,' replied the other, 'I was killed just here three years ago.'

"Shortest in the world, did you say?" remarked some one at the other end of the table. "But here's a shorter. A certain old bachelor waking up late at night, reached out his hand for the matches, and they were handed to him."

Then the host nodded to the butler.—The Sunday Magazine.

Bunk Overcomes Seasickness.

The self-leveling bunk for the prevention of seasickness, which has been experimented on for some time on one of the Dover-Calais boats, has been found so successful that it is proposed to install it on all the steamers of the service.

Donate Wedding Cake.

Among the gifts recently received by the Church Army, a London organization, was an ancient wedding cake, sent on the golden wedding anniversary of the donors, with the remark: "It is rather old, but we thought perhaps you would like it!"

TRACED TO EMPEROR TIBERIUS.

Originator of Remark About "Forty, Fool and Physician."

It would appear that the Emperor Tiberius was the originator of that well-known saying: "Every man at forty is either a fool or a physician." But Tiberius said thirty, not forty, so Bacon informs us in his "History of Life and Death":

"Tiberius, though a drunkard and luxurious in his diet, was yet very careful of his diet and used to say that every one after thirty was either a fool or a physician."

Probably Bacon's authority was Tacitus ("Annals," book VI., chapter 46), who says of Tiberius that "He was wont to make sport of the physicians, and of people who after thirty needed others to tell them what was good or bad for them." In Tacitus, of course, the epigrammatic flavor is lost.

But why has popular usage altered the age from thirty to forty? Simply on account of the alliteration, so caressing to the popular ear. De Quincey, who quotes the modern phrase in his "Opium-Eater," dwells upon its alliterative value, and conjectures that our forefathers emphasized that alliteration by spelling physician with an F. Likely some of them did. The strange thing is that De Quincey seems to have been ignorant of the fact that the craze for alliteration had gone so far as to change the age in the proverb.—Penn Steele in The Sunday Magazine.

Possessed of a Devil.

In a small town in one of the southern states a very good-natured minister of one of the churches of the town was presented with a pair of new breeches.

His old ones were not quite worn out, so the new ones were hung in an unfinished chamber to wear on state occasions. The occasion came, and the preacher donned his breeches, which in the meantime had been the abode of several hornets.

He entered the pulpit and began his three hour sermon. His "firstly" was a little uneasy, his "secondly" showed signs of a coming storm, his "thirdly" was a regular cake walk and before his "fourthly" was finished he said: "Brethren, I am awfully sorry, but I can't finish this sermon. You'll have to excuse me. The word of God is in my mouth, but the devil's in these breeches."—Washington Times.

Didn't Want Green Loosters.

Mr. McDonald, who sells lobsters on Portland pier, being short of help, hired an Irishman who was not doing anything and told him to go down on the lobster car and dip up some lobsters and send them up. After waiting some time he looked down and saw Pat dipping out the lobsters and throwing them overboard. He exclaimed: "What are you doing that for?"

"Sure the things are all green, said Pat.—Boston Herald.

Bishop Mistaken For a Tramp.

Dr. Stanton, Bishop of Newcastle, Australia, who recently died, was frequently mistaken for a bushman or a "Sundowner," which is Australian slang for a tramp. Once a squatter, who expected him as a guest, thought he was lost, and sent out a party to inquire. They came upon what they thought was a derelict "Sundowner," camped by the roadside, who proved upon inquiry to be the Bishop.

Joys of Missionary Bishop.

Dr. William Dudley, bishop of New Caledonia, told recently some of the joys of a missionary bishop: "I travel about my diocese with a tent, a bundle of blankets and a Gladstone bag. I do my own cooking, washing and mending, though I take care not to have too many things to mend. I even know how to make yeast."

Tragic Result of a Kiss.

At times a kiss has been the prelude to a tragic sequel, as was that bestowed in 1718 by Prince Ferdinand of Bavaria upon Princess Thyra, the near relation of a ruler of a neighboring state, where he was on a visit. This affectionate greeting, a heedless whim of the moment, was given under the very eyes of the princess' bethothed, who, naturally taking umbrage, soundly rated the thoughtless prince. Words came to blows, which resulted in a duel being arranged, and diplomatic relations between the two states were broken off. In the war that followed, although hostilities lasted but six weeks, over a thousand lives were sacrificed.

