WEALTHY WOMEN WORKERS

The Many Rich Women of 70-Days Making Money for Themselves in World of Distress.

If a girl could be made of the number of rich wealthy New York women who get rich in 70 days, the world would be a different place. It would astonish many of those who hold to the antiquated idea that a man is the proper environment for riches.

Perhaps the best known of these women writers who have turned to the pen because they felt that wealth united to ideas spelled only boredom, is Mrs. Edith Wharton. She was the daughter of Philadelphia, the sister of G. Walden Jones. She took up writing as a pastime when wearied by the monotony of a serious illness. In this way she worked for years before venturing before the public, and when the time came to submit to the public her work, she was of an admirable taste and good schooling.

Mrs. Wharton purchased her handwriting. New York residence from the proceeds of her writings, though there was no reason why she should have essayed writing for a living.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cross is a member of one of the most blooded of New York families, the devotee of society and the confidante, and possessor of a fortune of $1,000,000. Her literary work, "Julian Gordon," carved out a place as a successful writer. So has Miss Doris Francis, who, at an age when most girls are scarcely past the frivolities of school life, has written several plays.

The signature, "Emily Post," is appearing with increasing frequency. This is the pen name of Mrs. Eliza Follen Post, famed in society as Emily Price, daughter of one of the richest families in the country. So far she has confined herself to fiction.

A SHAMROCK PINCUSION.

Here is a Good Luck Gift and One That Would Be Welcomed by Almost Any One.

Lovers of the Emerald Isle should be specially interested in the Shamrock Pincushion, although, as the Shamrock is supposed to bring good luck everywhere, the design will no doubt be almost equally popular elsewhere. It is intended, of course, that the pincushion should hang on the wall or from the corner of a looking-glass on the dressing table.

The pincushion might be made of pale green silk, with a fringe of pleated ribbon in a darker shade of green to

WHERE ROLLS THE OREGON

Region Where Everyone is Judged by His Ability to Grow Fruit.

The cooperative idea in the valley. You can see it when the directors of the Fruit Growers' Union hold their weekly meeting in the little shed which forms the headquarters, says Harry Linn, in Outing Magazine. Here Chris and Hank and Ned and Jim sit on apple boxes or the manager's desk or on any vacant place within sight while they discuss the business the manager presents to them. They are merely the half dozen growers who have been selected to settle the question of prices for the commodity and where to ship the harvest. They suggest to the manager what they think is best, then hurry away to finish up picking or spraying or whatever else there is on hand, leaving him to do the rest. Sometimes there's the question about the best kind of fruit to send to a certain place. Will it stand the climate? Will it keep long enough?

"Let us leave it to Old Man Tucker," says Hank.

In comes the old man. Costless, his blue shirt unbuttoned at the throat, his features literally marbled by the years he has been making the world give him a living. He doesn't look exactly like a man who can tell the nice points of an apple as the pattern set to the most of your hand, but his word is the final judgment, for he has never erred yet. Ask who he is and you hear: "Why, he's the one whose Newborn pippins are so good that they go to Europe." And besides him the college graduate, even the mayor, has to take a back seat. Here in the valley he is one of the biggest men, even if he does come to town in his shirt sleeves and rides a bicycle because he hasn't time to "chuck up." Everybody is as good as his neighbor—good enough to be called by his first name.

No matter where one has come from or how rich his former standing, here he is measured by one thing—his ability to grow fruit.

CHEAPER FARM LANDS

Southwest Offers Best Opportunities for Securing Homes.

Many farmers in the Northern and Eastern States are selling their high-priced lands and locating in the Southwest. Many who have been unable to own their homes in the older country are buying land in the new country.

Unusual opportunities exist along the lines of the Mississippi-Pacine-Iron Mountain Route. The rich alluvial delta lands and river-bottom lands of Southeast Missouri, Eastern Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, capable of producing 60 bushels of corn, a bale of cotton, 4 to 6 tons of alfalfa, 150 bushels of potatoes, and other grains, vegetables and hay crops, can be bought for $7.50 to $15 per acre. When cleared and slightly improved will rent for $4.00 to $6.00 per acre cash.

Uplands, more rolling, lighter soil, adapted to fruit growing—peaches, pears, plums, grapes, berries—also melons, tomatoes and other vegetables, can be bought for $5 to $10 per acre in unimproved state. Many places with small clearings and some improvements can be bought very cheap.

This is a fine stock country. No long winter feeding. Free range, pure water, mild climate. A healthy growing country, with a great future.
