Tots Wearing False Curls

LATEST IDEA FOR SMALL GIRL'S ADORNMENT.

Natural Hair Matched with Braids Warranted to "Stay Put"—Hard to Get Shades That Exactly Correspond.

The hot, moist days of summer developed a new class of victims of the false hair habit. One of these was seen the other day seated in front of a large mirror in a fashionable hair-dressing establishment, patiently watching the selection of just the right shade of hair to match her own golden locks, says the New York Times. The clerk and a fond mamma were superintending the matching process, and the owner of the little golden head looked tired and sleepy. She was not over five or six years old, which any one will admit is really a trifle too young to be vitally interested in such a grown-up question as the matching of false hair.

Investigation revealed the fact that such a youthful victim is not at all an unusual sight at fashionable hair-dressers. The modern mamma does not accept with folded hands and meek submission the fact that her darling's hair has a wilted appearance on a sticky day. Resignation is one of the old-time virtues. Instead of accepting the fact gracefully the modern mother looks for a remedy, with the result that the poor child is dragged to the hairdresser's and has her natural hair matched to a couple of curls warranted to stay in a distinctly spiral outline regardless of the humidity of the atmosphere.

According to the testimony of those who know, many mothers are now purchasing false curls for their small children, and many a topknot bow of bright-hued ribbon conceals the dwelling line, twixt a little tot's own hair and a couple of store curls. Those experienced in the business of matching hair say that it is almost impossible to get just the right shades to correspond perfectly with the tints of childhood. They are very different from the usual shades bought in false hair, and matching a child's hair perfectly is considered the work of an expert—so say the authorities in this branch of business.

IDEAS FOR THE HOSTESS.

Some Novel and Simple Ways for the Entertainment of the Guests--Bird Contest--Pretty Table Decoration.

L. P.

A pretty scheme for an October 31st party is to cover a door entrance with jet black muslin, ornamented with gilt stars of paper. In this curtain, which must be stretched tight, cut a round hole about the size of a silver dollar. In an unopened room produce thunder by rattling strips of sheet tin, and lightning by flashing a dark lantern.

Announce to the guests that the "oracle" will receive questions, and answer them by passing slips of paper through the opening. A clever person behind the curtain can make this very interesting and amusing.

Picture fortune telling may be made another attractive feature. In a basket place a number of pictures cut from magazines and advertisements, let each guest draw a picture. Each picture is taken to the "fortune teller," who has a copy of what each picture is supposed to represent, for instance, a ship illustrates that the holder will marry a naval officer or take a journey to a foreign country. A small house, signifies "love in a cottage," a diamond ring means an engagement, a teapot or cat indicates single blessedness, etc. It will readily be seen how fortunes can be made to suit any entertainment.

In addition to the irregular Halloween of nuts, apples, popcorn, cider, etc., have individual pumpkin pies, baked in gem pans, doughnuts and coffee.

A Bird Contest.

The answers to these questions are all specimens of the feathery tribe, and the programmes may be ornamented with pen-and-ink or sepia drawings of birds.

A Table Decoration.

A table decoration that elicited much favorable comment from the guests was the star flower in the center of the table, the place cards were star-shaped, bearing appropriate quotations, such as:

"Look; how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold."

"Who can count the stars of heaven,
Who sing their influence on this lower world."

"Silently, one by one, in the infinite meadows of heaven Blossoms the lovely stars, the forget-me-nots of the angels."

"Ye stars, which are the poetry of heaven."

The ices and cakes were both heart-shaped, and the hostess wore a beautiful jeweled star in her hair.

MADAME MERRI.

WAISTS FOR THE WINTER.

Lace and Soft Stuffs Are to Have the Call.

"What are your most popular materials among the lingerie waists?" asked a woman at the shirt-waist department.

"Among the lingerie waists which we class as lace waists there is nothing as popular as all lace," was the reply. "There were waists made entirely of a heavy yellow lace which looks like the old-fashioned Irish, and these are find the best sellers of all. They look rich, wear well and launder nicely. We also sell a great many Irish Point waists at moderate price and in these waists few women will go over $10 or $15, but we have them all the way up to $50.

"All lace waists are lined with either chiffon or lawn this season. They are thus made more substantial and better fitting. There is scarcely a lace waist in our establishment that is not lined with chiffon, or with very delicate lawn, or with a chiffon weight of silk.

"In our thin waists we find mull popular for all the season. We also find linen and lawn very fashionable. And these waists are now made up dressy enough for wear all winter. It would surprise the uninitiated to know to what extent lawns and dainty mulls have crept into the affections of the dressy woman. Organdie, too, has become a great favorite and the women who dress a great deal wear organdie because it looks so crisp and is so glossy and so fresh."