To Ventilate a Room Properly.

The right way to ventilate a room is to open the window at both top and bottom. In this way you provide an entrance for a friend and an exit for a foe; for as the fresh air rushes in the foul air is expelled.

ANCIENT LEGAL TOME

VIRGINIA CLAIMS OLDEST LAW BOOK IN AMERICA.

Brought to America 272 Years Ago by the Rev. John Cotton, Its History Is Clearly Traced as It Has Passed From Father to Son.

The oldest law book in all America, brought to this continent by the man who named the city of Boston, is turning yellow with each added year of age on a library shelf in the home of a distant son of its original owner here.

The book, which must be handled with caution now, lest its leaves crumble, was brought to America 272 years ago this fall. It came because Rev. John Cotton was too puritanical in his tastes to suit the authorities of the Church of England.

As vicar of St. Botolph's church, Boston, Lincolnshire, he was summoned to appear before Archbishop Laud. Rather than appear, he fled to America. Among his other books was this old "Collection of the Statutes from the Time of the Magna Charta unto the Yere of Our Lord 1574." It has been handed down from son to grandson until it has reached the fifth generation, and it is now held by Col. Samuel Storrs Cotton of this city, a man more than 85 years of age. The book at its last birthday was 331 years of age.

Nearly three centuries ago John Cotton was pastor of the largest church in Great Britain. When he came to America the party of colonists with him who landed at Boston resolved to name the new town for him in honor of his old home town. The American encyclopedia tells of this incident, under the head of "Boston." Cotton was a prominent antagonist of Roger Williams.

En route to the new world a son was born to John Cotton and his wife. The son was named "Seaborne," in honor of the voyage. This book became Seaborne's property at manhood, and at his death it went to his son, John. Thomas was the son of John, who got the valuable volume, and Simeon received it at his father's (Thomas death. It is Simon's name which is scrawled across the title page:) "Simon Cotton, His Book, 1774."

Joseph Cotton, another New Englander, became the possessor of the book after his father, Simon, and Joseph's son grew up to seek a fortune in the new west. He came to Nebraska when houses were unknown. And with him he brought his old book. This was Samuel Storrs Cotton, later Col. Cotton.

Traced back beyond John Cotton, the family tree extends directly to the famous Robert Bruce. Four generations are now living in Norfolk—Col. Cotton; his daughter, Mrs. Mary Mathewson; her son, J. Storrs Mathewson, and his little daughter. One of the facts justifying the statement that this is the oldest law book in America is that Col. Cotton has searched in libraries all over the country, both personally and by letter, and has practically established the fact that this is the oldest in the land.—Norfolk, Va., special in New York World.

Pete Poulin's Own Note.

A thrifty Frenchman named Poulin, who owned a small farm near Caribou, Me., occasionally would borrow small sums from a leading merchant in town, always giving his note without indorsement, always paying it promptly, and always being obliged to pay a good interest charge for the accommodation.

In the spring of 1905 Mr. Poulin heard of a cow he thought was a good one that he could buy for $30, but he did not have the cash, so he applied to the merchant for the amount, but stipulated that he should write the note himself, instead of letting the merchant write it, as had been the custom. This was agreed to, and the following is what he wrote:

"For value received I promise to pay thirty dollar in thirty day. The man no come no money he bring the note no good not a dam thing. Pete Poulin."

Curses on the Danube waltz!

Don't you know the fourth commandment—
Won't the racket ever end?

Must you run the awful gamut,
Won't you ever stop that din?
Stop it—cut it out—confound it!—goodness!

Heavy Losses Through Riot.

The naphtha companies of the Russian Baku district, not satisfied with the government report as to their losses during the recent riots, have issued a supplementary report of their own. In this they show the actual cost of restoring the industry to its former condition will be at least 40,000,000 rubles—over twice the figure given by the government experts as the total loss.

Emaciated by Diabetes; Tortured With Gravel and Kidney Pains.

Henry Soule, cobbler, of Hammondsport, N. Y., says: "Since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me eight years ago, I've reached 70 and hope to live many years longer. But twenty years ago I had kidney trouble so bad I could not work. Backache was persistent and it was agony to lift anything. Gravel, whirling headaches, dizziness and terrible urinary disorders ran me down from 168 to 100 pounds. Doctors told me I had diabetes and could not live. I was wretched and hopeless when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they cured me eight years ago, and I've been well ever since."

