French Fancies.

A very delectable grade of black mussel velvet hooks in the back. At the top in the front it is cut down and two shallow points at the top in the center. It is embroidered. Very light-colored medallions are arranged on each side of the center front, there being three pieces of the plain velvet between these silver appliques. The hooks are single large medallion hooks over from side to side, concealing the joining of the belt at that point.

Still another grade shows down the center front a row of tiny French bows of velvet, each having a tiny ruffled bow in its center. Another has little rosettes with silver buttons as centers.

Tailor-Made Coat and Skirt.

The tailor-made coat and skirt, to be worn with differing fancy blouses and bodices, inferring all its modish construction to a remarkable degree. One shows the short flounce with just self-strappings and a velvet collar for embellishment and a deep grade of puffed velvet adds to the smart effect. The skirt is one of those extreme patterns with inverted and wind-up pleated skirts on the hips and just overlapping rows of strapping on the hem for trimming.

Girl's Dress of Red Cloth.

The skirt is made with a narrow tailer, trimmed with straps and loops of black velvet, fastened with steel buttons.

Cure of Street Gowns.

There's nothing which tends so definitely as taking it off as soon as you can in brushing it and putting it away in its hamper. Loinclothes are bound to dry in a closet in your home, plays havoc with tatter of clothes. It's rather a temptation to slip into an easy chair when you come to get dressed, to reach for the prospect of doing for a little while but those very times take the life out of the fabric of cloth that takes well and washes like the little creases which are in its inescapable musing. It's rather a temptation, too, to hang it up and postpone brushing and putting away properly to a later time, when you're rested, but it pays to do it at the time for dust should be got out of it, it has time to settle into the coat and skirt that they look like a mass of so many other good-looking suits, and careful hanging prevents coming of too late.

Colors in Harmony.

Certain browns and pinks consort harmoniously and with much direction, but one must choose the right shades. A pink broadcloth frock of creamy tulle, trimmed in brown velvet, worn with brown fur and a big pink tulle hat trimmed with brown plumes and a touch of fur around the brim crown, excited much enthusiasm at a recent tea and the color scheme should suggest charming possibilities to any clever artist in dress. The trim of skirt in three applied bias tucks. A vest and collar of brown velvet, with a gold embroidered line, fills in front of coat and the belt around sides and back of coat in cloth piped with brown velvet. The deep-tinted cuffs are similarly treated and fastened with two gold buttons.

Chicken Mexican.

One chicken, two small onions, one egg, half a green pepper; two teaspoons of salt; one teaspoon of paprika; one small chili pepper; one teaspoon of oil; three tablespoons of flour; one teaspoon of black pepper. Remove the meat from the bones and chop very fine with the onion, one onion, and mint. Mix the other ingredients, and roll in balls about the size of a pigeon's egg. Since the birds are cold, fry it brown in a skillet, add two quarts of boiling water, drop in, and let them boil for an hour. These may also be made of veal or lamb.

Hats for Spring.

As to colors of the hats which are being worn now and will be worn, the Millinery Trade Review's Paris correspondent says: "Variety in color is a particular feature of the new straw and half weaves. All the leading series of shades adapted for the season are represented, but particular prominence is given to the new spring greens, and to the lower toned pinks, to the orchid mauves, and the pale yellow tones. The lightest light wood-browns and the lightest of terra cotta."

Individuality in Dress.

With the wide latitude which fashion now allows in the various lines of dress, it is not a difficult matter to follow individual ideas in her gowns and dress accessories. Indeed "individuality" has become the slogan of the new dress, a new thing which is not only becoming, but expresses "her" best taste, "her" individuality—original ideas adapted to her particular style.

Sarah Bernhardt, with the authority of a great artist, who studies every point and with the inherent instinct of her country to please in appearance, dwells with emphasis upon the point of preserving and enhancing one's individuality. That one can do this and submit to the doctrine of imperious fashion is a paradox. The most extreme of styles are now marked at the present moment, not only in materials, but in mode of construction as well. Simplicity walks in hand with an elaboration of trimming which quite bewilders the eye. The short-waisted, chesty, corsetous in Paris. Exploited originally by Paquin, this model shows a draped belt having a round, slight dip in the front. In this short-waisted class comes the new polo or pony coat, of which many styles are being worn.

Directly in contrast with the short-waisted styles are the long coats, closely fitted at the waist and severe, and resting in the lines.

Doudoir Confidences

A belt of peacock feathers, with a silver mounted bag to match, is a novel way with which they are to be worn. These bodices are masses of dainty needlework and are caught in at the waist with wide belts. They are often cut open at the neck to show a small glimpse of white lace.

Parisian Skating Costumes.

