WERE NOT "FRIED CAKES."

That is, Were Not Known by That Name in the Elysium East.

A young man from the west who was paying New York his first visit a short time ago tells this joke on himself.

One noon he went into one of the many quick lunch restaurants for a little lunch. In a glass case near the entrance he saw several plates of large fresh cutlets.

In the part of the country where he lives the delicious, toothsome lunch is called fried cake.

When he had finished a steak he thought he had three fried cakes would go well with his cup of coffee. Calling the waiter to him he asked for a plate of fried cake and the waiter, who never had either west or in the country, so he replied that they had none.

The young man brought the same answer from the waiter, who immediately he added he would bring the manager, who might be some help in straightening out an evident misunderstanding.

The manager of the restaurant called, however, to advise the young man and as the other patrons of the place had become so interested by this time that they were neglecting their own meals in the hope perhaps, of seeing an argument between the manager and the guest, for they supposed, of course, the latter was trying to avoid paying his bill or something equally interesting.

The attention he was receiving proved too much for the young man's composure, and he calmly drinking coffee, he put on his hat and hurried out. On the way out he stopped long enough to administer the waiter's plate of cutlets, and then he went out to try to learn the answer.

ALMOST 9,000 FIRES.

The Annual Average for New York City—One-Fifth the Country's Total.

New York averages 8,700 fires a year. Chicago has 4,700.

The average number in this country, says the Fireproof Magazine, is 12 theaters, 3 public halls, 12 churches, 10 schools, 2 hospitals, 2 asylums, 2 ballrooms, 5 apartment houses, 10 department stores, 2 jails, 25 hotels, 12 flats and nearly 1,000 homes burned by fire every week in the year.

We (inventors) do not fire but fear some of the things wiping out many buildings. We are born builders, are we Americans, and seem plainly to take our chances on fire, believing, probably, that those chances are somewhat better.

As a matter of fact, however, the country over, each family has just one chance in 60 of being burned out some time during the year; not a very long shot after all.

Deadly Serpent Bites

Ayer, of Lowell, Mass., says: "They restored my wife to perfect health after a chronic and almost fatal case of stomach and liver troubles. Electric Bitters cure chills and fever, indigestion, biliousness, backache, kidney troubles and bladder disorders. Sold on guarantee by Watstead & Mitchell and Cobb & Cobb, druggists. Price 50c."

An attractive and altogether "bonny" young business woman of this city came here with a large stock of property and a small amount of cash. She had knowledge of the time to carve out her fortune, after passing her girlhood days in Edinburgh and London. Although without any special education, she was a self-conscious and egotist, says the Philadelphia Record, she is sometimes annoyed by the very evident admiration she attracts in public places.

The other day, while dining in a restaurant, she was seated at a table opposite was preparing to speak to her, as he glanced her way, and seemed to be making up his mind to try a conversation. The young woman assumed a most frigid air and looked as unapproachable as the arctic pole.

The man as he left the table made one more half-hearted attempt to speak, blushed red to his ears, then hurried away. When the young man finished her luncheon and called for her check, the waitress amazed by exclaiming: "Why, I thought you were my friend. I'll bring you your check and his together." The bill had manifestly been settled.