When we were nearly to our destination—just fancy!—I looked down, and it wasn't Bess' hand at all, but I was holding that of a young man whom I had never seen. FOUNDER OF BUDDHIST FAITH.

Siddhartha Gautama, the Teacher Whom Millions Follow.

Buddhism, professed by about one-third of the human race, arose out of the philosophical and ethical teachings of Siddhartha Gautama, who lived during the fifth century, B. C. His father was chief of the Sakyas, an Aryan clan occupying the banks of the Rohana, about 100 miles north of the city of Benares, and within sight of the lofty summits of the Himalayas. Little is known of his youth except that he married his cousin at the age of 19, and gave himself up to a life of Oriental luxury and delight. When about 30 the mystery of human life pressed heavily upon him, and led him to spend the next six years away from home and friends in practices of great austerity and in constant and well-directed meditation. He at last by sheer force of thinking arrived at a knowledge of the truth, and assuming the title of Buddha (enlightened), set out for the sacred city of the Brahmins, where he preached with great success. After traveling over most of India and making many converts, he died at the age of 80 while sitting under a tree near Kusinagara.

LIGHTNING'S POWER TO DRILL.

Will Pierce Through Rock Which Would Turn Cold Steel.

"Lightning, when in the mood, has an ugly habit of drilling," writes an English observer, according to the Philadelphia Record. "It will drill the hardest rock—rock which would turn cold steel; and not only drill, but vitrify it. They have found in Cumberland channels thirty feet deep and from two to four inches in circumference. The interior was hard glazed where the solid substance had been melted by the stabbing flashes. Artificial experiment has shown that a powerful shock from a battery will vitrify finely powdered glass, but not feldspar or quartz. The lightning, however, does it in the manner described—not in one place, but in many, showing that before striking the ground it divided into several branches, each strong enough to penetrate and liquefy the solid rock."

Odd Bequests in Wills.

Among the wills of early days are found bequests which are amusing. In 1648 the widow of John Granger of Scituate, Mass., in her will "gives to her son John a saw, a broad axe, and a narrow axe, when he is 21 years of age." To daughter Elizabeth a bed and bedding, one heifer, also one great mortar and pestle, and one great kettle."

LOST EYESIGHT

Through Coffee Drinking

Some people question the statements that coffee hurts the delicate nerves of the body. Personal experience with thousands proves the general statement true and physicians have records of great numbers of cases that add to the testimony.

The following is from the Rockford, Ill., Register-Gazette:

Dr. William Langhorst of Aurora has been treating one of the queerest cases of lost eyesight ever in history. The patient is D. A. Leach of Beach county, and in the last four months he had doctored with all of the specialists about the country and has at last returned home with the fact impressed on his mind that his case is incurable.

A portion of the optic nerve has been ruined, rendering his sight so limited that he is unable to see anything before him, but he can see plainly anything at the side of him. There have been but few cases of its kind before, and they have been caused by whisky or tobacco. Leach has never used either, but has been a great coffee drinker, and the specialists have decided that the case has been caused by this. Leach stated himself that for several years he had drank three cups of coffee for breakfast, two at noon and one at night. According to the records of the specialists of this country this is the first case ever caused by the use of coffee.

The nerve is ruined beyond aid and his case is incurable. The fact that makes the case a queer one is that the sight forward has been lost, and the side sight has been retained. According to the doctor's statement, the young man will have to give up coffee or the rest of his sight will follow and the entire nerve be ruined.—Register-Gazette.

Let it be remembered that the eyes may be attacked in one case and the stomach in another, while in others it may be kidneys, heart, bowels or several nervous prostration. The remedy is obvious and should be adopted before too late.

Quit coffee, if you show incipient disease.

It is easy if one can have well-boiled Postum Food Coffee to serve for the hot morning beverage. The withdrawal of the old kind of coffee that is doing the harm and the supply of the elements in the Postum which Nature uses to rebuild the broken down nerve cells, insures a quick return to the old joy of strength and health, and it's well worth while to be able again to "do things" and feel well.