The costume at the left is of dark green cloth. The skirt is trimmed with bands of the material, forming loops at the ends fastened with buttons. The jacket, with yoke and bolero fronts, is trimmed to correspond. The revers are of light cloth, ornamented with buttons and buttonholes.

The traveling cloak are smart enough to make any woman pine for a journey. A piece of this year's coat looks like a long, high collar, often luxuriously lined with fur. Belts of six months old are shed in favor of buckskin with soles as soft as a glove.

The great standard, made by its general favorability and by means of its construction in price. Auto bodice of rubber, lined with silk and provided with wide rain-capes, are now being heralded. Sufferers of tight liberty styles are worn plain with short suits, their long hatched ends fluttering from the front.

Belts and Buckles.

Belts and buckles play an important part in the dress question this season, and certainly add greatly to the appearance of both indoor and outdoor gowns. With the princess style as popular as it is at present it might be thought belts were of no importance, but it is not the only style of gown; the empire and decollete are close rivals, and as for street gowns, belts and buckles are almost a necessity.

Smart in the Extreme.

A stunning gown was worn by a well known actress noted for her smart dressing. It is deep purple calf-tan broadcloth with stitched pieces of same around bottom of skirt. The chic little jacket is prettily trimmed with heavily stitched bands of cloth and shaped pieces of embroidery like silk, which also make the chest sette and stock. Long suede gloves in violet and emerald and turban of violet French felt with white wicker complete a most striking costume.

WINTER COSTUMES FROM PARIS.

The first illustration shows a tailor-made costume of striped cloth. The skirt is made with a series of attached plaits on each side of the front, and is trimmed at the bottom with a shaped band of the material, the ends turned up in front and fastened with buttons. The short, half-fitting jacket is also made with a group of plaits on each side of the front, and shaped bands from the border and the odd yoke. The collar and cuffs are of Persian lamb, the latter finished at the top with little plaits of silk matching the gown. The muff is also of Persian lamb. The other is a calling coat

If there are no flowers for the table, break off a few of the finer sprays of the Boston fern, arrange loosely in a low glass bowl with water, and the delicate green sprays will last for a week and make a dainty centerpiece.

A glass which will resist the action of water is made by boiling half a pound of common glue in one quart of skimmed milk. Another method is to soak the glass first in cold water, and then to dry it on the stove in linseed oil.

Dyed to Match Skirts.

At one of the leading houses in Paris is one of the strongest features is boldness of lace or mousseline dyed to match skirts and tight-fitting boleros with which they are to be worn. These bodices are masses of dainty needlework and are caught in at the waist with wide belts. They are often cut open at the neck to show a small glimpse of white lace.

To Clean an Old Clock.

Having one of the readers of the National clock they value that seems to be near the end of its career of usefulness? Does it skip a beat now and then, and when it begins to strike seem to be in pain? Let me tell you what to do. Take a bit of cotton batting the size of a hen's egg, dip it in kerosene and place it on the floor of the clock, in the corner, shut the door of the clock and wait three or four days.

A Healing Gospel.

The Rev. J. C. Warren, pastor of Sharon Baptist Church, Bear, Ga., says of Electric Bitters: "It's a God-send to mankind. It cured me of lame back, stiff joints, and complete physical collapse. I was so weak I took half an hour to walk a mile. Two bottles of Electric Bitters have made me so strong I have now walked three miles in 10 minutes and feel like walking three more. It's made a new man of me." "Greatest remedy for weakness and all stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Sold under guarantee at Whitehead & Mitchell's and Cobb's & Cobb's drug stores. Price 50c."

Was Friend of Capt. Kidd.

Capt. Thomas Parthe of Newport, founder of Trinity church, where fashionable weddings are celebrated in the twentieth century, was one of the notorious characters of the seventeenth century. He was a friend and confidant of the pirate William Kidd. He retired from the exciting life to a quiet abode on Conant Island in Narragansett bay, where a messenger from Kidd found him. He was a prisoner in Boston. To Parthe's credit he sent Kidd seven bars of gold and one-half of a drop of oil in compliance with which Kidd swung by the gall in London.

Testimony from the Heart.

An old woman who, in her ninety-eighth year, saw fit to make a new will, came to the point briefly and specifically: "I give to my old faithful servant, a good woman, but would be much better, if she had been so clamorous a tongue. She has, however, one great virtue, which is a well-to-do folks—strict honesty."

Relief for Aching Teeth.

Women Shynocks in London.

It appears that there are many female shynocks in London. They are all old women, and, as users, are said to be much more grasping and insensitive than their male colleagues.

The Faithful One.

A woman can have more fun reading old love letters than a man can reading new ones.—New York Press.