A Pleasing Gift.

Guest books are especially appropriate for the people who are just married or are moving into new homes.

Stunning ones can be found in the shops, bound in leather and mounted in silver, but the prettiest of all are handmade, embroidered or painted or done in burntwork.

Sheets of paper are tied inside—a paper that will take ink well. Sometimes a gay little penholder is tied to it, or run through ribbon loops.

The idea is for each guest who comes to the new home to write a verse or a sentiment and sign his name and the date.

"A SMALL THING."

Do you believe in progress? Do you believe that all the wonderful achievements of the nineteenth century—the railroad, the telegraph, the telephone, electric light, kerosene, sewing machine, agricultural machinery, steamships, trolley cars, etc.—have made life easier and better worth living? If you do, I believe that a man who lives 40 years under modern conditions has experienced more life and better life than Methusalem, though he had lived 30 centuries out of his time.

The triumphs of the nineteenth century were triumphs of human service—the placing of knowledge and the fruits of knowledge within the reach of the common man. Every man's life is better, happier, more secure because of them. We live more comfortable, more sociable lives in better and more comfortable houses because of them. Even the hopeless dweller in the worst city slums is more comfortable in his physical conditions than the middle-class citizen of the days of George Washington.

In little things as in great, comfort and convenience have been the legacy of the "Century of Improvement." Paint, in a certain sense, is a minor matter, yet it gives beauty, healthfulness and durability to our dwellings. Fifty years ago painting was a serious proposition, a luxury for the owners of stately mansions who could afford the expense of frequent repaints. To-day ready mixed paint is so cheap, so good, and so universal that no house owner has an excuse for not keeping his property well painted.

A small thing, indeed; yet several hundred large factories, employing thousands of chemists and skilled workmen, are running every day in the year to keep our houses fresh, clean and wholesome.

A small thing, yet a can of good ready mixed paint, such as one may buy from any reputable dealer, embodies the study of generations of skilled chemists, the toil of a thousand workmen in mill, laboratory and factory, and the product of a long series of special machinery invented and designed just to make that can of paint and to furnish us an infinite variety of tints, colors and shades.

It was a wonderful century, that nineteenth of our era, and one the least of its wonderful things was that same commonplace can of paint.

AT THE SUMMER HOTEL.

Experience of Winston Churchill Familiar to Many.

Winston Churchill in an address that he made in Concord recently praised the New Hampshire farmer.

"Ours," he said, "is a state fitted above all others for a summer resort. New Hampshire, with its superb climate, its mountains, its lakes and forests, is still in a generation or two be one great summer resort—a vast park, dotted with beautiful villas, to which will come each summer families from all parts of America.

"In anticipation of this many farmers are learning to conduct hotels. They are building cottages for summer visitors. Some of them, too, are taking boarders.

"And I am glad to say that the New Hampshire farmer is in a position to take boarders, because, unlike the farmers in other states that I could name, he does not send all his good things to the city. I once boarded at a fine big farm, but the fare was wretched—canned vegetables, condensed milk and so on.

"By Jove,' I said one morning at breakfast, as I pushed my egg cup from me, 'these eggs are—why, they're not as fresh as those I get in New York.'

My farmer host snorted.

"'That's rank prejudice on your part, Mr. Churchill,' he said. 'It's from New York that all our eggs come.'"

LOOSE TEETH

Made Sound by Eating Grape-Nuts.

Proper food nourishes every part of the body, because Nature selects the different materials from the food we eat, to build bone, nerve, brain, muscle, teeth, etc.

All we need is to eat the right kind of food and by chewing it well—our digestive organs take it up into the blood and the blood carries it all through the body, to every little nook and corner.

If some one would ask you, "Is Grape-Nuts good for loose teeth?" you probably would answer, "I don't know it could be." But a woman in Ontario writes:

"For the past two years I have used Grape-Nuts Food with most excellent results. It seems to take the place of medicine in many ways, builds up the nerves and restores the health generally.

"A little Grape-Nuts taken before retiring soothes my nerves and gives sound sleep.". (Because it relieve irritability of the stomach nerves, being a predigested food.)

"Before I used Grape-Nuts my teeth were loose in the gums. They were so bad I was afraid they would some day all fall out. Since I have used Grape-Nuts I have not been bothered any more with loose teeth.

"All desire for pastry has disappeared and I have gained in health, weight and happiness since I began to use Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Get the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."
