THE BIRMINGHAM ECCENTRIC MIGHIGAN

BIRMINGHAM, FRIDAY, NOV 16,

Where to Segle Reform.

The temperate temperance man, the decorace reformer, the headed physican, are not casy to find, even among the great once of earth. Hence it become you and me, explorers is the course of the course you and me, explorers is the course you and me, explorers is the course you and me, explorers is the considerable of considerable with a limit because a Michigan Central engineer lost his head early Monday morning and pulled his throutle wide open away as well as the laid own for reforming himself. Yet been were got over the impulse to rip out a way and the year of the well as the proper when yet the course of the property of th a while, and straighten out the kinks in the pillows of our own perverseness. Fellow physicians of the sick universe, let us try our preserriptions on chrestees before trying them on that poor dog, the world!

Apples for the Brain.

Apples are said to contain more phosphorus than any other, fruit or weepstable, and it is claimed that this makes them specialty, adapted to reasoning the errors ansater of the brain and spinal cord. Perhaps for he same reason, nedely understood, the old Scindinavian traditions represent the apple as the food of the scient, who had been supple as the food of the scient, who had been supple as the food of the scient, who when they first houselve growing for the same supple as the food of the scient, who had been reasoning the same and body. Practical educators have been busy of late at teachers' institutes and other gatherings, and many topics of live interest have been discussed. 'Among other things athletics and server so-cieties have been considered. It is noteworthy, says the Troy Times, that much opposition was shown on the part of professors and other instructors to secret societies, particularly those in high schools and academies. As regards athleties, however, there was a surprising unanimity of opinion that proper indulgence was a screet-lent thing and tended to promote good scholarship. Even delegates to religious assemblages join in this sentiment. At the Baptist state convention of Minnesota there was severe denunciation of secret societies of the class mentioned, but Prof. Natharis Butter of the Ugiversity of Chicago vigorously defended athleties, including football, saying: "Athletics are conductive to high morals and a high degree of scholarship." Which is merebt another way of saying that the world is made better by an increase in the number of muscular, healthy and scholarly Christians.

England loses a notable structure through the destruction by flue of the famous Abbey at Selby. The Justifiers dated, back to the twelfth country, when the Abbey was founded by the Benedictines, was one of the fluest specimens of the gid-time monastic churches in England and had wit-messed thany string events. Against suchra loss there is no adequate in-surance.
